INTRODUCTION

Detroit is the oldest center of civilization in the vast area of the Great Lakes and the Mississippi Valley. Mission stations, it is true, and sometimes fur trade posts were established earlier at other points in this region—at Chequamegon, Green Bay, Mackinac, Chicago, and possibly elsewhere, but at all of these places the torch of civilization was later extinguished, either temporarily or permanently. The missions at Chequamegon and Chicago were abandoned soon after their establishment, and save for the presence of a few fur traders, the modern settlement of these places dates from the nineteenth century. Mackinac, settled earlier than Detroit, still remains a center of civilization; but there have been several removals of the settlement as originally founded, and the present one on the island dates only from 1780, while the place has steadily dwindled in relative importance from the commercial center of a wide region to a mere summer resort.

Detroit, on the other hand, throughout two and a quarter centuries has steadily maintained that importance which strategic considerations conferred upon her at birth, and is today one of the chief cities of the continent, both in population and in commercial importance. Nor does the interest which attaches to the story of Detroit's history suffer by comparison with that of any other American city. Here was the mildest climate of Canada and here beside the noble river which conveys the waters of the upper lakes to Lake Erie, developed the fairest settlement of Canada outside the lower St. Lawrence Valley. Here for a full generation—from 1760 until 1796—was the principal seat of British authority in the West and the center whence, for almost two decades, emanated the war parties which harried the American frontier from Pennsylvania to Tennessee. By the terms of the Treaty of Paris in 1783, Great Britain conceded to the American nation the territory lying south and west of a boundary line running through the middle of the Great Lakes, but not until a generation later, when drafting the Treaty of Ghent, did that government finally resign the hope of confining the United States to the south side of the Ohio River and erecting the territory which has since come to be known as the Old Northwest, into a permanent Indian barrier state which should forever be dedicated to savagery and to the mission of keeping the growing American nation at a safe distance from Canada. Fortunately, a better way was found of maintaining peaceful relations between the two countries, however, and over a century has passed since the extended boundary line between them has known other protection than the mutual agreement, honorably observed, drafted by their representatives at Ghent in 1815.

Until 1760 Detroit was, of course, a purely French settlement. The advent of the British conqueror involved the addition to the community of a veneer of English officials and merchants, who intermarried, frequently, with the French element, producing thereby a certain admixture of Anglo-Saxon and Gallic civilizations. But so great was the French preponderance that until the end of the British régime Detroit continued essentially French in culture and outlook. The advent of the American government, in 1796, accentuated the Anglo-Saxon influence, which gradually waxed until in time the older Gallic civilization was submerged by the newer tide of race and culture. Although submerged, it was not banished. As recently as 1860 a well-informed foreign visitor to Detroit wrote that the French language, pronounced "with a decided Norman accent," prevailed in the market place, and he even fancied that the men's cloaks and the headdresses worn by the women resembled those commonly seen on the banks of the lower Seine. Today, as a great and prosperous industrial center, Detroit has attracted to her limits representatives of many races and countries, yet the blood of the early French settlers flows in the veins of thousands of present-day citizens of Detroit, and family names which have been represented here for half a score of generations, are of frequent occurrence in the daily press.

It might reasonably be expected that such a community would be acutely conscious of its historic past and would have attended long since to the due preservation and to the dissemination of a knowledge of its records. In certain ways this historic consciousness is undeniably manifest. The local press carries articles catering to the historical interest of its readers more frequently, probably, than is the case in most other communities, particularly of the Middle West; and even the advertisements frequently exploit some local historical theme. Unless these alert interpreters of public opinion are mistaken, there exists among Detroiters a widespread historic interest which the seller of such prosaic commodities as bonds and real estate does not hesitate to invoke. Yet the fact must be admitted that until recently the community, as such, has done comparatively little in the way of preserving and exploiting its historical records.

Quite different will be the story, however, in the years that are before us. In 1914 Mr. Clarence M. Burton of Detroit, who for upward of forty years had been assiduously engaged in developing the chief library of Detroit local history in existence, presented his great accumulation of material to the Detroit Public Library to be administered by that institution for the public use and benefit. Here is not the place to catalog the Burton Historical Collection, but without detracting from the value of the mass of material in print that has been brought together, it may fairly be said that the real heart of the Collection, at least from the scholar's point of view, is the great accumulation of manuscripts. In these scores of thousands of documents is preserved in large part the story of the past of Detroit and the Northwest. The life of a generation of mankind is short, and its memory is even shorter. The life of the city continues from age to age, and its history is to the community what memory is to the individual. Without memory there could be no civilization and no progress. Here in these records, henceforth to be guarded and fostered by the city itself, acting through the agency of its Public Library, is the memory of Detroit.

Manuscript records, however, are both rare and fragile, and their study and elucidation is in itself a profession. In the nature of the case the masses of people have neither time nor opportunity to consult them, and their exploitation must be entrusted to certain workers whom the community assigns to this task. Their work it is to make the contents of the records available for the use of scholars generally and for ready reference by any who may care to consult them. Thus it is that practically all enlightened governments maintain historical agencies whose function it is to preserve and publish, with appropriate editing, their historical records, for until these sources of information are made accessible there can be no correct or accurate knowledge of the past to which they pertain.

It becomes a primary duty of the Detroit Public Library, therefore, in discharging the trust reposed in it by Mr. Burton, to publish the sources which are indispensable to those who essay the task of writing the city's history. To this end the present volume has been prepared as the first of a series to be issued under the general caption of the Burton Historical Records. In considering the question, which manuscripts should be given earliest publication in the series, there was little difficulty in reaching a decision. The papers of John Askin, a former resident and merchant of Detroit, constitute one of the valuable groups in the Burton Historical Collection. Although not the earliest in point of time, they are among the earlier papers; a more important factor determining their selection is the fact that John Askin's activities over a period of half a century in the Northwest, were so manifold that his personal papers illustrate practically every aspect of the life of his time in the region of the upper lakes, a fact which becomes more evident from a consideration of the outstanding aspects of his career.

Although Askin was a native of the north of Ireland he was of Scotch descent; according to family tradition he was a kinsman of John Erskine, Earl of Mar, who headed the revolt in 1715 in favor of the Old Pretender. As a consequence of its failure, many of those concerned in it left Scotland for Ireland. Among others was the father of John Askin, who settled at or near Strabane in the county of Tyrone, and changed his name from Erskine to Askin. He married Alice Rea and to them were born three sons (named John, William, and Robert) and two daughters (named Mary and Sarah). For some reason, possibly because of the death of his parents, John was reared by his grandfather, John Rea, who lived within a mile and a half of Dungannon. He died in 1758 and the grandson, now in his twentieth year, turned his back forever upon his native haunts and migrated to the New World. The Seven Years' War was then at its height, and he soon found employment by joining the army. He served at Ticonderoga, and probably in other campaigns against Canada, although of this we have no certain knowledge.

JOHN ASKIN PAPERS

Before long (as early as 1761) the young immigrant was established as a merchant at Albany, engaged largely in the Indian trade. This business involved him in the affairs of the newly conquered western country and papers preserved in the Burton Historical Collection show that he visited Detroit as early as the spring of 1762. They also suggest the likelihood that he was here a full year earlier. In either event he was one of the first British traders to venture into the Northwest after the downfall of New France. At Albany he had as partners, in his various commercial enterprises, James Gordon, Abraham Steele, and Major Robert Rogers. It was a characteristic of the Indian trade that a man might be conducting at one time several different enterprises with distinct partners or groups of partners for each one, and such seems to have been the case with Askin during his business career at Albany. His partnership with Rogers ended disastrously, and not until 1771 did he succeed in freeing himself from the indebtedness incurred by it. Possibly this failure was the chief factor in his removal to a new theater of operations in the western country. The Pontiac uprising of 1763 set a temporary check upon all trading activities, and the precise date of Askin's removal to the Northwest is unknown. It has been stated that he came to Detroit with provisions for the relief of the garrison during the siege of 1763; we have been unable to verify this, but it is certain that in the following year Askin took up his residence at Mackinac; whether he went there from Detroit or direct from Albany we have not been able to determine.

At Mackinac fortune smiled upon Askin and he soon entered upon a period of steadily increasing prosperity. He held the appointment of commissary in the military department and this official connection undoubtedly forwarded in various ways the prosecution of his main business, the Indian trade. In addition to his own trading operations he engaged extensively in the transport business and in supplying the Montreal traders to the far Northwest with corn and other supplies essential to the prosecution of their operations. He conducted a trading house at the Sault in addition to the one at Mackinac, and near the latter place he developed a farm where, for several years prior to the Revolution, he conducted various experiments in plant cultivation, the earliest by many years of which we have record in the state of Michigan. He controlled a number of sailing vessels and acquired a commanding position in the carrying-trade of the upper lakes. He even contrived, by some method now unknown, to convey his vessels around the rapids of the Ste. Mary's into Lake Superior, an exploit whose very memory had long perished when it was again performed, as though for the first time, by certain enterprising Yankees three-quarters of a century later.

During these early years at Mackinac, Askin formed a number of friendships with men who, for a generation, were among the foremost merchants of Canada—with James McGill, Isaac Todd, Alexander Henry, and many others who are famous in the annals of the western fur trade. These friendships, for the most part, were terminated only by death, and they proved of material advantage to Askin in his later years. He formed friendships, too, with army officers and such other agents of the government as there were in the country, and this process was continued, of course, during his years of later activity at Detroit.

The commandants of the several western posts in the period with which we are dealing, wielded a power well-nigh absolute over the doings and fortunes of those who came within the orbit of their authority. Particularly was this the case during the troublous years of the Revolution. With most of the commandants with whom he was thrown, Askin lived in harmony. With Colonel Arent Schuyler De Peyster, a notable figure in the western country during the Revolutionary period, who assumed the command at Mackinac in 1774, his relations were particularly cordial. In 1779 De Peyster was transferred to Detroit and the place he left vacant at Mackinac was filled by Patrick Sinclair. Although Sinclair was a man of some real ability, who ultimately attained the rank of lieutenant general, at Mackinac he succeeded in embroiling himself with almost everyone with whom he came in contact. We have no knowledge what the real ground of the enmity he soon conceived for Askin may have been; quite possibly the latter's friendship with De Peyster, of whom Sinclair was almost morbidly jealous, may have been a predisposing factor. At any rate the two men soon quarreled. Askin was deprived of his office as commissary, and in the summer of 1780 was even accused of acts of disloyalty. It is difficult to conceive of a man more ardently attached to his sovereign and government than Askin's conduct and expressions throughout his entire life prove him to have been, and in view of this unwavering record the accusation of Sinclair may unhesitatingly be designated as preposterous. Yet the commandant's hostility made it impossible for him to remain longer at Mackinac. Political considerations aside, there were substantial factors pertaining to matters of trade which suggested a removal to Detroit. In the summer of 1780, therefore, Askin terminated a fourteen-year residence at Mackinac by transferring his family and business to Detroit, where he continued to live until the spring of 1802.

During the Revolutionary struggle the importance of Detroit was materially enhanced. The French residents were largely indifferent to the issues of the war between the colonists and the mother country, but they were at any rate not actively disloyal to the British government. There was no local colonial faction to engineer a revolt, and between Detroit and even the most western of the rebelling settlements lay 300 miles of wilderness. From Detroit emanated the leadership and the supplies which marshalled the savages of the Northwest for war upon the colonists, and here was the goal toward which all the military efforts of the latter in the West, throughout the war, were directed. It was the logical place, therefore, for one of Askin's extensive commercial interests to reside.

Here for many years his abounding energy was concentrated on the prosecution of his business affairs. The fur trade was a hazardous and far-flung business. London was alike the source of the trader's supply of goods and the market for his furs. At Montreal were certain firms which enacted the rôle of middlemen as between the western merchants and London, procuring from that center the goods which the trader required and receiving his consignments of furs for sale in the London market. As much as three years might elapse between the time when a given shipment of goods left London and that when the furs for which they were given in exchange were received there. But London, in its turn, was but a distributing center for the furs, whose ultimate destination might be Paris, Vienna, St. Petersburg, or even distant China. The conduct of the trade was subject to so many hazards that only the shrewdest and most energetic traders could long continue in it. An outbreak of war on the Continent, a changing whim of fashion, an unexpected supply of a particular kind of fur, these were but some of the contingencies which might arise to set at naught the most patient calculations of the trader, involving him in insolvency and ruin.

But the particular bane of the fur trade was the credit system on which it was conducted. With a period of two or more years required for a single turnover of goods, someone must evidently supply capital for the enterprise. More commonly, perhaps, this was found by the Montreal middlemen, but the cost of the service was paid by the western merchant. He, in turn, frequently parceled out the goods he thus obtained—practically always on credit—among adventurers who traded directly with the savages. The latter in turn received them on credit, and whether they ever paid for them or not depended largely on the outcome of the winter's hunt. If the hunt turned out badly the Indian regarded it as an act of God for which he himself was not responsible, and from his point of view the debt was discharged. The London and Montreal merchants, naturally, did not thus easily discharge their western correspondents, who must pay the debts they had incurred or undergo financial ruin. It is significant of the hazardous character of the Indian trade to note that at Mackinac (and probably elsewhere, throughout the Indian country) the traders adopted the Indian point of view to the extent of observing, as a settled rule of procedure, the principle that the debts most recently incurred should be first discharged, leaving the earlier creditors to look for their pay to whatever balance might remain after this had been done.

In short, the fur trade was little more than a huge gamble for most of those directly engaged in it. If the trader won, his profits were oftentimes very great; but it is significant of the general situation that at such centers as Detroit, Mackinac, Fort Wayne, and Vincennes, few traders accumulated wealth and the great majority were overburdened with debts, which in many cases they never succeeded in discharging. As for Askin, beginning shortly after the close of the Revolution, the passing seasons rolled up an ever-increasing indebtedness, which for years stood around the relatively enormous figure of twenty-five thousand pounds. Try as he might he could do little to effect the discharge of this incubus. Only the fact that his principal creditors, Isaac Todd and James McGill of Montreal, had been his firm friends since the early adventurous years at Mackinac, saved him from complete ruin and a poverty-stricken old age. They had prospered at Montreal, and McGill was reputed before his death to be the wealthiest man in Canada. Their affection for Askin was such, and their belief in his integrity of character so great, that they accepted, in lieu of the cash due them, various tracts of land in and around Detroit, taken over at valuations far in excess of anything ever realized from them.

Having effected this disposition of his major indebtedness, Askin, as the century drew to its close, prepared to enter upon a new and final period of his career. Two factors were decisive of the change he now contemplated. The first we have already dwelt upon—his inability to make ends meet in the Indian trade. The second was of a public nature. In 1796 Detroit, which had been for a generation under British rule, passed into the possession of the American nation. Askin's loyalty to his government was such that he had no desire to live under another flag. In advance of the American occupation, therefore, he resolved to abandon his home and establish a new one on the south side of the river where the British flag still waved. For various reasons the actual removal was delayed until 1802, but in the interval since 1796 Askin seems never to have wavered in his design of removing, and never to have entertained the slightest thought of becoming an American citizen.

Among the pieces of real estate which Askin had turned over to Isaac Todd in the process of discharging his indebtedness to the latter, was a tract in the eastern section of what is now the city of Windsor, opposite the lower end of Belle Isle. This tract Askin fixed upon as the site of his new home and when Todd learned of his desire he graciously presented it to Mrs. Askin. Thither Askin removed in the spring of 1802, naming the place Strabane in memory of his north Irish birthplace. Henceforth he lived the life of a farmer, but even in these later years he engaged in various other activities, shipping ventures on the lakes, brick-making, distilling, and supplying lumber and other materials for the government at Amherstburg and other places. He acted also as agent in charge of the local property interests of Isaac Todd and James McGill, and he was almost continuously engaged in prosecuting his own claims to tracts of land over which he had acquired control during the years of his earlier business career.

Although Askin never achieved any widespread renown he was for half a century, successively at Mackinac and Detroit and on the Canadian side, a man of outstanding influence locally. Herein consists his chief historical significance, for so numerous were his interests and so varied his contacts that almost every aspect of the history of the Northwest in this period is illuminated by his papers. He had few of the arts of the politician and seems never to have sought public office, yet he held over a long period of years several local appointments of public trust. While Detroit still remained under British rule as a part of the Province of Quebec, he served as a member of the Land Board and as local magistrate. In the winter of 1802 when Detroit was incorporated as a town, he was chosen by the legislature of the Northwest Territory, one of five trustees of the town, although it was perfectly well known that he was a British subject and had no desire to change his allegiance. For several years prior to the change of government at Detroit, he was captain of militia and he continued as an officer of Canadian militia during all the years from 1796 until his removal in 1802. He ultimately rose to the rank of colonel of the Essex County militia, a position which he held until advancing age and other considerations caused the government to confer the appointment upon another. Askin was greatly displeased over this demotion and strove vainly to influence the authorities to continue him in the command of the county militia. The government, however, having in view the strong likelihood of war with the United States, was undoubtedly wise in devolving this responsibility upon younger shoulders.

As it was, the War of 1812 brought upon Askin a heavy burden of sorrow and difficulty. Although since 1796 an international boundary had separated the dwellers on the north side of the Detroit from their neighbors on the opposite shore, yet they had a common origin and were still intimately bound together by ties of business interest as well as of blood relationship. In short, around Detroit the War of 1812 bore most of the aspects of a civil conflict. Although Askin's sympathies were wholly British he did not escape the common lot, for while most of his sons and other kinsmen were fighting in the British ranks, one daughter was a resident of Detroit, her husband, commander of the Michigan territorial militia. When on August 16, 1812, General Brock crossed his army from Sandwich to Spring Wells and marched eastward along the river road to assail the American force, Askin and his wife, from their vantage point on the opposite shore, viewed the entire spectacle, fully anticipating that their sons would presently be locked in deadly combat with their son-in-law, and that in the event of British triumph their daughter and grandchildren within the fort would be exposed to the mercies of the tomahawk and scalping knife of Brock's red allies. The surrender of Hull, of course, prevented these eventualities.

As for Askin himself, during the months of British ascendancy at Detroit, the security of his property and person was unquestioned; with the advent of General Harrison's army in the autumn of 1813, he procured from that commander an order of protection while he should conduct himself as a non-combatant. But the American advent brought other woes upon him. In September, 1812, he wrote that he had four sons, three sons-in-law, and ten grandsons in military service. All but one son-in-law were on the British side; with the Americans in control at Detroit those of them who lived in this vicinity were exiled from their homes. Two sons-in-law in particular, Thomas McKee and Richard Pattinson, fled with their families in the wake of Procter's retreating army, and Mrs. Pattinson, who was Askin's youngest daughter, died during the flight.

Askin did not long survive the return of peace. Toward the end of March, 1815, a "Pacification Dinner" was arranged for at Detroit, and Askin, as an old Detroitter and a leading citizen of the Canadian side, was invited to attend. He declined in a respectful note, giving as his reason his "advanced term of life and weak state of health." A month later he was dead.

Askin was the father of a numerous family of children. The three elder children, John Jr., Catherine, and Madelaine, were by an Indian mother, concerning whom we have no certain knowledge. Nor do we know the definite dates of birth of her children. It is a matter of record that John Askin Jr. was born at L'Arbre Croche, probably about the year 1762. L'Arbre Croche was an Ottawa town, and this fact would favor the presumption that Askin's consort was a member of this tribe. On September 9, 1766, Askin manu-mitted, at Detroit, Manette (or Monette), a slave woman whom he had purchased from M. Bourassa at Mackinac. We have no further record of this woman, but the act of manumission, taken in connection with the chronological relation between the act and the births of Askin's children, suggests that she may have been their mother.

However this may be, there is no slightest room for doubt that Askin ever regarded the children as legally his own, and discharged for them the complete obligation of a tender and loving parent. All were educated, in so far as lay within his power, reared to civilization, and all contracted honorable marriage unions, one with a member of a French family of Detroit, one with an army officer, and one with a lake captain and (second) with one of the foremost merchants of Canada. Whether Askin's union with the mother was terminated by her death or by a voluntary separation is now unknown; but the known facts concerning Askin's character during his long career are such as to give assurance that his treatment of her was both honorable and kind, judged by the standards of his time and environment.

The commercial relations of Mackinac and Detroit were very close in the period we are dealing with, and Askin, while living at Mackinac, must have paid rather frequent visits to Detroit. One such visit was made in the spring of 1772, when on June 21 he was married here to Marie Archange Barthe, member of an early French family of Detroit. She outlived him several years, dying in 1820. She was French and Catholic; he was of Scotch blood and with no religious connection. By the union Askin, already affiliated with the native race, entered into close relationship with the French element of Detroit. Such an alliance was highly conducive to the furtherance of his social and commercial influence, although we do not mean to suggest that the marriage was dictated by such a motive. Like most of the old French families, the Barthe family was a prolific one, with widespread local connections. One of Mrs. Askin's sisters married Captain Daniel Mercer of the British army, and another Alexander Grant, the "Commodore," who for more than forty years commanded the British naval establishment on the upper lakes.

To Askin and his French wife nine children were born, two of whom died in infancy and a third in early manhood. The marriage connections formed by the others are of interest to our story; with them may be grouped the three elder children, who seem to have occupied a family status identical with that enjoyed by the children born to Mrs. Askin. John, the eldest, married at Detroit, Oct. 21, 1791, Mary Madelaine Peltier. He spent his life in the Indian trade and in the service of the British Indian Department; although not especially successful in trade, his Indian blood and connections made him of particular service to the government, especially in the years of warfare which began in 1812. His great influence with the Chippewa and Ottawa tribes was, of course, at the command of his government. He led this contingent in the descent upon Mackinac in July, 1812, and the fall of that post proved a powerful factor in the fall of Detroit the following month. Until the close of the war the British government kept Askin at Mackinac, where his influence over the Indians could be exercised to the fullest advantage. He died at Amherstburg about the close of the year 1819.

Catherine, the eldest daughter, married in 1778, at the age of fifteen, Captain Samuel Robertson, skipper of a sailing-vessel on the upper lakes. He died in 1782 and in 1785 Mrs. Robertson married (second) Robert Hamilton, who some years later located at the foot of the Niagara portage and became the founder of Queenston. William, a younger brother of Samuel Robertson, later became a leading merchant of Detroit and Canada, and he figures prominently in the Askin Papers. Robert Hamilton was a man of great shrewdness, who influenced powerfully all who came in contact with him. He became one of the most influential men of Upper Canada, and one of the wealthiest in all Canada. Madelaine, youngest of the mixed-blood children, became the wife of Robert Richardson, a surgeon in Simcoe's Rangers. They had many children, one of whom was Major John Richardson, who spent many years in the British army, subsequently distinguished himself as one of Canada's foremost authors, and finally died in poverty in New York, whither he had gone in the vain hope of finding a better literary market than Canada afforded.

Therese, eldest of the children of John and Mrs. Askin, married Thomas McKee, son of Colonel Alexander McKee of the Indian Department, who was one of the foremost figures on the British side in the western theater during the Revolutionary War and long one of the most influential men in western Canada. The career of Thomas McKee was ruined by drunkenness, and although he attained the rank of captain in the Sixtieth Regiment, the marriage of Therese Askin proved more unfortunate, probably, than that of any of her brothers and sisters. Archange, the second child of Mrs. Askin, married Captain David Meredith of the Royal Artillery Regiment. He was soon called back to England, and her charming and vivacious letters to her parents in Detroit serve to vivify many pages of the volumes that follow. Her husband rose to the rank of lieutenant colonel and died at Halifax in March, 1809, this station being the nearest approach to their dream of some day returning to the vicinity of Mrs. Meredith's parents. Mrs. Meredith outlived her husband more than half a century, dying at Bruges, Belgium, in the autumn of 1866.

Of all Askin's children, only Adelaide married an American. In 1802 she became the wife of Elijah Brush, one of the first American lawyers of Detroit. When Askin removed from Detroit in the spring of 1802, Brush became the occupant of his home, which had been the ancestral home of Mrs. Askin, and several years later he bought the property. The names Brush Street and Brush farm, the latter still a familiar designation in Detroit, have served to identify permanently Brush's ownership of the property. At the outbreak of war in 1812 he was in command of the Michigan territorial militia. Following the surrender of the army by General Hull, Brush was paroled and, in February, 1813, departed for Ohio, leaving his wife and children to such protection as Askin could afford them. He died before the termination of his exile, and his family never saw him again.

BURTON HISTORICAL RECORDS

Charles Askin, next younger than Adelaide, was trained to a mercantile career, but when the War of 1812 began he was developing a farm in western Canada. He served throughout the war with some distinction and at its close returned to the parental home, apparently to assume charge of his father's estate. Until his death over half a century later he resided at Windsor, holding various local offices of public trust and enjoying the reputation of being one of the foremost citizens of his community. He married Monique Jacob, daughter of George Jacob, who was a resident of Detroit shortly after the Revolution, and who, remaining a British subject, served as a captain of militia in the War of 1812. James, the second youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Askin, also served through the war with the rank of captain. He married Frances Godet dit Marentette, descendant of an early Detroit family, and reared a large family, some of whose members have died only in recent years. Alexander, the youngest son, was a lieutenant during the war and died a few years later. Ellen Phyllis, the youngest daughter, married Richard Pattinson of Sandwich, who was for many years prominent in the Indian trade. He accompanied the retreating British army in its flight before General Harrison in the autumn of 1813, and Mrs. Pattinson died en route, at the home of George Jacob on the Thames River.

Of the private papers kept by Askin during his long career, only a portion is known to be in existence. In the Burton Historical Collection are nineteen bound volumes of general correspondence, almost all of which bears date subsequent to 1780. There are also numerous volumes of business records, which likewise pertain to the latter half of Askin's career. The records of his activities at Mackinac and Albany, which would doubtless be no less interesting than those originating after his removal to Detroit, have for the most part, vanished utterly; one fortunate exception to this generalization is the single letter book from the Mackinac period that has survived the ravages of time. Its contents shed much interesting light on the commercial activities of the region concerned in the mid-period of the American Revolution. In recent years the Archives Department in Ottawa has obtained from a grandson of Askin a great mass of family papers, pertaining largely to Charles Askin's career and activities. Included in it, however, is a considerable quantity of papers relating to John Askin and to certain of his contemporaries, and as many of these as seemed pertinent to our present editorial task have been copied for reproduction. It is possible, of course, that other of John Askin's papers are still preserved and will ultimately come into public knowledge and possession; if such be the case their historical exploitation must be the task of some future editor, since our various endeavors to resurrect such papers have produced only negative results.

The volume now printed comprises selections from the John Askin Papers covering the period from 1747 to 1795 inclusive. Prior to the year 1778, however, it includes but a few scattering documents. It is the present expectation that a second volume, containing selections of the more important papers pertaining to the period 1796-1815, will be published in the near future, and the present Introduction is designed to serve for both volumes, which will comprise a single group of source material illustrating the early history of the Northwest and Detroit.

To some extent every piece of historical editing presents problems peculiar to itself, to whose solution the editor devotes whatever measure of scholarly skill and judgment he may command. A statement of certain problems encountered in the editing of the Askin Papers, together with the solution hit upon, may prove advantageous to the reader who shall have occasion to consult the volumes. In general the printed document aims to present a scrupulously accurate copy of the original manuscript. But since it is impossible to represent in print numerous idiosyncracies of longhand manuscripts, the Editor has steadily endeavored to reproduce the evident intent of the writer, but to escape a slavish adherence to mere pedanticism. In the matter of punctuation, for example, it becomes frequently a matter for editorial interpretation whether a given mark of the penman shall be printed as a comma or as a period. Such interpretation we have not hesitated to supply. Of similar import, the penman of a century ago often distributed dashes in liberal measure across his page, in a fashion which finds no precise equivalent in modern typography. We have made no pretense of reproducing these except in cases where their representation has some discoverable significance; and where the penman's dash has seemed to signify the equivalent of the comma or period as employed in modern printing, we have reproduced it as such. So too with words underscored in the manuscripts. The equivalent in print of this usage is the employment of italics, and all publishing houses have established rules governing the resort to such usage. But the underscoring of the penman, like his employment of dashes, commonly possesses no discoverable significance, and when such significance has seemed lacking we have not transferred the underscoring into print.

In the matter of footnote annotation some explanation of the editorial policy seems also in order. Few American cities can vie with Detroit in the fullness of the records available for the reconstruction of their remoter past. The fact that Detroit has done comparatively little, as yet, in the way of printing and utilizing these records, but serves to render the opportunity for their present and future exploitation the greater. In initiating the Burton Historical Records, therefore, it seems desirable to provide, where possible, somewhat full biographical information concerning the individuals who figure in the documents, and this the Editor has undertaken to do. Probably few readers will ever realize how greatly this conception of the editorial task has served to increase its arduousness. A footnote which may be read in the fraction of a minute may have cost (and frequently has) many hours of toil to prepare. Frequently, too, with the acquirement of additional pertinent information, it has been revised again and again before reaching the form it finally assumes in print. Since the Editor is not omniscient, but must rely upon such sources of information as are open to him, it is not to be expected that these biographical sketches are free from error, or that they are insusceptible to future elaboration. For both the reasons here suggested, care has been taken to supply, in almost every case, references to the sources from which the note has been drawn.

The occasion is opportune, in this connection, to pay a much-deserved tribute to the memory of an earlier worker in the Detroit historical garden, whose fame remains unsung. Father Christian Denissen, a parish priest of Detroit, labored assiduously for many years to compile a genealogical record of the Catholic families of early Detroit. It was his ambition to publish the result of his labors, but when, in 1911, death stayed his hand, the cost of publishing the vast compilation of data he had brought together far exceeded the comparatively modest estate he had been able to leave for the purpose. The Denissen genealogies, therefore, still exist only in manuscript, and there seems no present prospect that the dream of their compiler with respect to their publication will ever be realized. Yet they constitute a well-nigh indispensable source of information for all who would delve in the early history of Detroit. In view of the remote prospect of their publication in extenso, it has seemed wise to incorporate in the footnotes to the present volume as much of the genealogical data accumulated by Father Denissen as the circumstances of the case permit. We have also brought into the footnotes such additional information procured from other sources as we have been able to find. Aside from the general historical value which may attach to these biographical sketches, they should possess a peculiar interest to the many thousand present-day citizens of Detroit who are the direct descendants of those who resided here in the French and British periods. This consideration, among others, has been responsible for the large amount of effort (and of space in the volume) devoted to annotating the documents.

It seems advisable to inform the reader concerning a problem of peculiar difficulty which has been encountered in the preparation of these footnotes. The correct spelling of the proper names of the residents of French Detroit frequently presents a puzzle whose solution drives the Editor to despair. Perhaps the simplest aspect of this puzzle has to do with the given names: Should Marie Anne, for example, be written thus, or according to one of the numerous variants which appear in the parish vital records? The priests themselves were not troubled by any urge after consistency, for it is a common occurrence to find the name of a given individual written several different ways in the Ste. Anne's and Assumption church records. The same is true of the surnames: such well-known Detroit names as Campau, Cicotte, Godfroy, Gamelin, and Tremblay are recorded with numerous variant spellings. On occasion, the priest in writing up his baptismal entry, spelled the name of a godfather other than the godfather himself signed it immediately below. Nor can it be said that the signatures themselves are conclusive authority, for it was a frequent practice for members of the same family to spell their inherited surname differently.

To add to the perplexity of the Editor, the residents of French Detroit commonly possessed, in addition to the inherited surname, a nickname; more rarely a citizen might possess two nicknames; and frequently he was better known by his nickname than by his inherited name. This practice finds ancient and respectable precedent in the act of Christ in ordaining his twelve disciples: Finding two Simons in the group, he surnamed one of them Peter; and this example the residents of French Detroit imitated with appalling zeal. For illustrations of this generalization, the reader is referred to almost any biographical footnote in the volume. To contemporaries, who enjoyed first-hand knowledge of their neighbors, the custom presented, apparently, no particular difficulty; to the investigator of a distant generation the case is quite otherwise. In annotating the documents which follow, we have labored manfully to spell the proper names correctly, giving highest authority, ordinarily, to the individual's own usage where it has been possible to determine this; but to achieve entire consistency has proved impossible, and our rendition of an individual's name does not imply that some variant spelling of it may not be equally permissible.

It remains to acknowledge my indebtedness to friends and fellow-workers who have aided in various ways the prosecution of the editorial task. Dr. Arthur G. Doughty, chief of the Dominion Archives, granted the unrestricted privilege of examining and copying the Askin manuscripts under his custody, and his obliging corps of assistants did everything in their power to facilitate the task. Mr. George McDonald of Windsor and Mr. Clarence M. Burton and Rev. George Paré of Detroit have responded freely to levies upon their store of local historical knowledge, while Mrs. L. Oughtred Woltz, archivist of the Burton Historical Collection, in addition to assistance of like nature, has supplied the English translations of the French documents printed. To my immediate editorial helpers, Mrs. Clara N. DeSainz, Mrs. Winifred Moseman, and Miss Louise Rau, I am under a heavier debt of obligation for intelligent assistance cheerfully rendered than any mere formal acknowledgment can compensate. Upon Miss Rau, in particular, has been devolved the task of seeing the copy through the press and supplying the extensive Index. From Miss Gracie Krum, Librarian in Charge of the Burton Historical Collection, as from the Board of Commissioners of the Detroit Public Library, and Mr. Adam Strohm, Librarian, I have at all times received sympathetic co-operation and support.

CHARLES MARQUIS de BEAUHARNOIS,¹ Commander of the royal and military order of St. Louis, Commodore of the royal fleet, Governor and Lieutenant General for the King in New France and the province of Louisiana;

GILLES HOCQUART,² Knight, King's Councilor, Comptroller of Justice, Police and Finance in the said countries.

On the petition presented to us by Eustache Gamelin,³ an inhabitant of the Straits of Lake Erie, praying that we ¹ Charles de la Baische, Marquis de Beauharnois, was governor of Canada from August, 1726, to Sept. 19, 1747. He was born about the year 1670 and is supposed to have been a natural son of Louis XIV. He was trained for the navy, and after his term as governor of New France had expired he returned to France and became lieutenant general of the naval forces, but died in June, 1749. A later descendant of the family was the Empress Josephine's first husband. See sketch in Wisconsin Historical Collections, XVII, 6-7.

would grant and concede to him a tract of land situated on the said Straits, of two arpents in front by forty in depth, joining on the west-south-west side the suburbs of Fort Pontchartrain, bounded by a line running north-north-west and south-south-east, and on the other side towards the east-north-east the land of Jean Marie Barrois, in front by the Straits of Lake Erie, and in rear by a line running east-north-east and west-south-west, joining also the unconceded lands;

We, in virtue of the power intrusted to us jointly by His Majesty, have given, granted and conceded, and do give, grant and concede under the title of cens et rentes, from henceforth and forever, unto the said Eustache Gamelin, for himself, his heirs and assigns hereafter, a concession of land lying and being on the Straits of Lake Erie, containing two arpents⁴ in front by forty in depth, bounded by and on the rhumb lines hereinabove designated, to be enjoyed, held and disposed of by the said Gamelin, his heirs and assigns, subject to the charges, clauses and conditions hereinafter mentioned, to wit: That the said Eustache Gamelin, his heirs and assigns, shall be held to carry their grain to be ground at the common mill, when one shall have been erected, on pain of the confiscation of the said grain and of an arbitrary fine; that he shall keep, or cause to be kept thereon house and home within one year at the latest;

a native of St. Aubin, diocese of Blois, France, who became a surgeon and migrated to Canada, where in 1663 he married Margaret Crevier, a native of the diocese of La Rochelle and widow of James Fournier. Their grandson, Laurence Eustache Gamelin, born in 1704, married in 1740 Mary Joseph Dudevoir dit Lachine, born in 1721, daughter of Claude Dudevoir dit Lachine and Barbara Cardinal. Laurence Gamelin engaged in the Indian trade and was living at Detroit as early as 1741. In 1755 he was captain of militia; he was buried at Detroit, March 7, 1771. Mary Joseph Dudevoir was buried, Jan. 10, 1803. They reared a large family of children. Information adapted from Father Christian Denissen's manuscript compilation of Detroit genealogies in the Burton Hist. Coll.

that he shall open the clearings of his neighbors as they may require it; that he shall cultivate the said land, and leave therein the roadways which shall be found necessary for the public use; that he shall make the division fences as the land shall become settled; that he shall pay each and every year to the receiver of His Majesty's domain in this country, or to the clerk of the said receiver residing at Detroit, one sol of cens for each arpent in front and twenty sols of rente for every twenty arpents in superficies, making for the said two arpents in front by forty in depth two sols of cens and four livres of rente, and moreover half a bushel of wheat for the said two arpents in front, the whole payable every year on the festival day of St. Martin, the first year whereof shall become due on the eleventh day of November, 1748, and thus continue from year to year, the said cens bearing profit of lods et ventes,⁵ on pain of loss and fine, and all other royal and seigniorial rights, when the same become due, agreeable to the Custom of the Provostship and Viscounty of Paris;⁶ however, it shall be at the option of the said Gamelin to pay the said four livres of rente and two sols of cens in furs at Detroit prices until a current money shall have been established; reserving in the King's name on the said habitation all the timber which His Majesty may require for the building of ships and such forts as he may hereafter erect, as well as the ownership of the mines, ores and minerals if any be found within the extent of the said concession; and the said Gamelin, his heirs and assigns, shall

⁵ Feudal grants were made either en roture or en fief. Lands granted en roture were town lots or small farms, as distinguished from large tracts, which were granted en fief. All the feudal grants at Detroit were made en roture. By virtue of an edict of March 20, 1673, the King had the right to an alienation fine, called lods et ventes (privilege of consent and sale) upon any sale or exchange of lands granted by the Crown en roture, which were made by a title called lease for cens or cens et rentes. This alienation fine amounted to one-twelfth of the value of the land, but in practice one-fourth of the fine was commonly remitted.

⁶ Feudal law was extremely complex, so much so that the term "system," as applied to the feudal régime, is largely a misnomer. The Custom of Paris was a codification of feudal law and practice for the district centering around Paris, first drawn up in 1510 and subsequently revised in 1579-80. By a decree of 1664 Louis XIV established the Custom of Paris as the basic law of New France. Thereby the feudal system, already decaying in France, obtained a fresh lease of life in the New World. The Custom of Paris continued to operate at such places as Detroit, Green Bay, and Prairie du Chien—in fact wherever French population and customs were found—until well into the nineteenth century.

WE, COMMANDANT for the King at Detroit:

On the petition presented to us by Jacques Pilet,⁷ proprietor of the tract of land above conceded by title and otherwise, to grant to him a continuation of forty arpents in depth at the rear of the said tract, by virtue of the power intrusted to us by the [Marquis de Vaudreuil,⁸ Governor and Lieutenant] General, do give and grant unto the said Pilet the said continuation of two arpents in breadth by forty in depth, corresponding in alignment, quit rents, mutation fines, rights and conditions with the above mentioned contract, the first payment whereof shall become due on the eleventh of November, one thousand seven hundred and fifty-nine. Moreover, between the former concession and the said continuation there shall be allowed a space of at least 36 feet in width for a public road for such inhabitants as shall receive continuations.

Done at Detroit, March 15, 1759.

(Signed) Picoté de Bellestre⁹

⁷ No record of Jacques Pilet's career has been found. Presumably he is the individual who, according to Lieut. George McDougall, lived on Belle Isle for several years prior to the British conquest, and who is also reported to have been a particular friend of Pontiac. See Michigan Pioneer and Historical Society Collections, VIII, 356 and X, 240.

BEFORE the undersigned royal notary of Detroit there resident, appeared Jacques Campau,¹⁰ senior, habitant, living at Detroit, in the house of Desmouchelle, on Ste. Anne Street, which house he names as his dwelling place for the execution of the contents of these presents, who, because of the kindness he at all times has received from his son, Louis Campau,¹¹ and especially during his severe illness of recent years, the expenses of which the said Louis Campau has furnished to the extent that his own domestic affairs would permit, has conveyed and relinquished to the said son, who accepts the

¹⁰ Jacques Campau was a grandson of Leonard Campau and his wife, Frances Mauger, who were natives and residents of France. Their son Etienne, born in 1638, migrated to Canada, where he married at Montreal, Nov. 26, 1663, Catherine Paulo, a native of La Rochelle. Etienne Campau was a mason by trade and resided at Ville Marie, Montreal. To him and Catherine Paulo were born numerous children, descendants of some of whom figure prominently in the history of Detroit. Their ninth child was Jacques Campau, who was born at Montreal, May 31, 1677, and married there on Dec. 1, 1699, Cecilia Catin, daughter of Henry Catin and Jane Brossard. In the autumn of 1708 he removed with his family to Detroit, where in 1734 he obtained from the government the grant of land lying between Mt. Elliott and Beaufait avenues, now known as Private Claim 18, or the Meldrum farm. He followed the trade of toolsmith. He was buried May 14, 1751. He was the father of a large family. ¹¹ Jean Louis Campau, the eldest child of Jacques Campau and Cecilia Catin, was born at Montreal, Aug. 26, 1702. He married at Detroit, Aug. 26, 1724, Mary Louisa Robert, widow of Jean Francis Peltier and daughter of Pierre Robert and Angelica Ptolomée, who was born at Lachine, Dec. 15, 1698. They reared a large family of children, one of whom is noted in the present document. Jean Louis Campau obtained a grant of land east of the fort, July 5, 1734, since known as Private Claim 733, or the Chêne farm, extending eastward from Chene Street toward Joseph Campau Street. same by this act, a lot, situated on Ste. Anne Street, within the fort of Detroit, with a frontage of twenty feet on the said street, between Mr. Barthe¹² and Mr. Des Ruisseaux¹³ admitting that he has already given the said lot verbally several years ago, with no reservation on his part, for the said grantee, his heirs and assigns, to enjoy and dispose of the said lot in full ownership and forever, throughout its whole extent of length and breadth with no exception

12. Charles Andrew Barthe of Detroit, father-in-law of John Askin and of Alexander Grant. The founder of the Barthe family in America was Theophile Barthe, a native of Gascony, born in 1695, who migrated to Canada, where he held the title of "gunsmith to the King." On March 18, 1721, he married at Montreal, Margaret Charlotte Alavoine, whose father, Charles Alavoine, was captain of the militia. We have not learned when the family moved west to Detroit, but Charles Andrew, eldest son of Theophile and Margaret Barthe, born at Montreal, Feb. 22, 1722, married at Detroit, April 24, 1747, Mary Therese Campau, a native of this place; and Pierre, another son of Theophile and Margaret Barthe, married here on March 3, 1760, Mary Charlotte Chapoton, also a native of the place. Pierre Barthe was a gunsmith, and lived on St. Louis Street. Charles Andrew is referred to in 1756 as "Arquebusier" (gunsmith) of the post and as "Grand Voye" (chief overseer of roads) of the post and its dependencies. Prior to 1763 he bought from Eustache Gamelin the farm known later as Private Claim 1, or the Brush farm. Both Charles and Pierre Barthe established wide-flung family connections, and many present-day Detroit families trace connection with them. To Charles and Mary Barthe twelve children were born between the years 1748 and 1765. Six died in infancy; among the others who are mentioned in these letters were Marie Archange (wife of John Askin), Therese (wife of Commodore Alexander Grant), Jean Baptiste, and Louis Theophile (or Louison). Probably Lavoine Barthe was also a son of Charles and Mary, but his identity has not been established. Charles Andrew Barthe died at Detroit, March 14, 1786, and was buried two days later. Denissen, op. cit.

13. Julius Trotier, born at Ige, in Perche, France, in 1590, married Catherine Loyseau. He migrated to Canada about the year 1645 and was buried at Three Rivers, May 10, 1655. The couple had two children, Julian Trotier, born in France in 1636, and Antoine Trotier, Sieur Des Ruisseaux, also born in France. Antoine Trotier married at Three Rivers, Sept. 2, 1663, Catherine Lefebvre, a native of that place. She was buried at Batiscan, Nov. 20, 1705; he was buried there, Dec. 6, 1706.

Of the children of Antoine Trotier and Catherine Lefebvre several lived and died in Lower Canada. One daughter, Catherine Trotier dit Beaubien, born in 1676, married at Batiscan, May 3, 1696, Jean Cuillerier, a native of Montreal. He died before 1712 and Catherine married (second) François Picoté de Bellestre, widower of Ann Frances Bouthier and son of Pierre Picoté de Bellestre and Mary Pars. François Picoté de Bellestre was an army officer, and was assigned to Fort Ponchartrain at Detroit, when his brother-in-law, Alphonse de Tonty, was commandant here. He was buried here, Oct. 9, 1729.

One of his wife's brothers was Alexis Trotier dit Des Ruisseaux, the subject of the present sketch. He was born at Champlain, Oct. 21, 1688, and married at Detroit, Jan. 6, 1735, Mary Louisa Roy. She was buried, Dec. 3, 1735, and Alexis married (second) Mary Catherine Godfroy, daughter of Jacques Godfroy de Mauboeuf and Mary St. Onge dit Chêne, Dec. 30, 1739. He was the first trustee of Ste. Anne's Church, and the first captain of the local militia. He was buried, June 5, 1769; Mary Catherine Godfroy was buried under the church, July 21, 1777. They had four children, all of whom died in infancy. Denissen, op. cit.

whatever by the said grantor, who further promises to have these presents ratified by his children for the greater security of the grantee and his assigns by having them consent to the requisite renunciations so that no future trouble because of them may occur for any one who shall acquire title to the said lot; and at the moment of the writing of these presents has appeared in person, the said grantee, Louis Campau, habitant, living at the said Detroit, in his house situated on Ste. Anne Street, which house he names as his dwelling place for the execution of the contents hereinafter expressed, with Marie Robert, his wife, whom he authorizes as such for the purpose of what follows, who have declared in favor of the marriage of their daughter, Therese Campau,¹⁴ with André Barthe, and have given and do give the said lot without reserve to the said young lady, their daughter, accepting the same for the said gentleman, her husband, to belong to her and to remain her own possession and that of her heirs to enjoy and dispose of forever and taking it in advance as her inheritance, the said lot being valued at the sum of two hundred and fifty livres, although there has been no mention of this sum in the marriage contract of the said Mr. and Mrs. Barthe, but nevertheless, the present grant will be worth that sum without any repeal whatever and anything else to the contrary notwithstanding. Moreover, the said Mr. and Mrs. Campau promise to indemnify the said Mr. Barthe in case he should be evicted from the said lot, assuring to him its possession under bond and mortgage of all their present and future property, for their &c., and the said cessions and grants above mentioned will not be subject to registration seeing that the conveyance which the said Jacques Campau has made to his son of the said lot has no other motive than to reimburse his son for a part of the sum paid for his illness. Promising &c., renouncing &c., obliging &c. Executed at Detroit in the office of the said notary, in the afternoon of June the third, one thousand seven hundred and fifty, in the presence of Mr. Alexis Des Ruisseaux and ¹⁴ Mary Therese Campau, the third child of Jean Louis Campau and Mary Louisa Robert, was born at Detroit, Feb. 7, 1729. She married Charles Andrew Barthe, April 24, 1747, and was buried June 13, 1765. For further data concerning her see ante, 34.

And after the execution of these presents, André Barthe and Louis Campau have arranged between them the business which they have transacted from the past until this day, because of which the said Mr. Barthe acknowledges to have received from Mr. Louis Campau in advance of inheritance and claims which may belong to the said Therese Campau, wife of Mr. Barthe, the sum of twelve hundred livres including the price of the lot ceded to her by the annexed contract, which sum of twelve hundred livres the

Jean Cicotte, the immediate progenitor of the Detroit line, was born at Montreal, March 22, 1666, and married at Boucherville, March 20, 1697, Magdelene Lamoreux, a native of Montreal, daughter of Louis Lamoreux and Frances Boivin. Their second son, Zacharias Cicotte, born in 1708, married at Detroit, Jan. 8, 1736, Mary Angelica Godfroy, who was born at Detroit, Nov. 21, 1720, daughter of Jacques Godfroy de Mauboeuf and Mary St. Onge dit Chêne. They had ten children in the following years, eight of whom died in infancy. For many years Zacharias Cicotte lived in the fort and engaged in trade. On April 1, 1750, he obtained a grant of land 3 arpents by 40 west of the fort now known as Private Claim 726, extending westward from Wabash Street to the alley between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets. In 1762 he settled on this farm and lived here until his death. He was buried Aug. 11, 1775; Angelica Godfroy was buried, Dec. 28, 1791. Denissen, op. cit.

¹⁶ The founder of the American line of Bondy was Thomas Douaire de Bondy, born in France in 1636, who married at Quebec, July 26, 1656, Margaret de Chavigny, daughter of Francis de Chavigny and Eleonora de Grandmaison. Thomas Bondy was drowned near Isle of Orleans in 1667. His eldest son, Jacques Douaire de Bondy, born at Quebec, Feb. 21, 1660, in 1697 married Magdelene Gatineau dit Duplessis. Their son Joseph was the witness who signed the present document. He was born at Montreal, Feb. 27, 1700. He came to Detroit prior to 1733 and married here Mary Ann Cecilia Campau, daughter of Jacques Campau and Cecilia Catin. In 1748 Bondy returned to Verchères, Quebec, where he was buried April 6, 1760. The couple had seven children born at Detroit prior to 1748, and at least one born after the removal to Verchères. Denissen, op. cit.

was appointed sub-intendant and royal notary of Fort Ponchartrain. He was a man of education and good sense, and so well did he discharge his official duties, that after the English conquest the conquerors found it desirable to continue him in the office of notary. In the French period, "No matter of local importance was taken up and discussed without the approval of Navarre. He saw that the taxes were levied and collected. He collected the tithes and church dues. He listened to the complaints of citizens against the increase of taxes or the unjust treatment of citizens by the officers. He was the judge between quarreling citizens, and it was by his judgment that delinquents were forced to pay their just debts or become bankrupt." C. M. Burton, City of Detroit, Michigan, 1701-1922 (Chicago, 1922), I, 166. Navarre married, on Feb. 10, 1734, Mary Lootman dit Barrois, who was born in 1719, daughter of Francis Lootman dit Barrois and Mary Ann Sauvage. In 1747 he received from the government a grant of land west of the fort since known as Private Claim 22 or the Woodbridge farm, whose approximate boundaries are Tenth and Eleventh streets. On the advent of the British in 1760 Navarre's position as sub-intendant disappeared but he retained his appointment as notary. About the year 1762, he located on his farm, where he lived until death. He was buried, Nov. 24, 1791; Mary Lootman dit Barrois was buried, Dec. 20, 1799. The Navarre line has been distinguished through several centuries for the ability of its members. Among the descendants of Robert Navarre may be mentioned the Anthon brothers of New York (scholar, jurist, and preacher) and more recently, Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish. Denissen, op. cit.

*Translation*¹⁸

First BEFORE the undersigned royal notary, Narduplicate. varre of Detroit, and there resident, acting as N. subdelegate of the Intendant of New France at the said place, appeared Mrs. Agathe Casse, widow of Nicolas Campau,¹⁹ in his lifetime a resident of Detroit, the natural guardian of the minor children of herself and the late Mr. Campau, who—as above named—following the decree in council of the relatives of the said minor children, by act of the sixth day of May of the present year, as ratified and approved by us on that day, giving authority to the said lady now present to sell without legal action or as otherwise decided to the highest bidder, the land hereinafter described and other things separately, which decree of council of relatives is affixed to the original of these presents, in the presence of Jean Baptiste Campau,²⁰ paternal uncle of said minor children, and of Jean Baptiste Campau formerly called Claude Campau,²¹ uncle of said minor children, named in the above mentioned decree of council of relatives to assist at the drawing of these presents—has sold and adjudged to Charles André Barthe, her nephew, gunsmith, living now at Detroit, purchasing for himself and his heirs and assigns after three announcements and publications made by the public crier of the said place, Bazile Marois,²² at the church door on three holy days and Sundays after parish mass, beginning on the sixth day of the present month, up to and including Sunday, the twenty-seventh of this same month, a tract of land of two arpents front by forty in depth with a small house upon the same, consisting of arable land, forest and fencing, situated on the north side of the River Detroit, the said two arpents fronting on the said river, having uncaded land in the rear, adjoining land of Jean Le Duc²³ on the east-north-east, and on the other side, the west-south-west, the two arpents of land which the said widow now present formerly sold to the said Mr. Barthe by deed dated the fifth of December, one thousand seven hun-

¹⁹ Nicolas Campau dit Niagara, son of Jacques Campau and Cecilia Catin, was born at the Niagara portage in July, 1710, from which circumstance his nickname was acquired. He married at Detroit, Sept. 4, 1737, Agathe Casse dit St. Aubin, daughter of Jean Casse dit St. Aubin and Mary Louisa Gaultier. He succeeded his father on the farm, Private Claim 18, and was buried at Detroit, Dec. 16, 1756. Agathe Casse was buried, May 12, 1808. They were the parents of twelve children, five of whom died before their father. Denissen, op. cit.

²¹ Claude Campau, son of Jacques Campau and Cecilia Catin, was born at Montreal, Aug. 25, 1715, and married at Detroit, Jan. 22, 1742, Catherine Casse dit St. Aubin, daughter of Jean Casse dit St. Aubin and Mary Louisa Gaultier. Claude Campau was buried at Detroit, May 31, 1787. Catherine Casse dit St. Aubin was buried March 7, 1805. No record of children born to them has been found. Denissen, op. cit.

The eldest child of Jean was the Jean Baptiste of the present document. He was born at Montreal, Dec. 12, 1684. On June 9, 1721, he married there Catherine Descary, daughter of Michael Descary and Mary Cuillerier. He had been in Detroit as early as 1710, and about the year 1732 he settled here with his family. Five children had been born at Montreal and four more were born after the removal to Detroit. Jean Le Duc was buried at Sandwich, April 24, 1768. Catherine Descary was buried at Detroit, April 15, 1761. Denissen, op. cit.

dred and fifty-seven, executed before the notary undersigned, of which he has the original, the said two arpents of land being subject to royal quit-rents, charged with the same for His Majesty's revenue, of four livres two sols and one half minot of corn annually, which the said lady vendor promises to pay from the past up to the eleventh of November, one thousand seven hundred and fifty-eight, the said lady certifying that she has never made any contract for the said land and promising to guarantee the said purchaser against all debts, evictions, mortgages and hindrances whatsoever arising from her own deeds and actions and to place in the hands of the said purchaser the contract of cession of the said land which her late husband had in his possession before their marriage as the said Mr. Barthe knows and is satisfied with the said tract of land as he has seen it, for his enjoyment forever and full rights of ownership, to commence from the day of the feast of St. Michael next.

This sale is made on the conditions above set forth of cens et rentes, seigniorial or royal rights and ground service according to the usage and custom of the country, to which the said purchaser agrees, and furthermore for the sum of three thousand livres which the said widow acknowledges and confesses to have received from the said Mr. Barthe in good, choice peltries, valued at the present Detroit price and currency, holding him acquitted of this payment and of all else, in consequence of which and of all herein before set forth and of the decree in council of relatives, and by virtue of the authority given to her for that effect, has conveyed to the said purchaser, his heirs and assigns, all rights of possession belonging to her and her heirs, that he may be seized and vested therewith, placed and received in good and sufficient possession and seizin, by which and because of which it may belong to him by virtue of these presents, constituting for that purpose the bearer hereof as her attorney in fact by giving to him power thereof.

For thus &c., and for the execution of these presents and conditions she has chosen, without repeal, her home in her own house to which place &c., promising &c., obliging &c., renouncing &c., duly executed at Detroit in the office of ²⁴ The decree in council and the notes here alluded to are no longer preserved with the document.

²⁵ Robert Rogers was famous at this time by reason of his exploits as a leader of rangers in the French and Indian War. It was Rogers to whom was assigned the hazardous service of taking over Detroit and the other western posts from the French upon the surrender of Canada in 1760. He later bore a notable part in the defense of Detroit against Pontiac in 1763, and still later (1766-67) served as governor of Mackinac and dependencies. Rogers' failures as administrator and business man were no less marked than was his success as a partisan leader. The fiasco with Askin, of which this document preserves record, was merely one incident in a long list of financial disasters. The best available biography of Rogers is by Allan Nevins, Ponteach or the Savages of America. A Tragedy by Robert Rogers With an Introduction and a Biography of the Author (Chicago, 1914). Received at Detroit, Feb. 28, 1773, of Badishon Labadie,²⁶ three minots of wheat and twenty-four livres twelve sols in cash, in consideration of the permission granted to him to cultivate a tract of land four arpents in front by forty in depth below the village of the Potawatomi,²⁷ and another

The second son of this couple, Anthony Louis Descomps dît Labadie, was born at Montreal in 1730 and married at Detroit, Feb. 26, 1759, Angelica Campau, daughter of Nicolas Campau dît Niagara and Agathe Casse dît St. Aubin. She died in December, 1767, leaving several children. Thereafter for many years, the widower consorted with Marie, a Chippewa woman. In Oct., 1784, he married Charlotte Barthe, widow of Louis Réaume and daughter of Pierre and Mary Chapoton Barthe. He was buried at Sandwich, Dec. 17, 1807; Charlotte Barthe was buried at Detroit, Feb. 11, 1849.

By his several unions Anthony Labadie became the father of twenty-three children, the mother of eight of them being Marie, the Chippewa woman. These children are all designated as Labadie dît Badichon, evidently because the appellation Badichon had in some way become attached to the father, Anthony Labadie; possibly it was given him by the kinsmen of Marie. Labadie was a man of considerable wealth, owning two mills, besides lands and slaves and other property. By his will he bequeathed two of his slaves, his horsemill, and other property to his widow. The widespread ramifications of the Labadie family are in part suggested in this note, compiled from data given by Denissen, op. cit.; notes on the Labadie family printed in Essex Hist. Soc., Papers and Addresses, I, 38-55 and C. M. Burton, "The Labadie Family in Detroit," ms. in Burton Hist. Coll.

²⁷ The Potawatomi village and cemetery were west of the enclosed town of Detroit, in the vicinity of Twenty-first and Twenty-fourth streets—land since known as Private Claim 20, or the Brevoort and Porter farms. In 1771, the tribe deeded the site to Robert Navarre, the younger, forever, "that he may cultivate the same, light a fire thereon, and take care of our dead." The natives' faith in Navarre's ability to preserve the burial place of their dead from desecration proved vain. Long since the cemetery was displaced by the demands of the growing city. It is stated that in 1867, in the course of grading Woodbridge Street, some twenty-five or thirty skeletons were uncovered. See Farmer, History of Detroit, 22, 50.

Received from George Anthon³⁰ the sum of three hundred and seventy-five livres, the amount of the mortgage herewith, also seventeen livres ten sols interest for eight months from October 1, 1772, to June 1, 1773. I therefore convey the said mortgage to the said Anthon and make over to him all my claim thereto, this 1st day of June, 1773.

Jacques Campau.³¹

1763. Francis Parkman, who has vividly described the scene, mistakenly characterizes Campau as "old" and "gray"; in fact, he was twenty-eight at the time and had been married but two years. Campau was an officer of the militia of the Northeast Coast of Detroit, and in 1770 he was Marguiller comptable (treasurer) of Ste. Anne's Church. He was buried Feb. 16, 1789. See C. M. Burton, City of Detroit, 1701-1922, II, 1363-66, and references in Burton Hist. Coll., passim.

32. Jean Baptiste Rivard was born at Grondines, Canada, Nov. 22, 1729, and married at Detroit, Feb. 15, 1762, Mary Catherine Yax, a native of Detroit, whose parents, Michael Yax and Catherine Herbinne, were Detroit's first German settlers. The founders of the Rivard family in America were two brothers, Nicolas Rivard dit Lavigne and Robert Rivard dit Loranger, who came from France to Canada about the middle of the seventeenth century and settled and died at Batiscan. Both became progenitors of families which were represented at Detroit in the eighteenth century and later. Jean Baptiste Rivard was a grandson of the elder of these brothers. In 1762 he obtained a concession of land at Grosse Pointe, now known as Private Claims 299 and 300, and this became his permanent home. He was buried at Detroit, June 23, 1805; his wife was buried Sept. 27, 1792. To them were born numerous children, who figure in the life of Detroit in succeeding generations. Denissen, op. cit.

33. Thomas Gage, born in 1721, entered the army as a lieutenant in 1741, and a dozen years later came to America with General Braddock's force as a lieutenant colonel. He led the advance of Braddock's army, and was wounded in the notable defeat of July 8, 1755. On the capture of Montreal by the British in 1760, Gage was appointed governor and his administration of the conquered city was marked by its mildness. He was made major general in 1761, lieutenant general in 1770, and general in 1782. From 1763 to 1772 he was commander-in-chief of the British forces in America, with headquarters at New York. In the last-named year he returned to England, coming back in 1774 as captain general and governor of Massachusetts. He was unable to stay the course of revolution, and, although again appointed commander-in-chief of the forces in America in August, 1775, he was superseded by General Howe a year later and in October, 1776, returned to England, where he died in 1787. In December, 1758, Gage married, in America, Margaret Kembal, daughter of Peter Kembal, president of the provincial council of New Jersey. To them five daughters and six sons were born. One son, born in 1777, was long an admiral in the British navy. See Dictionary of National Biography.

³⁴ John Vattas was made captain in the Tenth Regiment, May 5, 1760. He commanded the post of Mackinac in the interval between the commands of Captain George Turnbull and Major De Peyster, or about the years 1772 to 1774. On Jan. 13, 1776, he received the commission of major in the regiment. See British army lists.

his death she married (1751) François Louis Cardinal, royal notary in the closing years of the French period. See Wis. Hist. Colls., XVIII, 140 and 470. A son of the former marriage was Joseph Louis Ainse, born May 1, 1744, whose career is sketched post, 69. We are unable to identify the Mrs. Ainse here mentioned, but in view of her trading activities there is some reason for supposing her to be the Sarah Ainse whose career is noted post, 194.

38 Benjamin Lyon was for a time a partner of Askin at Mackinac. Apparently this place was his permanent residence, for in 1787 he signed a petition to Captain Scott in the capacity of merchant and trader at Mackinac, and as late as July 28, 1800, his name is recorded as a witness in the Register of marriages at that place.

39 Forrest Oakes came to Mackinac as early as 1769, and figures prominently in Dr. Daniel Morison's journal of misdeeds at that post. See ms. in Burton Hist. Coll. In May, 1780, and in April, 1781, he signed memorials of protest to General Haldimand as one of a group of traders to Grand Portage and the Northwest. Mich. Pio. Colls., IX, 550-52 and XIX, 620-21. ⁴¹ Jean Baptiste Cadotte, grandson of a follower of St. Lusson, who in 1671 at the Sault took possession of the Northwest for the king of France, passed his life in the western fur trade, with permanent headquarters at the Sault. He contracted a forest marriage with a Chippewa woman, whom in 1756 he formally married at Mackinac. According to Otto Fowle, Sault Ste. Marie and its Great Waterway (New York and London, 1925), 483, she was a relative of Matchekewis, the chief who plotted the massacre of 1763 at Mackinac. Cadotte's influence over the Chippewa of the Sault was all-powerful, and in 1763 he exerted it to restrain them from joining in the plot for the massacre of the garrison at Mackinac. A few years after this event, Cadotte entered into a partnership with Alexander Henry and others to exploit the Lake Superior copper deposits, but the enterprise did not prove economically feasible and was abandoned after a courageous trial. In 1796 Cadotte turned his property and business over to his two sons by his Chippewa wife, Jean Baptiste Jr. and Michel. These men were prominent in the Lake Superior fur trade (particularly of modern Wisconsin and Minnesota) for another generation. The elder Cadotte died in 1803. See Quaife, Wisconsin: Its History and Its People, I, 262-66.

⁵⁰ Henry Bostwick was among the first English traders to penetrate to Mackinac upon the downfall of New France. He was there at the time of the massacre in 1763, when he was captured by the Chippewa and carried to Montreal for ransom. He continued his activities in the Northwest trade, and in 1770 was a member of the company organized to exploit the Lake Superior copper mines, as described by Alexander Henry in his Travels and Adventures. In 1781 Bostwick was one of the signers of the treaty for the purchase of Mackinac Island from the natives. A son of Bostwick by an Ottawa woman was baptized at Mackinac in 1794; the boy, then about twelve years old, was also named Henry. Wis. Hist. Colls., XVIII, 238 and XIX, 100.

 troit and there resident, was present the undersigned,

Claude Landry dit St. André,⁵² living on his land southwest of the said Detroit, whither we went for the purpose following, viz: That the said Claude Landry declares that of his own free will and without constraint of any kind, also with the consent of his wife, Angélique Le Duc, who gives him authority to act for her in this respect, he has sold, released, ceded and given over, henceforth and forever, with right of disposal and guaranty from all troubles and hindrances whatsoever that may arise from any action of his own, a tract of land of three arpents in front by forty in depth located and situated on the south bank of the river of the said Detroit, adjoining land of Gignac⁵³ on the northeast and of LeVeillié on the southwest, and unceded lands in the rear, with all its dependencies, also a log house on the above land, sixteen by seventeen feet, the whole without reserve such as it is and as it extends on every side, to Benjamin Chaput, farmer, by these presents accepting the same for himself, his heirs and assigns, who also says that he knows the said land, having seen and examined it, and that he is content and satisfied therewith, the said land being the property of the said vendors, who took it back from Charles Bergante to whom Pierre Coquillard⁵⁴ had sold it, and by default of payment the said St. André has re-entered into possession of his land and he hereby binds himself to place all documents concerning the said land into the hands of the said purchasers, their heirs and assigns, that they may, by the sale thus made, have full use of the ⁵² Claude Landry dit St. André, born in France in 1707. He enlisted in the army and in this capacity came to Detroit with the rank of corporal. He married here, May 1, 1743, Angélique Le Duc, born in 1725, daughter of Jean Baptiste Le Duc and Catherine Descary. He was buried under the church at Detroit, July 16, 1777. The widow, Angélique, was buried Sept. 29, 1801. Denissen, op. cit.

said land forever, with power for its disposal, subject to the charges of cens et rentes, seigniorial rights and customary service, the said land being holden from the domain of the King, and a further charge of one hundred minots of wheat and sixty minots of corn which have been paid in full, and from which the said St. André and his wife give the said purchasers unconditional release, wherefore the said St. André has assigned to the said Benjamin Chaput, his heirs and assigns, all his rights of ownership, real or pretended, upon the said land, that the said purchasers may enter into good and peaceable possession and seizin hereby, and that it may belong to them by virtue of these presents, irrevocably substituting for that purpose the bearer hereof in his place, in giving to them his power hereby, &c., promising &c., obliging, &c., renouncing &c. Duly executed at Detroit, in the house of the said St. André, by us, the notary undersigned, on the afternoon of July the ninth, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-four, in the presence of Jacques Godfroy,⁵⁵ resident of Detroit, and of Jean La Rue,⁵⁶ living on the south

⁵⁵ The Godfroy family is one of ancient and wide renown in France. Jacques Godfroy, the first American ancestor of the person mentioned here, was born in a suburb of Rouen in 1653 and married at Three Rivers, Canada, June 30, 1683, Jane Brunet, daughter of Pierre Brunet and Mary Catherine Cottin. Their son, Jacques Godfroy de Mauboeuf, born at Three Rivers, July 17, 1684, about the year 1710, in partnership with Paul Chevalier and Joseph Senecal began to trade with Detroit. Godfroy married, about the year 1714, Mary St. Onge dit Chêne, a native of Montreal, and about the year 1719 removed his family to Detroit, where his son Jacques was born, Jan. 6, 1722. Jacques married (first) Frances L'Eveille, an Indian woman, who died before 1758. He then married (second) Louisa Clotilda Chapoton, daughter of Jean Chapoton and Mary Magdelene Estève. She was buried at Detroit, Sept. 18, 1762. Because of his services as interpreter to the Indians, Godfroy secured as wife the favorite daughter of a Miami chief. This occurred after the death of Louisa Chapoton, and it is uncertain whether the union was regarded as a legal marriage. Three children were born of the union with Louisa Chapoton. Godfroy was a trader and an officer in the militia. During the siege of 1763 he espoused the cause of the savages and for this (having previously taken an oath of allegiance to the British government) he was seized and sentenced to be hung for treason. He was pardoned by Colonel John Bradstreet, however, on condition that he conduct Captain Thomas Morris to the Illinois country. He faithfully discharged this duty, and was praised by Morris for his fidelity. Godfroy was buried at Detroit, June 29, 1795. His relatives were many and his family connections widespread. See Denissen, op. cit., and R. G. Thwaites (ed.), Early Western Travels, I, 302.

THE MACKINAC LETTER BOOK: 1778

FROM JOHN ASKIN¹ TO JOHN HAY² AT DETROIT,
APRIL 27, 1778

Our Lake is just now clear so that we are in hopes of seeing Mr Bennett³ in a Battoe of [or] Vessell very soon, which puts me in mind that it is time to begin my Letters.

I was favoured with your two kind letters dated in Oct^r & Jan^y last which I had no oppertunity of answering since. I'm under many obligations to you for the news & more so as I'm sure you can have but very little spare time, we are now very impatient to hear from your quarter as we think something new must have happened. I wish it was a peace In all probability the Spring news will reach us before you, if so I shall make you acquainted with all I learn.

We have had a severe winter & of course plenty of Fish, we expect many Indians in, to go down the Country, Major De Peyster sends Provisions to meet them in a few days.

² John (or Jehu) Hay, the last lieutenant-governor of Detroit, was a native of Chester, Pa., who in 1758 enlisted in the Sixtieth (Royal American) Regiment. In 1762 he was serving at Detroit as a lieutenant, and he continued here during the siege of 1763, and later was appointed commissary in the Indian Department. In 1776 he became deputy Indian agent and major of Detroit militia. He was on Hamilton's Vincennes expedition of 1778, and went with his chief to Williamsburg, Virginia, as prisoner of war. In October, 1780, he was paroled, and a year later was exchanged. In 1782 he was appointed lieutenant-governor of Detroit, but owing to the opposition of Colonel De Peyster, he did not assume the office until July, 1784. After a somewhat unhappy career as governor, he died August 2, 1785, and was buried with much ceremony in the governor's gardens. See Alexander Harrow, Log Book of the Gage and Rebecca, ms. copy in Burton Hist. Coll. In the summer of 1911 a coffin was unearthed by workmen excavating a sewer on Jefferson Avenue, which Mr. C. M. Burton became convinced, upon investigation, contained the mortal remains of Governor Hay. See Burton, City of Detroit, 1701-1922, I, 132-33; Denissen, op. cit.

In 1764 Hay married Marie Julie Réaume of Detroit, daughter of Hyacinthe Réaume and Agatha Lacelle, born Jan. 22, 1748. Of their several children Pierre Henry, Agatha, and John grew to maturity.

³ Lieutenant Thomas Bennett of the Eighth Regiment, who served under Colonel De Peyster as second in command at Mackinac. He was active in the military operations of the British in the Northwest during the Revolution. Among other services he led a detachment to Grand Portage at the head of Lake Superior in 1778, and another to the Illinois country in 1779. In 1786 he commanded for a short time the post of Detroit. Information concerning these several activities is contained in the Mich. Pio. Colls. and the Wis. Hist. Colls., passim.

I have changed my plann of settling at Detroit untill the war is over, indeed in the present Situation of affairs, it's hard to undertake anything.

I dont remember if I mentioned to you that I had a Daughter came up from Montreal last year, where she has been for several [years] past in the Nunnery. She was Married this Winter to Cap^t Robertson,⁴ a Match which pleases me well, as I never was acquainted with a more industrious, Sober, Honenst man, a fine prospect, perhaps to be a grand father next year.

There was no less than twenty-one pairs of Sheets, besides some bed & Bolster cases quite rotten of the quantity I received last fall. I noted it at the Bottom of my receipt to the Barrack Master Gen^l, since which I have had them Condemned We have passed our Winter as agreeably as the place would admit off a Dance every week, & now the Spring is come on some of us return to our work as usual M^{rs} Askin & my famely are well & join with me in best wishes for you M^{rs} Hay & Famelies prosperity

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO THOMAS MCMURRY⁵ AT MONTREAL,
APRIL 28, 1778

I was favoured with your kind letter bearing Date the 7th Aug^t last by our Winters Express.

I return you & M^{rs} McMurry my sincere thanks for your care of my Son,⁶ he is not yet arrived here owing to the ⁴ The daughter here referred to was Catherine Askin, whose mother was Askin's Indian consort. Apparently she was fifteen years of age at this time (see letter of Askin to Commodore Grant, April 28, 1778, printed post, 77. Phyllis Barthe, there alluded to as though of the same age as Catherine Askin, was born Dec. 18, 1762); hence she was born about the close of 1762. After the death of Robertson she married (second) Robert Hamilton of Queenston. For her death, which occurred about the close of the year 1796, see post, 188.

⁶ John Askin Jr. was the eldest son of John Askin, his mother being, presumably, the Indian woman, Manette. He was born at L'Arbre Croche, probably about the year 1762. He was later sent down to Montreal to be educated, and seems to have remained there several years. He embarked on commercial ventures in the Maumee region, Vessell being drove back by a hard gale of wind when in sight of this place, he is at Detroit at School. I have no news to acquaint you with from this quarter. Your friend Mr Lyons, Mr Burggy⁷ & Mr Ainse⁸ is the only remains of those which lived here in your time. You would be Surprized to see how this place grows, there is near one hundred houses in the Subarbs, & people are now building tolerable good ones.

which proved unsuccessful on the whole, and in which he incurred a debt to his father which he never succeeded in discharging. He engaged with the latter in certain land speculations, and in this connection went to Greenville in 1795 to dissuade the Indians from concluding a treaty with General Wayne without including in it certain restrictions vital to the success of the speculators. By General Wayne he was promptly arrested and secluded, however, until the negotiations were concluded. On reaching Detroit he rendered a report of his mission to Colonel England, which is now preserved in the Burton Hist. Coll. In 1801 Askin was appointed by Governor Hunter, collector of customs at Sandwich, which office he held until 1807 when he was appointed interpreter in the Indian Department and stationed at St. Joseph Island. At the opening of war in 1812 he led the Ottawa and Chippewa contingent of the British force which captured Mackinac, and here he continued to serve throughout the war, withdrawing with the garrison to Drummond Island in 1815. Here he was at least until 1816, when a letter to his parents expresses the hope of removal to Amherstburg. He died at Amherstburg about the beginning of 1820; the notice of his death (undated) appeared in the Detroit Gazette of Jan. 7, 1820.

Askin married at Detroit, Oct. 21, 1791, Mary Madelaine Peltier, member of an old Detroit family, who died at Amherstburg on June 17, 1878. Her father, Jacques Peltier, born, Jan. 16, 1747, in old age related his recollections of the Pontiac siege of 1763, and this narrative was utilized by Francis Parkman. Prior to Askin's marriage with Madelaine Peltier he became the father of a son by a woman living in the Indian country, who may have been a white captive, but whose identity is unrecorded. This son, Jean B. or "Johnny," was baptized at Detroit a few weeks after the father's marriage, and was reared to manhood largely by his grandfather, John Askin. He went with his father to St. Joseph, where in 1810 he engaged to go west in the fur trade, and spent one winter on the St. Croix River and a second in the Lac du Flambeau region of northern Wisconsin. In the summer of 1812 he led a band of Indians to take part in the campaign at Detroit, arriving, however, after Hull's surrender. He subsequently married a Miss Van Allen and became one of the early settlers of London, Ont., where he served as first clerk of the court (in the early thirties), and where he died, Nov. 15, 1869. Information adapted from the Askin Papers, passim, and other ms. data in the Burton Hist. Coll.; from the Askin Papers in the Dominion Archives in Ottawa; and from data supplied by Miss Amelia Harris of London, Ont.

7 Christian Berczy, a trader of Mackinac. A memorial of Captain Samuel Robertson to Governor Haldimand, published in the Mich. Pio. Colls., XI, 328-30, incidentally discloses that Berczy died between September, 1781, and December, 1782. Concerning his career we have learned little.

8 Joseph Louis Ainse, born May 1, 1744, whose parentage is noted ante, 50-51. He was one of the informers against Major Rogers in 1766, and thereafter served as interpreter at Mackinac for many years. In 1786, he undertook an extensive journey among the tribes of the upper Mississippi country, going as the agent of Sir John Johnson to restore peace between the warring tribes in the interest of the Indian trade. He was later accused of peculations in connection with the discharge of this mission, and a lengthy trial ensued, the record of which is printed in Mich. Pio. Colls., XI, 491 ff.

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO MR. EDGAR⁹ AT DETROIT,
APRIL 28, 1778

I was favoured with your letter of Oct^r last in February. You'll oblige me much if you can let me have the Iron, the Quantity I lost 4 C^t, but as you weighed what you found more than your own, the remainder must be lost some place else. I would in these troublesome times, compound for the two-thirds of all my things on the way up. I'm glad you are once more got to a part of the world where your friends can hear from you. I really thought you lost, when I heard you went to S^t Vincent.¹⁰ M^{rs} Askin presents her kind Compliments to you & believe me with an Inclination to serve you.

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO JAMES STERLING AT DETROIT,

This is the first opportunity I have had of answering M^r

⁹ Apparently William Edgar of the Detroit firm of Macomb, Edgar, and Macomb. Edgar's grandfather, Thomas Edgar, was born in Edinburgh, Oct. 19, 1681. His family were adherents of the Stuart cause, and as a consequence of the rebellion of 1715 he migrated to America. On the vessel which brought him he became acquainted with Janet Knox, a widow, whom he married soon after arriving in America. They settled at Rahway, New Jersey, and had six children, the second being Alexander Edgar, born in 1718; he married Mary Smith and lived in the vicinity of Rahway. Their fourth son was William, the subject of our present sketch. He was born in 1745 and was engaged in trade at Detroit as early as 1768, in which year he was appointed by Capt. George Turnbull, the commandant, as one of a committee of ten residents to report upon the administration of justice then current. In April, 1774, he was one of the Detroit traders who were required to deposit their liquor in a "general rum store" and agree not to give more than one glass at a time to an Indian. In 1780 he signed a petition of the merchants of Detroit to Governor Haldimand complaining of the military control of shipping and the way private goods were handled by the representatives of the Crown. About this time he was a partner of the Macombs and several of the ledgers of the firm are preserved in the Burton Hist. Coll. At a subsequent date (undetermined) Edgar removed to the Illinois country, where the family was represented as late as 1861. Descendants of Thomas Edgar, the original immigrant, have long resided in Detroit. See Mich. Pio. Colls., passim; Farmer, op. cit., passim; and letter of C. G. Edgar of Detroit, May 16, 1912, preserved in the Burton Hist. Coll.

Parkes¹¹ two Letters, dated the 29th Oct^r & 8th of Dec^r last, as also your favours of the 9th of Dec^r & 3^d of Jan^y, M^r Parks mention that the thread charged for making of Bags was 17/4, it may be so in his books, but in the acc^t he sent me it is but 5/8 & that's the reason why I wrote him there was a small Error in that Article. I return him many thanks for his care of my Liquors & other things that arrive at Detroit for me. I beg you'll be so kind as to continue, as I have no other in your Quarter that I can so well require such a favour off, & as I know it must be attended with cost & loss of time I will pay both most willingly, I here inclose you a list of all the things I have on the way between Montreal & your Post & I beg on the arrival of each Vessell you will have some person of trust to attend the unloading & immediately take charge of mine, if such a person was to cost three Dollars a Day for that time, it would be better than have my effects embezeled.

Please send me two Doz. of good common Chairs by the first oppertunity, if the Sugar with you has not been sold for 2/ per lb as I wrote M^r Parke, it is worth that here at least, therefore I should be glad to have it. I hope you will at least be able to procure the greater part of the Corn & Flour I ordered & much of the former hulled, a Disapointment in these articles would in part knock up the North Trade & I assure you if less than three or four Vessells load of these things arrive this Season, some persons in that back country will perish & the trade be hurt, there is little or no dependance to be put on the grain that's to be got this way.

Major De Payster¹² could not pay Mr Langlades¹³ order on him, having no Authority to give him his Pay. I have therefore got another draft & a Certificate such as you required, both which I inclose you.

when I mention this oppertunity I mean the first that offers, for I know of none yet, but am in daily hopes to see a Vessell or boat from your Quarter, if I then should have more to say, I will add it or write another Letter, at present I will conclude by assuring you & Mr^s Sterling of Mr^s Askin & my most sincere wishes for your wellfare

Major De Peyster has wrote so pressingly to Governor Hamilton¹⁴ about my things geting forward that I dare say

¹² Arent Schuyler De Peyster was born in New York City, June 27, 1736. At the age of nineteen he entered the Eighth Regiment, and saw service abroad and in various parts of North America. His service in the Northwest during the Revolution was particularly notable. He was commandant of Mackinac from 1774 until after the capture of Governor Henry Hamilton by George Rogers Clark at Vincennes when (1779) De Peyster was promoted to the command at Detroit. He continued in command at Detroit until 1784. De Peyster and Askin were staunch friends, as many letters in the Askin Papers attest. De Peyster accompanied his regiment to England in 1785, and ten years later retired from the service and settled at Dumfries, Scotland, where he died, November 2, 1832, in his ninety-seventh year. He was a man of literary tastes, and a confirmed rhymster. A close friend and neighbor of De Peyster at Dumfries was Robert Burns, and what is said to have been the last poem ever composed by the latter was one addressed to De Peyster in reply to an inquiry after Burns's health. See Burton, City of Detroit, 1701-1922, I, 130-33; and Wis. Hist. Colls., XVIII, 344.

¹⁴ Henry Hamilton, a native of Ireland, came to America as a soldier in the French and Indian War. He served under Amherst at Louisburg and under Wolfe at Quebec. From 1761-63 he was in the West Indies, and some time later his regiment was returned to England. Prior to the Revolution the civil administration of all Canada had been entrusted to a governor, with headquarters at Quebec. Soon after the war on your having application made for me I will not be refused if there is room

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO MESSRS. MCGILL,¹⁵ FROBISHER,¹⁶
PATTERSON,¹⁷ ETC. AT MONTREAL, APRIL 28, 1778

I take this opportunity to acquaint you that I'm taking every precaution & hope to prevent your meeting with any disappointment, in what I'm to furnish you. As I found that no part of the great quantity of Liquors which I had on the road, arrived I attempted to purchase some at Detroit, but began, the Earl of Dartmouth created the new office of lieutenant-governor at Mackinac, Detroit, and Vincennes, and Hamilton received the appointment at Detroit. He reached Detroit, November 9, 1775, and his vigorous and frequently stormy administration was terminated by his departure on the Vincennes campaign in the autumn of 1778, from which he was never to return to Detroit. Consigned to imprisonment in Virginia, on securing his release, he went to England, whence he returned to Canada in 1782, bearing the appointment of lieutenant-governor. His administration was beset with difficulties, even as the earlier one at Detroit had been, and over a question of patronage he was summarily recalled in 1785. In 1790 he was governor of the Bermudas, and in 1796, while serving as governor of Dominica, died and was buried on the island. On his Detroit career see Burton, City of Detroit, 1701-1922, II, 909 ff. A valuable article dealing with his later career as lieutenant-governor of Canada is by F. H. Soward, "The Struggle over the Laws of Canada, 1783-91" in Canadian Historical Review, V, 314-35.

¹⁵ James McGill, born in Glasgow, Scotland, Oct. 6, 1744, came to Canada and entered upon the Northwest trade soon after the close of the French and Indian War. He made several journeys into the Northwest, and became an intimate and lifelong friend of Askin. McGill was one of the original shareholders in the famous North West Company. Toward the close of the Revolution he settled down at Montreal, where, with Isaac Todd, he was extensively engaged in the capacity of middleman, outfitting the fur traders with needed supplies and disposing of their furs through the London market. McGill was highly successful in business, and at his death was reputed to be the wealthiest man in Canada. His business and other correspondence with Askin was extensive, and much of it will be presented on succeeding pages of this work. He married, Dec. 2, 1776, Marie Charlotte Guillemin, daughter of Guillaume Guillemin, a prominent official of Canada, and widow of Joseph Amable Trotier dit DesRivières. McGill died at Montreal, Dec. 19, 1813. He bequeathed a portion of his property for the founding of the university which now bears his name. See Pierre-Georges Roy, Les Monuments Commemoratifs de la Province de Quebec (Quebec, 1923), I, 211-12.

¹⁶ Benjamin Frobisher, one of three brothers who at an early date were active in the Northwest fur trade. Joseph and Thomas Frobisher founded the Montreal firm of Frobisher Brothers, in which Benjamin, the youngest of the three, replaced Thomas about the year 1778. The two partners (Benjamin and Joseph) were active in founding the North West Company, and served as its principal agent at Montreal. Benjamin Frobisher died at Montreal, April 14, 1787. See Wis. Hist. Colls., XIX, 235, and Gordon C. Davidson, The North West Company (Berkeley, Calif., 1918), passim.

¹⁷ Charles Patterson, another early British trader and a founder of the North West Company. In 1788 Patterson with his boat crew was drowned in Lake Michigan, the Price being from 26/ to 30/ N. Y. Curr^{y18} the Gallon & little certainty of getting it here made me drop the Scheme. I'm to have 80 Kegs of W. I. rum of 8 G^s each from Mons^r Barth[e],¹⁹ at 150ⁿ the Keg, this with about 100 Bushells of hull'd Corn, shall go off very early for the Portage.²⁰ Corn in all probabillity will be as hard to be got as Rum. I'm informed from Detroit that it will cost 24/ the Bushell Unhulled & without Bags, but that's not the worst, how to get it here now the Vessells are Stopt, the Kings Vessell will come as usual perhaps, but besides Kings Stores, she has to carry for so many persons, that each can have very little on Board. I myself could [load] her twice, from all this you may judge, how difficult is it to fullfill Contracts, however dont be discouraged, if money or Industry will answer, you shall not be disappointed. Rum I expect for a Certainty by about sixty miles west of Mackinac, at a point still designated on the map as Patterson's Point.

¹⁹ Jean Baptiste Barthe, born at Detroit in 1753, the brother of Askin's wife. He was located at this time at Sault Ste. Marie, where he was engaged in supplying the fur traders. He later lived at Mackinac and Detroit, and following the American occupation of the latter place, in 1796, he elected, like Askin, to remain a British subject and removed to the south side of the river. On December 28, 1778, he married at Detroit Geneviève Cuillerier dû Beaubien, having hurriedly returned from Mackinac when an attack by the Americans was believed to be impending. Barthe was buried at Sandwich, June 22, 1827. Geneviève Barthe was buried there July 14, 1847. See Denissen, op. cit.

²⁰ Grand Portage, at the western end of Lake Superior, where a nine-mile portage was made between the Lake and a point above the falls on Pigeon River. Practically from the beginning of the British régime in the fur trade until the opening years of the nineteenth century, Grand Portage was the great interior entrepôt of the fur trade conducted by the Montreal merchants in the far Northwest. About the year 1801, however, due to the discovery that Grand Portage was on the American side of the boundary line drawn by the treaty of 1783, the site was abandoned by the British traders in favor of a new location at the mouth of the Kaministiquia River, to which the name of Fort William (in honor of William McGillivray) was presently given.

the Grand River ²¹ & I shall send a Vessell to Millwakee²² in search of Corn. I have 150 Bushells already there & hope for more. I have about 200 here & I shall send a Bat-teaux to Detroit that will bring me at least 120 Bushells, this with my chance in the Vessell, I hope will answer my demands, my principle motive for giving you this information was, least the public Report of a Scanty [supply] might make you uneasy. I'm well provided with all the necessary Voytures²³ to pass your effects from hence to the Portage

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO COMMODORE GRANT²⁴ AT DETROIT,
APRIL 28, 1778

The Ice being all gone I think we may in a very few days expect a Vessell or Boat from your Post. I therefore think it time to begin & answer the Letters I received this Winter. I was favoured with two of yours bearing date the 9th of Dec^r & 2^d of January last, which among other things brought ²¹ There were two alternative routes by which goods might be transported between Montreal and Mackinac and the Lake Superior country: via Niagara, Detroit, and the lakes, and via the ancient French trade route of the Ottawa (or Grand) River to Lake Huron. The Ottawa River route was beset by numerous portages, and the vessels employed were, of course, canoes.

²³ A "voyture" might be any species of vehicle of transportation; here it necessarily refers to the boats under Askin's control.

²⁴ Alexander Grant, born May 20, 1734, commonly known as the "Commodore," was a younger son of Patrick Grant of Glenmoriston, Inverness-shire, Scotland. Alexander Grant was "bred to the sea," but in 1757 he secured his transfer to Montgomery's Highlanders (the Seventy-Seventh Regiment) which was then being organized for service in America. He served in Forbes's campaign against Fort Duquesne in 1758, being wounded in Major Grant's disastrous rout at Grant's Hill, and in 1759 was with the army of General Amherst in the Lake Champlain region. Here he was appointed by Amherst to command a sloop on Lake Champlain, and the following year was given command of all the vessels on the lake. Thus was his further career determined. From 1763 until the Revolution he had the direction of the British naval establishment on all the lakes; in 1778 his field of authority was confined to the upper lakes (Erie, Huron, and Michigan), and he continued in command of the naval establishment on these lakes until January, 1812. In 1774 the Commodore me the agreeable news of your promotion. I'm sincerely glad of it, & I beleive it must be allowed, that your long & faithfull service merited such a Reward. M^{rs} Askin & I are both sorry for You & M^{rs} Grants loss, however as the child was Young & M^{rs} Grant received no Injury it lessens the misfortune much.

I return you many thanks for your Intelligence & advice to my Clerk. I have [had] a very considerable cargo on the way all last year & no part of it arrived here which is a severe Stroke to me. I must beg your assistance in ordering it to be forwarded in the Kings Vessells (as no others are permitted to Sail)²⁵ as I could not think of giving your Clerk so much trouble, I have wrote M^r Sterling to receive for me what may arrive at Detroit in the Vessells, & I should take it as a particular favour that you would order to be taken on Board the Vessells for this Post, what Liquors or Provisions M^r Sterling may have to send me. I would also represent to you that one Vessell is not capable of bringing to this place from your Post all the Provisions necessary to Support the trade of the Country, not even the Dunmore, what I mean by Provision is Corn & Flour, & should the Quantity fall Short, even one-third, some of the People in the Back Country in all probability will perish for want. I thought it necessary to give you this information that you married Therese Barthe of Detroit, whose sister, Marie Archange, was the wife of John Askin. He subsequently developed a fine country home of some 240 acres, known as Grant Castle, in modern Grosse Pointe Farms, later known as P. C. 231. It is a somewhat curious fact that although he continued his naval command until his death, served as lieutenant of Essex County militia, as legislator, and, even for a time as acting-governor of Upper Canada, he continued to reside at Grant Castle on the American side. Here he died, May 8, 1813. His body was carried by canoe to Sandwich and there interred in the churchyard. A memorial tablet on the wall of the present church recites the principal facts of his career. Information adapted from George F. MacDonald's biographical sketch of Commodore Grant, in Ontario Hist. Soc., Papers and Records, XXIII, 167-81; P. J. Anderson, Major Alpin's Ancestors and Descendants (Aberdeen, 1904). On Grant's naval career see, also, Burton Hist. Coll. Leaflet, II, No. 5.

²⁵ In the French period, save for one or two isolated exceptions, there was no shipping on the upper lakes. With the transfer of Canada to British rule, a naval establishment was begun and maintained as an integral part of the military control of the western country. Prior to the Revolutionary War it was the policy of General Gage to permit the traders to maintain private vessels on the lakes; but early in that war, with a view to controlling more effectively the Indian trade and to maintaining a more effective defense against the Americans, the sailing of privately owned vessels was prohibited. This measure entailed, naturally, constant complaint on the part of the traders.

might acquaint the Governor with it, as it may not strike him in the same light. I certainly am or ought to be a judge of the Provisions necessary to carry on the trade of this place, & I know that when four Vessells arrived here in the Spring, loaded with Corn & Flour mostly, there was not too much, nor hardly ever any left, the trade is now increased, therefore at least the same Quantities of Provisions wanted to Support it. I want 1000 Bushels of Corn myself & 30 thousand of Flour, who only furnish a few of the Traders.

Young Mr Barth, LaVoine & Louisen²⁶ are all well. I have seen them this winter, the old Brother will do well, if he does not meet with some accident & I will do my best to serve the others however as yett they dont seem to have the same good inclinations, its true they are Young.

I'm Glad to hear Mr Barth is well, I expect he will soon be here, for I dont suppose he will go to the Miamis as he intended. I hope he has applied the money I gave him to the discharging of his Debts at Detroit, it realy hurts me to think of him indebted to any person, if he told me right he had more than sufficient from me to pay what he owed.

We are impatient for news I hope matters have taken a favourable turn since last fall.

We have endeavoured to make the Winter pass as agreeably as we could, by having a Dance every week. I had a Daughter came up from Montreal last Spring the age of Phyllis.²⁷ She is married to Cap^t Robertson this Winter, a match that pleases me well, this example will shew Phillis that she's not too Young & I realy think once past fifteen [one] cannot marry too soon, provided it is their Inclinations.

²⁶ "Young Mr. Barthe" was Jean Baptiste, for whom see ante, 34.

Lavoine Barthe (precise relationship uncertain) was at this time serving as clerk to Jean Baptiste at the Sault at an annual wage of 1000 livres. See Barthe ms. ledger in Burton Hist. Coll.

"Louisen" was Louis Theophile Barthe, a younger brother of Jean Baptiste, born at Detroit, March 31, 1760, and buried at Sandwich, May 16, 1825. Denissen, op. cit.

M^{rs} Askin & I once thought before now to have had the pleasure of being Settled near you, but these troubles obliges us to determin not to leave this place untill there is a peace. I have even began to make a tolerable good House two Storry high, however if the warr ends soon, perhaps I may not finish it in the manner I intended. If I conveniently can I will make one Trip to Detroit this season to see you. M^{rs} Askin & the Children are well, she joins in most sincere wishes for you M^{rs} Grant & Famelies wellfare.

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO SAMPSON FLEMING²⁸ AT DETROIT,
APRIL 28, 1778

I was favoured with your two Letters dated the 28th Oct^r last in February, also that dated in Dec^r, but your last dated the 2^d January I received in nineteen days after, this is fullfilling the Scripture, the 1st last & the last first. Respecting the Provisions wanting in Cap^t Ferrins²⁹ Cargo last fall, I only mentioned it to you that you might know the affair, not that I expect you can get any from him to replace it, nor do I require any from you. I realy believe the man is very honest, but perhaps not so Sharp that others may not cheat him, for the future I realy will send a man on Board to give a Receipt for each Boat load before they push off from the Vessell side.

I will follow Your advice & not have any Provisions Actually Condemned, untill I see when we can get others, however what is not fit for Serving I shall lay one side, our flour is realy very bad, if what you sent had reached us it would have done much Service by mixing it with the other flour.

²⁸ Sampson Fleming had been Deputy Commissary of Stores and Provisions at Detroit since 1762 (for his appointment see Mich. Pio. Colls., XIX, 128-29). On June 17, 1768, he married at Detroit, Alice Haliburton, whose father had served as a chaplain in the British army, with which he came to America about the year 1758. Her mother, by a second marriage, became the mother of John Kinzie, of early Chicago fame; she subsequently married (third) William Forsyth of Detroit, for whom see post, 307. The Flemings removed to New York from Detroit. There Fleming died and his widow married Nicholas Low. Her descendants have long been prominent in New York City. Information adapted from Forsyth-Kinzie-Little genealogy by C. M. Burton (ms. in Burton Hist. Coll.) and other sources.

M^{rs} Askin & I return M^{rs} Fleming & you many thanks for the Stores you were so good as to send us, had they arrived they would have proved a seasonable relief, tho we are not quite destitute. M^{rs} Askin has still some Tea & loaf Sugar & at once a Day for herself will be able to hold out, the rest of us have Chocolate for Breakfast & Barly Substituted in the room of Coffe for the afternoon. Spirits & Spruce we have & can & must do without wine for the Present.

I sincerely wish you much joy of your Boy, perhaps he may one Day become my Son in law, I have Girls worth looking at. Cap^t Robertson was Married to my Daughter this Winter, so that I stand a fair chance of being a grand father in a Short time. I'm sure I have little the looks of it for I'm much Younger than when you saw me last, tho' in your opinion much crosser. I'm not altogether sure, but I have some intentions of paying you a Short Visitt in the month of May. I thought to have been an Inhabitant of Detroit before this, but untill the present troubles are at an end it's hardly possible. I little expected they would have continued so long

We have not any news in this Quarter worth your Notice. M^r Todd³⁰ mentions to me, that M^r Day³¹ says, he expects the Commissaries in the upper Country will soon be put in a better footing & have more pay allowed them, comme il leur plaira.

Many thanks for your Country Dance Book. I send it you by this oppertunity. (I mean the first that goes from this) We daily expect to see a Vessell or Boat from your Quarter as the Ice is now gone from here. M^{rs} Askin joins

³¹ Nathaniel Day was Commissary General of Provisions and Supplies, and hence Askin's immediate superior.

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO JAMES STERLING AT DETROIT,
MAY 8, 1778

Yours dated the 14th of April last I rec^d p^r M^r Bennett a few days ago, this will be delivered you by C^t Robertson as well as another letter from me dated the 28th April.

I'm sorry to hear by Mess^{rs} M^cBeath³² & Rankin³³ that in all probability no provisions for Trade will be suffered to come from your Post for this, this news has induced me to let Major De Peyster have 400 Bushels of the hulled Corn you purchased for me on the same terms I'm to pay you he writes you on the Subject, you'll therefore charge him & Credit me that Quantity, the remainder please apply to have put on board the Vessell for me. I'm in hopes if there is Room for it that you'll not be refused, as also the Flour, in reality the North Trade will be knocked up if Provisions cannot come.

I received the Wine & Tea by M^r Bennett which came very Seasonably. If you have not 400 Bushels of the Corn hulled to Send Major De Peyster, make up the Quantity with unhulled. I shall be very glad to see my Boy here, however I dont know if I shall send him back so soon. I will endeavour to purchase what you want of Blankets, ³² George McBeath was an active Mackinac trader in the Revolutionary period. In common with the other traders, in 1780-81, he followed the garrison from the mainland to the new post on Mackinac Island. In 1783 these traders (McBeath among them), disturbed by the fear that with the termination of the war and the surrender of Mackinac to the Americans they would suffer for lack of any formal title to their landed possessions on the island, petitioned the commandant to represent their case to Governor Haldimand (petition printed in Mich. Pio. Colls., XI, 393-95). Earlier this same year, McBeath had been sent by Captain Robertson to Prairie du Chien, to announce to the tribes of that region the prospect of peace with the Americans and to urge them to refrain from further warlike activities. For documents concerning this enterprise see Wis. Hist. Colls., XI, 165-75. McBeath is said (ibid., XIX, 237) to have left Canada in 1785.

³³ David Rankin, who would seem from Askin's reference to have been in partnership with McBeath at this time, was also a Mackinac trader who had family connections at Detroit. Rankin was at Mackinac as early as 1780 and as late as 1787. See Mich. Pio. Colls., passim. In 1785 Rankin is described as a merchant of Montreal. See post, 285. In 1800 John Lawe of Green Bay married Therese Rankin, daughter of an Englishman and a Chippewa woman of Peshigo River. It seems a plausible surmise that the father was David Rankin, here noted.

Martins, Mogisins &c M^{rs} Askin presents her Compliments to M^{rs} Sterling.

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO NATHANIEL DAY AT MONTREAL,
MAY 8, 1778

The last oppertunity I had [of] writing you last fall was the 21st of Oct^r which accompanied two setts of Vouchers as well as the Returns for Issues & Expenditures to the 24th of that month. I now send you the like Vouchers & Returns from that time to the 24th of last month, there has not been any Provision Condemned here since the 24th of Dec^r last, owing to my Commanding Officers thinking it prudent even to keep the bad untill more comes up, or is on the way, this method I'm informed is also followed at Detroit. however to prevent your counting on bad Provisions, I think it necessary to inform you that there is about nine Barrells of Flour, Six of Pork & two Firkins of Butter put apart as unfitt to be Issued to the Troops.

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO JOHN HAY AT DETROIT,

I wrote you the 27th of last month which letter also goes by this oppertunity, the 2^d Instant I was favoured with your kind Letter by Lieut. Bennett & tho it dont bring me any Public news, it's not less wellcome, that of a friend & famelies wellfare is great & pleasing News. I have attentively looked over the acc^t of the manner in which you pass your time, & if it was not the hopes that it will soon end, I dare say no Reward could induce any person to undertake it. To serve a man's King & Country is a pleasing task, however Nature requires some rest & without which she will sink under her Burthen.

I will do my utmost endeavours to pay you a Visitt this Summer, tho' it will be a Short one. M^{rs} Robertson a Young Sailor goes with her husband this trip to see Detroit.

I'm sorry for the loss of your Seventh Son, tho' in all likelihood you will have a twelfth before you die.³⁴ M^{rs} Askin joins me in best Compliments to M^{rs} Hay.

P.S. I must beg your interest about getting what things of mine which may arrive at Detroit forwarded in the Kings Vessel for this place.

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO NATHANIEL DAY AT MONTREAL,
MAY 8, 1778

The last time I had the honour of writing you was the 21st of Oct^r 1777 acknowledging the receipt of the Barrack Bedding, furniture & mold Candles you sent me, since which I have had no opportunity untill now of sending you the Barrack Accounts between June & Dec^r, they accompany this letter. You'll see in them a wastage of 34 lb^s of Candles on a Quantity I was obliged to have run over anew for the Guard, indeed they would not receive them as they were, worse I never have seen, & I imagine those you ordered to buy them were deceived, for I do assure you there was in some of the boxes a few good on the top & the remainder very bad.

You'll see by the acc^{ts} that there is a Ballance of £61..12..4 N.Y. Cur^y due me which I will draw on you for by some other opportunity.

The last acc^{ts} I have had from Mess^{rs} Todd & McGill still mention that they have not yet received payment for what was due me by Gen^l Robertson,³⁵ this is really a great hardship on me, to have advanced my own money here so long ³⁴ Hay's wife was Marie Julie Réaume, born at Detroit, January 22, 1748, and buried there, March 23, 1795. The exact date of the marriage has not been found but a son, Pierre, presumably the first son, was baptized, September 11, 1765. The child here referred to, William Hay, died, March 21, 1778, aged about one month. See Denissen, op. cit., and Ste. Anne's Church Register (ms. copies in Burton Hist. Coll.).

ago & not yet repaid. I beg you'll be so kind as to make mention of it to his excellency Sir Guy Carleton.³⁶

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO THE NORTH WEST COMPANY AT MONTREAL, MAY 8, 1778

I wrote you the latter end of last month, since which Lieu^t Bennett with Mess^{rs} M^cBeath & Rankin are arrived here in Boats, they say that we cannot expect any Vessell from Detroit before news gets from Montreal there, but what concerns you & me much more is, a report that perhaps neither Flour, Corn nor Rum will be Suffered to come from that Post to this, this Season (I mean for People in Trade) its certain that those who left Detroit this Spring were not Suffered to bring but a very small quantity nor could they get a positive answer whether or no these Articles would be Suffered to come at all or not.

I have applied to Major De Peyster who will make known to Governor Hamilton the bad consequences of laying an Imbargo on Provisions &c^a without which it's impossible that trade can be Supported. You may depend on every thing that's possible being done to prevent Disappointments, when the Vessell arrives I will be able to write you with more certainty, therefore this warning is only to yourselves.

I send off the first of your things for the Portage in three days Consisting of Rum, Corn & what's most necessary. I shall at same time write your Clerk to provide some place to receive L^t Bennett & the Troops with him, untill some of Your C^o Arrives.

Your Canoes are Ready.

³⁶ Sir Guy Carleton was born at Strabane, Ireland, in 1724. He joined the army at the age of eighteen, served under Wolfe at Quebec, and in 1766 was appointed lieutenant-governor and the following year governor-general of Quebec. He successfully defended Quebec against Arnold's force at the opening of the Revolution. In 1778 he was succeeded in the governorship by General Haldimand. He served in the army throughout the war, and in 1786 was again appointed governor of Canada. This time he held the office until 1796, although absent from Canada from 1791 to 1793. See sketch in Ontario Bureau of Archives, Thirteenth Report, 172.

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO MESSRS. TODD AND MCGILL
AT MONTREAL, MAY 8, 1778

The inclosed letter to the Gentlemen of the N. W. C^o will Shew you how matters go on at Detroit. I could make you some remittance now, but think it best to wait for an opportunity by the Grand River.

Major De Peyster has taken my Vessell into the Service, Robison [Robertson] I beleive will be ready to sail with her by the 10th he is now Riging. I do declare that as things now go on, I dont know what to order, of all I write for nothing Arrives. I must leave all to Yourselves, if Liquors could be got up, I mean Rum, by the way of the lakes without being embezeled to so great a degree, no matter how much you sent, however I think there should be a man to take care of each Boat load, or at most not to have charge of more than two.

M^{rs} Askin begs you'll be so kind as to deliver Madam Perinault the piece of Silk with the trimmings, that's coming or come from England for her, there's two pieces in the Memord^m, but one of them we Suppose will be left Montreal before this Reaches you. Madam Perinault will be so kind as to have the other made up for M^{rs} Askin.

I here inclose you a Bill of Sale or what may answer for such, of one L. Blanc who goes down the country Prisoner to take his trial he quarrelled with another of my men who died soon after. Please inform me about the Land & write me on the Subject.

I have no news about the Payment of my Rum that was Destroyed on Lake Erie by order of Col^o Caldwell,³⁷ it's very hard if that just demand will not be paid, perhaps you could obtain an order to receive the same Quantity out of the Kings Store at Niagara, which if the carrying place

[price] was paid I would gladly Accept. I know these applications must be attended with loss of time and expence, both which I'm willing to pay.

If you find a difficulty in getting forward the things I ordered out from England, You'll in that case only forward me for the present what you know to be most Sealable & necessary, of which you'r as good a judge as myself, the Sheet Lead may remain as well as the furniture of my House and such other things.

Lieu^{ts} Bennett & Clowes,³⁸ will pay me here what they owe you, which I shall remit you by the Grand River, the Latter does not know the price of the Coffe. Lieu^t Bennett desires you may send him a Barrell of your best Maderia & a Barrell of Common Rum, the Maderia to be marked for Lieu^t Clowes & the Rum for Doctor Mitchell.³⁹ Doctor Mitchell desires you may send a Barrell of Sugar, filled up with Barly, if you send me all these Acc^{ts} I will get payment for them here. I shall want a House Carpenter very much, ³⁸ Lieutenant George Clowes, of the Eighth Regiment, who served in the western country from about 1774 to 1784. He probably came to Mackinac in 1774, and was there at least as late as the autumn of 1782. Upon De Peyster's removal to Detroit he was left in command of the garrison for a time. A number of his letters are printed in Mich. Pio. Colls., IX. He returned to England in 1784, where he retired or died in 1791. See Wis. Hist. Colls., XVIII, 393.

³⁹ David Mitchell was born in Edinburgh in 1750. He graduated in medicine there at the age of twenty-three, and the following year came to Canada as surgeon's mate in the Eighth Regiment. He was soon stationed at Mackinac, where he remained for many years. Here he married a Chippewa woman, and to them thirteen children were born. He built a large house, developed a farm on the island, engaged in the Indian trade, and was made justice of the peace for the district. On the American occupation of Mackinac in 1796, Dr. Mitchell withdrew to St. Joseph Island in Lake Huron, although his wife continued to reside at Mackinac. During the War of 1812 he served as surgeon's mate in the British Indian Department, and in this capacity shared in the conquest of Mackinac in 1812. Upon the British evacuation in 1815, Dr. Mitchell went to the new post on Drummond Island. Upon a later survey this was determined to be in American territory and was abandoned in 1828, the British force withdrawing to Penetanguishene. Here Dr. Mitchell died in 1830, and here he is buried in an unmarked grave. An interesting characterization of Madam Mitchell, his wife, who died at Drummond Island, Feb. 25, 1827, is given in Wis. Hist. Colls., XIV, 35-38; and his home at Mackinac is pictured in Mrs. Constance F. Woolson's story, "Anne," published in Harper's Magazine, Vol. LXII. Two of Dr. Mitchell's daughters married British army officers and his eldest son was a lieutenant in the British navy; another son studied medicine in England, and still another is reputed to have been an able mathematician. I wish you could hire one for me at any Rate. Lieu^t Brooks⁴⁰ likewise wants a Tierce of Bristol Beer (not Porter) & a Cheshire Cheese, both which please direct for him & send forward. I write you as these Gentlemen Speak to me, & tho these orders are but trifling, yett as they may be an Introduction to more I make no doubt you'll not neglect sending them.

Inclosed is an acc^t of some things for Kitty with directions at Bottom, please send a Seperate Acc^t of them.

The Officers & Docter just now inform me that they have fallen on another method to get their things altogether, therefore desire I may desire You not to take any notice of what I wrote you in this Letter about sending them things.

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO SAMPSON FLEMING AT DETROIT,

You will receive this and another I wrote some time ago both by Cap^t Robertson who Maj^r De Peyster sends to Detroit on the Kings account, this present letter is in answer to one you intended to have wrote me by Mr Bennett if you had not forgot. I'm glad to hear you have got so fine a boy & I beg you will not kill him with d-m-d Physick, you have no such right over him, it's sufficient you shorten your own Days if report may be depended on, he neither now, nor ever will in all probabillity want a Doctor. If I hear any more of your tampering with him & M^{rs} Fleming permits me, I will go down & take him from you.

I hear you have an oppertunity of making money & I should not be surprized you did not make use of it from a mistaken notion of people in the Service being obliged to live on their pay, dont Injure your famely so much. Your ⁴⁰ Lieutenant R. B. Brooke of the Eighth Regiment. He was at Mackinac in 1780 when Governor Sinclair assumed command of the garrison and engaged in a series of violent disputes with various individuals. One consequence of these disputes was the ordering of one company from Mackinac to Detroit; apparently Brooke went with it, for he was stationed there in 1782 and 1783. See Mich. Pio. Colls., passim, especially documents in Vols. IX, X, and XI. In December, 1783, when the Faith, Hope, and Angelica were wrecked on Lake Erie, the efforts of Lieutenant Brooke to save the cargoes were commended by Colonel De Peyster. Brooke was still a lieutenant of the Eighth Regiment in 1790, after which his name disappears from the army list.

pay & mine together is not able to keep either of our famelies. there is sometimes an oppertunity of making money in the Service without either neglecting a mans duty, or taking one farthing from the Crown, this & this way only I mean, or would approve off for instance a merchant furnishes things for Government at a certain Rate, now if I'm in the Service & can furnish them at the same rate & make an advantage to myself is it not as just that I a Servant of the Crown reaps a Bennifitt by government as any merchant whatsoever, & I make no Doubt but your Commanding Officer would indulge you in anything reasonable that was for your advantage.

if I dont forget I will send back your Country Dance Book. I must beg your Interest if you have any to get what you can of my things that may be at Detroit put on Board each Vessell that sails for this.

M^{rs} Askin joins in best wishes for You M^{rs} Fleming & famelies Wellfare.

N. B. My Vessell & people being taken into the service I want to know what allowance they are to have of Provisions & Rum & who purchases & delivers out that rum & whether there is to be a Column for it with the Provisions & Returns made monthly of it or however make the matter clear to me.

Michilimackinac, May 18, 1778

My dear Brother: Mr. Bennett and Mr. McBeath have come from Detroit with a boat the second of this month. They report that the governor of that post will not allow any rum, flour, or corn for the traders to pass there until he hears from Gen. Carleton, to whom he has written on the subject. He is detaining the vessel also until he hears from below. This is partly the reason why I have not sent you the Mackinac sooner, I wanted to be sure that rum and provisions could be depended upon from Detroit and I did not think it advisable to send Lavoine down until I knew whether or not he would be allowed to return loaded.

Major De Peyster has taken my vessel into the King's service and about eight days ago she sailed for Detroit. By her the Major stated our case so strongly to Governor Hamilton that I have hopes of all the rum, flour, and corn needed for the northern trade being allowed to come up.

JOHN ASKIN PAPERS

Mr. Sterling says that he has all my corn ready but that it is very dear, about 18 livres a minot, without the bag. Brulon⁴¹ left for La Baye⁴² the first of the month and will go to Milwaukee to gather up what I have there. When he returns I shall try to get permission for him to go to Detroit, provided that rum and provisions are allowed to come.

The corn I have at the Sault, with what you can lend me, will make 250 minots. Of this kindly mark 100 minots F O for Mr. Oakes, 100 minots N W for the North West Company, and the remaining 50 minots CCH for Mr. Chaboillez.⁴³ The 60 barrels of rum are for the North West Company, therefore mark them N W also. I am sending the bill for what is on board the Mackinac. That, with what you have at the Sault, Mr. Howard's⁴⁴ merchandise, and some ⁴¹ Brulon appears in Barthe's ledger (ms. in Burton Hist. Coll.) as an engagé, at this time, of Barthe.

⁴² This was the French designation for modern Green Bay.

Marie Anne Chaboillez married Pierre Parent, of Mackinac, who in 1764 was "acting-commandant" of the place. Soon after this the Parents returned to Montreal, where Pierre died in 1766 and his widow in October, 1790. Charles Chaboillez, brother of Marie Anne, married at Mackinac, Sept. 22, 1735, Marie Anne Chevalier, daughter of Jean Baptiste Chevalier and Frances Alavoine. He passed his life in the Northwest trade, and was buried at Mackinac, Nov. 19, 1757. His widow subsequently returned to Montreal to live and was buried there, July 14, 1788, aged eighty-two years.

Nine children were born to Charles Chaboillez and Marie Anne Chevalier. The first five were sons, namely, Charles, Jean Baptiste, Augustin, Louis Joseph, Paul Amable, and Pierre Louis. All engaged in the Northwest trade, and all were partisans of Great Britain in the Revolution. Charles, here mentioned, became one of the leading traders of the Northwest in his time. He early embarked on the trade of the far Northwest, and in 1804 Lewis and Clark encountered him on the upper Missouri. He was one of two French-Canadians to be admitted as partners in the North West Company.

He married at Montreal, Oct. 27, 1769, Marguerite Larchevêque dit La Promenade, whose father was a wealthy trader. She died, April 29, 1798; Charles Chaboillez died, Sept. 25, 1808. One of their daughters became the wife of Simon McTavish, and another the wife of Roderick McKenzie. Information adapted from history of the Chaboillez family by E. Z. Massicotte in Le Bulletin des Recherches Historiques, XXVIII.

⁴⁴ Joseph Howard was an English trader who came to Mackinac as early as 1763. In 1779 he was arrested on order of General Haldimand for having violated orders in going to the upper lakes without a license. The year before this he had contributed to a fund raised by the "Merchants, Inhabitants, and Traders" of Mackinac for the support of a missionary at this place. In 1788 he was involved in the charges made bags of corn that Mr. McBeath has at the Sault, will load the two vessels. It is absolutely necessary that you put on board the De Peyster one-half of each man's merchandise. See, too, that Mr. McDonald⁴⁵ gets off as soon as possible. Pomp, and another man whom you will engage, will go in her.

The other half of each man's merchandise you will load in the Mackinac if you can get her ready now. If not, send her back here for another cargo, and by the time she is to return to the Sault there will be plenty of people to load her.

The Indian has done well. He is a good man if one could only understand what he says. Mr. McDonald is trustworthy, somewhat overbearing, but we must be patient and remember that men are scarce just now. It seemed best to give McDonald and the Indian each a quarter of a pint of rum per day while on the voyage, and half that quantity to Pomp. The whole will not amount to much and will be an incentive to good work besides keeping them from helping themselves from the cargo. I have given all three their provisions, and rum, up to June 1, and have paid them their wages for the same time. After that you will take care of them, and pay them, allowing for their victuals from the cargo.

I am sending you all I can get of what you asked and when I have the other articles will send them too. I beg you not to detain McDonald to help load the other vessel, nor to change the Indian to the De Peyster as I have promised him he is not to be changed and one must keep one's word with everybody. Also you will have here the account of what I have sent you since October 22. Your account up to that date was sent before. I have credited you with 11 barrels of fish at 60 livres a barrel, but not with the Detroit shipment as Mr. Sterling has neglected to mention how they sold. When I balanced my accounts the first of the year against Joseph Ainse on his mission of 1786 to restore peace on the Mississippi. See Wis. Hist. Colls., XIX, 238, and Mich. Pio. Colls., passim.

you owed me 60,191 livres 13 sols. You can see what you have had since that date. If you have anything against me not yet entered let me know that I may make my account agree with yours.

There is no public news. Everything seems quiet according to the latest dispatches from Montreal. I do not think it matters to anyone about the Maypole⁴⁶ Mr. Cadotte set up provided it is not used as a flag-staff. Mr. Bennett sends some tools for the Grand Portage. Do not forget to put them on board the De Peyster.

Give my respects to Mrs. McDonald. There is no news so I am not writing to her. Address Mr. Howard's merchandise to Mr. Charles Boyez.⁴⁷ I am to furnish Mr. Henry⁴⁸ with 20 minots of hulled corn and 20 minots of lye hominy, and 2 cwt. of flour. If there is room in this vessel I shall put them on board, if not they will go another trip.

⁴⁸ Alexander Henry came to Mackinac immediately following the British conquest of Canada and thereafter, until 1776, was engaged in the trade of the Great Lakes and the far Northwest. Having attained a considerable degree of prosperity during these years, he established himself at Montreal, which remained his home until his death in 1824. For practically half a century he was one of the leading residents of that city. In 1809 he published an account of his activities during his years spent in the western fur trade, which is regarded as a standard, and in certain respects unique, authority on the period with which it deals. It has been twice reprinted: in 1901 under the editorship of James Bain; and in 1921 under the editorship of M. M. Quaife. Henry was an intimate friend of Askin throughout life, and many of his letters are preserved among the Askin Papers.

However, if anyone asks you for the flour in Mr. Henry's name before I can send it, be good enough to supply it from yours.

We must find a man to go in Pomp's place after this first voyage. I cannot do without him. Of all my men I have no one now. Another is sick. Deliver Mr. Henry's merchandise to Mr. Cadotte and take a receipt. You may think some articles on your account are dear but it cannot be helped, everything is so scarce and so high-priced. I expect even higher prices instead of lower. Beef is from 30 to 40 sols a pound at Detroit, and pork in proportion. As the amount in each bag is not mentioned in the bill, only the number of minots, notice that the bags with two minots are marked 2, those with one-and-a-half are marked $1\frac{1}{2}$, and the rest in the same way. Some things on your account were for Brulon and Lavoine last fall. If you have not deducted that amount from their wages let me know and I shall do it. But I see you cannot as I have not told you what things.

Sir and Friend: In all probability I shall have another opportunity of writing to you before you reach the Grand Portage so shall not say much now.

Inclosed is the account of what I have shipped for you on two small vessels bound for the Portage but as one is below, and the other above the Sault, I have had your merchandise, and that of the other traders also, divided. According to present indications you will receive one half much sooner than the other. I hope, however, that you will have the whole amount that I am to send you long before you will have need of it. I have been obliged to send you 20 barrels of whiskey instead of rum. I may have the rum before you need to use this and can replace it if you wish. You will see by my former letter that it has been impossible to get liquors up from Montreal, and as for corn and flour there have not been 20 bags of either reach Detroit this year, and we are told that Governor Hamilton will not allow either liquor or provisions to leave that post. When my vessel arrives I shall be able to write you with more certainty.

BURTON HISTORICAL RECORDS

We do know, however, that a minot of hulled corn costs 18 livres at Detroit, without the bag, and flour in proportion.

It would be useless for me to give you any news. The canoes from Montreal will be at the Portage before you get there and with later dispatches than we have here. Your two brothers, Augustin⁴⁹ and Hypolyte,⁵⁰ and their wives, arrived yesterday by way of the Grand River. My family are all well. My wife presents her compliments.

She must have died soon after the marriage, for on Jan. 16, 1770, he married (second) at Montreal, Josephite Nouchet, whose father had been a member of the Superior Council. Of this union nine children were born. Augustin Chaboillez was engaged in the western fur trade, and his wife seems to have accompanied him on some of his expeditions. Beginning in 1784 he seems to have resided for some years at Pointe Claire. He was still living in the spring of 1802, when his wife was buried at Montreal. See Le Bulletin des Recherches Historiques, XXVIII, 241-42.

⁵⁰ Francis Hypolyte Chaboillez was born at Mackinac, Oct. 7, 1751. On Feb. 10, 1777, he married at Montreal, Marie Anne Gagnier. She accompanied her husband to the western country, where her two elder children were born, in Jan. 1779, and April, 1781. In 1783 she returned to Montreal to live, and only then were they baptized. Marie Anne Gagnier died at Montreal in April, 1787, aged thirty-one years. Her husband died prior to Dec., 1795, probably in the western country. Sir: I am sending off from here a vessel loaded with goods for the Grand Portage. There was also sent to the Sault the cargo of another vessel which is now on Lake Superior. Inclosed is the account of what belongs to the North West Company sent in both vessels; but as that which is above the Sault would reach you much sooner than the one now sailing, I wrote to Mr. Barthe to divide the merchandise equally between the two vessels in a manner so that each trader would receive some goods, in the certainty that all would arrive before the gentlemen would have need of it.

We are told that the liquor and provisions we were expecting from Detroit will be held back. I do not know for sure. In any case we must be very careful of what we have. Both are very dear. Corn should bring from 30 to 40 livres a minot at this place. There are a letter and some things in the vessel for Mr. Chaboillez senior. Will you kindly receive and take charge of both until he arrives as there is no one at Grand Portage employed by him.

An officer and some soldiers are to pass the summer at Grand Portage.⁵² Please try to have a house ready for them which they can use until able to provide for themselves. It should have a chimney. Also be so good as to have your men prepare 200 pickets, 14 feet in length, and have them put on the beach between the old fort and yours. That will be the North West Company's share of preparation for the officer and his men; and what I have taken the liberty to say to you on the subject will have the approval of these gentlemen, I am sure.

I shall need two pretty panis⁵³ girls of from 9 to 16 years of age. Please speak to these gentlemen to get them for me.

My dear Brother: Mr. McBeath's vessel arrived yesterday and will leave for the Sault as soon as the wind is favorable. She left the Angelica on the bar, therefore I cannot tell you what I may have on board that vessel. The Governor has given permission for all the corn and rum needed for the northern trade to come up, but only 15,000 pounds of flour for both this place and the north. Flour, therefore, will be very scarce. Capt. Robertson reached Detroit two days before the vessel sailed. I am planning to send the Archange to Detroit as soon as she comes in from Milwaukee. As the Governor allowed Mr. McBeath's vessel to leave he is not likely to detain the Archange. In that case I shall return your boat loaded with corn but you must have it made into lye hominy yourself for I expect only hulled corn from Detroit.

Rum is very scarce and likely to be. Those who brought some up were obliged to make oath at Detroit that both it and the flour were for the northern trade only. They cannot dispose of any here. I shall not sell a barrel for less than 300 livres, and bread will be worth 6 livres at least.

I expect Capt. Robertson will be here about the time the Indian returns with the Mackinac so that I shall have a load for her. If you need any ashes for the lye hominy you must tell me. Nothing has come yet of what you ordered, nor have I had a single letter from Detroit. They are in the Angelica. Archange and all the family embrace you.

The foregoing is the Copy of a Letter I wrote you by the way of the lakes the 8th Instant. I forgot to mention that there was inclosed in it a small memord^m for some things & affidavids about the Martins that were missing last year. I here inclose you the Copy of the Memord^m but not the Copies of the Affidavids, nor bill of sale of the Land. I hope the Originals will not miscarry, you have with this a Copy of my letter dated the 28th of April last which left this with my other Dated the 8th of may.

Your Acc^t Curr^t with me I here inclose which comprehends every acc^t I received of Yours before the 1st of January last, since which I have received one amounting to £1023.. 11..7¹/₄ Halifax, which I have credited your new Acc^t with.

Cap^t Bannerman⁵⁴ arrived here a few days ago in their small Vessell from Detroit with some corn & Rum for the ⁵⁴ Probably this was the man whose fur-trade transactions at Detroit in 1774 are recorded in Mich. Pio. Colls., XXVIII, 561-63. Other than this, we have found no clue concerning him.

North Trade, he had permission to bring it forward on making Oath, that no part of it was for any other use. I think he says that the whole flour allowed for the North Trade & this Post is thirteen thousand W^t, not half what I want alone, so that I'm almost certain there will be a disappointment in this Article, but as to all the others I hope not provided you send me the three Canoe load of Rum. I have sent off two Vessell load for the Portage of what I thought most wanted, for those I have contracted with.

Cap^t Robertson got to Detroit in three days he was to return as soon as a Vessell arrived from Niagara, the Angelica was on the Bar on lake Sinclair on her way here, but not yet arrived, think of Maj^r DePeysters Situation with the Indians about him & not for one Shilling come for him this Year. I believe five Kegs of Rum is the whole Stock of this Post, private Stores even counted, & its reported there is none on board the Angelica.

Please inform the Gentlemen of the N. W. C^o what relates to them.

Mons^r H. Polite Chaboulliez proposes to leave this to morrow with the Indians, you'll receive this by him.

The things I ordered from London last fall I suppose will get to Montreal about the time this letter does & as some part of them cannot come by the way of the Grand River, they must be risked the other way. I here inclose you a Copy of that memord^m, the Articles that have no mark on the Margin, are to come by the grand River, those marked L by the way of the Lakes; there is others marked as per example 5 C^t of Powder 3 by L which means that 3 C^t of it is to come by the lakes & the remainder by the Grand River, other things in the same way, off [of] the Barrell & Pitch & Tarr, there must be three Kegs of the former & 1 of the latter sent by the Grand River, as also of the Cordage, there must also a Coil of Inch & another Coil of half Inch Roap be made up the weight of a Peice each of them & sent by the same way.

These things I can no longer do without. I dont know how Roap is measured in Canada, but those I mean are for Runing Riging such as Hallierds &c of small craft. In my memord^m of the 8th Instant I made a mistake ordering 2 Doz. of womans Shoes & afterwards 12 pairs for M^{rs} Askin, omit the 2 Doz. the 12 pair is Sufficient.

I owe Kitty her wedding Gown, as there was nothing here fit for it. Please have one made for her the french fashion, of a light blue Sattin.

I will for certain this Season send a Vessell & perhaps establish a house at the French River to take things from thence here. I wish you could engage men to there only, provided the Vessell meet them, or so much more if obliged to come here, the agreement should be Conditional to prevent Accidents or disapointments.

If you let him have anything in advance, let me know. I am to pay him £21 wages up to Sept. 1, also a shirt, a pair of leggings, and a brayet.⁵⁵ Of that I shall pay him 200 livres for going with Mr. Bennett to the Grand Portage and back as guide. The rest I shall charge to your account for the time he is working on the vessel. If it happens that Mr. Bennett needs 4 or 5 barrels of rum let him have it and I shall return it to you from here.

Mr^s Fleming, we will try some Soused Trout by the time Robertson goes down.

I'm Actually in much distress about my Flour & have applied to Major De Peyster for liberty to send a small Vessell of mine for it, by her I shall send such Vouchers as I hope will convince the Governor of the necessity of it's coming. I do assure you added to what I'm to furnish for the North Trade, I have taken 2000 W^t that was left with me, & had bread made with it for the Officers & myself last winter, rather than Reduce them to eat the bad flour belonging to the Store, if no other can be done, you must after my Vessell Arrives, take it into the Store & I draw the same Quantity here by which means it will not leave the Settlement, yet that will be very hard on me to exchange, good for bad, besides the Bags which I cannot do without. I hope the good news now come from Canada with the appearance of a fine Crop will remove all Obstacles, my own famely consists of about 20 persons always, none of which I assure you is accustomed to live without bread nor ever Shall as far as in my power lies to prevent it, & I really should think it very hard even to be put on the footing of the Inhabitants of Detroit, many of which seldom eat Bread. I should be glad you would mention a little of this Matter to Governor Hamilton.

Our news is that Gen^l Clintons Army defeated Gen^l Gates below Albany & killed him with 7000 of his people, which prevented any attempt against Canada last Winter.

I find we are again allowed a Cooper with Provisions for Ourselves & him According to Mr Days Letter to me Dated the 20th of January last. I want to know if you have received such orders & when you commence drawing for you & him.

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO PHILIP DEJEAN⁵⁸ AT DETROIT,

I was favoured with yours of the 24th of May last, the ⁵⁸ Philip Dejean was born in 1734 in the city of Toulouse, where his father was procureur general. He came to Canada and on Jan. 12, 1761, married at Montreal,

Mualtoe Woman shall be disposed off agreeable to your desire so soon as Mons^r Cerré⁵⁹ or Mons^r Degrosolier arrives; my famely is too numerous to keep her in my own house,

Mary Joseph Larchevêque, who was born there, June 6, 1740. He married (second) Louisa Auger, also a native of Montreal, who died about the year 1773. He married again, at Detroit, Nov. 25, 1776, Theotiste St. Cosme, daughter of Pierre Laurence St. Cosme and Catherine Lootman dit Barrois. Dejean came to Detroit probably in 1768, having fled, according to one statement, from bankruptcy in Montreal. However this may be, he enjoyed the favor of Captain George Turnbull, the commandant, and he soon began a career as notary and local judge at Detroit which was to bring him much notoriety. During Hamilton's régime as governor, Dejean proved a convenient tool and it would seem that Hamilton must bear a fair share of the responsibility for his conduct. Although he possessed no authority which was recognized by the government at Quebec, he exercised the functions of notary and local justice, and in this capacity committed acts which many of the townsmen deemed arbitrary and tyrannical. Probably the most notable of these acts was the sentencing of Jean Coutencineau and Ann Wiley to death, in 1776, for robbery. For this act, among others, Dejean and Hamilton were indicted by the grand jury at Montreal in September, 1778. Hamilton soon after left Detroit on his Vincennes campaign, before anything could be done about the indictment. In February, 1779, Dejean followed Hamilton to Vincennes, intent on obtaining from his chief written authorization for the acts for which he had been indicted. Thus it happened that both were captured by Clark that same month and conveyed to prison at Williamsburg, Va. After some months of harsh treatment here, Dejean was paroled through the influence of Thomas Bentley of Kaskaskia, and made his way back to Vincennes, from which place, July 28, 1780, he dispatched a letter to Governor Haldimand defending his conduct in accepting the parole, and another to Colonel De Peyster at Detroit, requesting that his wife and children be permitted to come to him, "seeing for myself the dire necessity of exile (after my sufferings) for the faults of another." Five months later Dejean was endeavoring to hire a messenger to carry some letters to Detroit for him. Apparently he returned to Detroit about this time, however, for entries in the Macomb ledgers show rather extensive transactions carried on with him from Nov., 1781, to Jan., 1782. A letter written from Normandy in 1786 by St. John de Crèvecoeur to Governor James Bowdoin of Massachusetts, discloses that Dejean had then been for some time in France, where he was "much esteemed" by Lafayette, and that he was then proposing to locate at Boston. On July 8, 1790, James May, his brother-in-law, and other interested citizens petitioned Judge Powell to appoint a curator over Dejean's estate, stating that he had left the district (of Hesse) in 1789 and had since remained outside His Majesty's dominions without giving any certain intelligence of his place of residence. In response to this petition May was appointed curator. On October 7 following, May and others again appeared before the judge to petition for the appointment of a guardian for the minor child of "the absent Dejean and his deceased wife." See Burton, City of Detroit, 1701-1922, 167, 200, 910; Ill. Hist. Colls., II, xcvi, 477; Dejean to Haldimand, July 28, 1780 (typed copy in Burton Hist. Coll.); Register of His Majesty's Prerogative Court for the District of Hesse, beginning July 2, 1789, photostatic copy in Burton Hist. Coll.

⁵⁹ Jean Gabriel Cerré of Kaskaskia. He was a native of Montreal, born, August 12, 1734. In early manhood he removed to the Illinois country, where he passed the remainder of his life, dying at St. Louis, April 4, 1805. Both at Kaskaskia and St. Louis (he removed to the latter place about 1780) Cerré was for more than a generation a leading merchant and citizen. He married Catherine Giard of Kaskaskia in 1764, and a daughter of this union became the wife of Auguste Chouteau, long prominent in the Missouri River fur trade. See biographical sketch of Cerré by Walter B. Douglas in Illinois State Hist. Soc., Transactions for the year 1903 (Springfield, 1904), 275-88.

⁶⁰ William Monforton, of French descent, was born about the year 1735. He was a man of education and considerable ability. Through the influence of François Baby of Quebec, Monforton some years prior to 1772 became the clerk of Gabriel Cerré of Kaskaskia, Illinois. Letters of François Baby, August 13 and September 17, 1772, in St. Sulpice Seminary, Montreal. In 1775 Monforton married Mary Louisa Soumande dit Delorme, who was born at Montreal, September 3, 1746. Denissen, op. cit. His home at this time must have been at Mackinac, for two of his children were born there, March 25, 1776 and October 4, 1777. Ibid. Both these children were baptized at Detroit, October 10, 1778. Shortly before this date Monforton had left Mackinac for Detroit, as shown by a letter written to Cerré, September 22, 1778, printed in Ill. Hist. Colls., V, 53-59. The remainder of his life was passed at Detroit and (subsequently) Sandwich, and at the latter place he was buried in March, 1814. About the years 1805 to 1807 Monforton underwent two years' imprisonment for debt. Askin befriended him in his misfortune, and some piteous letters on the subject are in the Askin Papers.

Although Monforton never achieved fame he stamped his name indelibly on the history of Detroit. In 1784, by official order, the notarial records were removed to Quebec, where they remained until William Dummer Powell, first judge of the Court of Common Pleas for the District of Hesse, brought them back in 1790. From 1784 to 1792 the records of the place were kept by Monforton in his capacity of notary public. These are contained (the first two years are missing, having been stolen from his office) in the Monforton Register, so called, which remained in possession of his descendants in Sandwich. It eventually found its way into the government archives in Ottawa, where it now rests. A copy (ms.) was made some years since for the Burton Hist. Coll. Vols. A, B, and C of the notarial records of Detroit (kept by others than Monforton) remained in Sandwich until 1871, when in pursuance of an act passed by the Ontario provincial parliament, they were returned to Detroit and are now a part of the official archives of Wayne County.

⁶¹ Edward Pollard was one of the early British traders in the western country, having been one of the contributors to a fund for the repair of the fort at Detroit in 1768. See Burton Hist. Coll. Leaflet, III, 12. It does not appear, however, that Pollard was himself at Detroit at this time. He established himself at the Niagara carrying place (date uncertain) and by 1779 had become prosperous enough to retire and return to England. See Buffalo Hist. Soc., Publications, VI, 75-76.

62. John Stedman (Steadman) was in Detroit in 1762 and the same year located at the Niagara portage, where he engaged in the forwarding business and remained until 1789. By reason of ill-health, he then withdrew to England, leaving his affairs at Niagara in the care of a nephew. He had an estate in Herefordshire (now Bosbury House) where he lived until his death in 1808 in his seventy-eighth year. 63. A letter written by Askin this same date (not here reprinted) to Alexander and William Macomb of Detroit speaks of a shipment of 400 lbs. of iron which Pollard states they were to have sent him, and of which he is much in want. Alexander and William Macomb were leading merchants of Detroit in this period, sons of John Gordon Macomb who migrated from Ireland to Albany about the year 1755, and from Albany to Detroit ten years or so later. In 1776 the Macombs secured an Indian deed to Grosse Ile, and they obtained, at different times, other extensive property holdings. Alexander married Catherine Navarre, and a son, born to them at Detroit in 1782, was General Alexander Macomb, who for several years prior to his death in 1841 was commander-in-chief of the U. S. army. The elder Macomb left Detroit for New York a few years after the Revolution, where he speculated extensively in lands. His home was one of the finest in the city, and in 1790 it was rented to serve as the official residence of President Washington. See Burton Hist. Coll. Leaflet, III, 41.

arrise, I here inclose you the different agreements & letters relative to the flour I'm to furnish, so that if Governor Hamilton requires more satisfaction about the matter, you will open the inclosed Packett & shew him the contents, if no occasion you will send it back Sealed to me as it now is, let the Quantity of flour be as much as possible without detaining the Vessell, you'll also let my Brother in law⁶⁴ have what Provisions he may want for them back. If the Master of the Vessell should want the value of 200th, or some such thing let him have it & send me the Account.

I have promised M^r Howard that a small quantity of flour for him may come in my Vessell, the remainder to be filled with my Liquors if they are arrived, if not I have promised M^r David Rankin that he may put some things on board. I wrote you for a pair of Common Cart wheels & 2 Doz. of Chairs which please send by the Angelica. I want some Barrells of lime also if you can send them. I send some empty Barrells for sail.

Remember that none of my Liquors are to be left behind to take in things for any person except the 5 or 6 C^t of flour for M^r Howard. Pray borrow of some of the Naval department for me a small Anchor. I will be able to return it very soon as I have some on the way.

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO BENJAMIN FROBISHER AT MONTREAL,
JUNE 6, 1778

I will attempt writing you by these Indians but cant say I will get through, having three Vessells to fit off now, your Canoes & my Public employment.

S^t Cir arrived last night. I have delivered him the Canoes, all your Corn, Sugar, Gum, Bark & Watap now remaining here shall be delivered him to Day, all the rum coming up in the Canoes he shall also have (I expect they will arrive to day) I have this Spring got about five Barrells of Spirits up which is now a Drawing off & shall be sent, this with 60 Kegs of W. I. Rum I borrowed of M^r Barth is all the Liquors I can possibly muster I dont keep two Barrells for myself. I have not had one pound of Flour this Season. L^t Governor Hamilton would not Suffer more than thirteen thousand W^t to leave Detroit & that only to such persons as were on the Spot, or had others to make oath that it was for the N. W. Trade. M^r Sterling has fourteen thousand W^t purchased for me, my Vessell is just now going to Sail in order to fetch it & what Rum I may have Arrived at Detroit, which without one moments loss of time shall be forwarded to the Portage. I'm in great hopes from what Major De Peyster has wrote L^t Governor Hamilton with the other precautions I have taken, that not only the 14 Thousand but even more may come for me if Ready. I dare say by this time the Spring News from Canada has got to Detroit (which was not the case when the last Vessell left it) So that Governor Hamilton will now see that there is now no necessity for Stopping the provisions in that Settlement.

Your Canoes shall be loaded with what's here & at S^t Mary's as nearly conformable to your orders as possible & I beleive it will make about their Loading. I have sent some flour forward & will now send about a thousand W^t more, so that I still hope there will not be the least disapointment. I wish Mess^{rs} Todd & M^cGill had sent me by the Grand River the 1700 Gallons they wrote me they would. I in many letters warned them not to depend on the Liquors comeing the other way, & that I had none. I know it was their great desire not to [incur] too much expences, prevented them but I asure you nothing hurts me so [much] as any persons being disapointed who depends on me, tho not my fault.

I have wrote you the most necessary [matters] & must refer the rest for another oppertunity. Your Brothers Letter from S^t Mary's which you [will receive] with this will inform you further.

As it's impossible for me to write any other at Montreal by this oppertunity, please make my excuse to Madam Chaboul-liez. I will do myself the Honour to write her in a few Days, for the present please let her know, I will execute her orders for the Additional Quantity of Corn she has ordered, the Rum I cannot promise untill I have fullfilled my engagements, let her know also that her Canoes was the first men here this Spring & took (with what was sent before) every thing that Mons^r Chaboulliez was to get, except 10 Kegs of Rum & 5 bags of Flour, which shall go with the rum & Flour I'm now sending to Detroit for. I know no person so well of[f] in the North Trade as he is.

Please excuse my not writing M^r M^cGill also by this opportunity. I mean make my excuse to him.

M^{rs} Askin & M^{rs} Robertson presents their best Compliments & beleive me most truely

P S S^t Cir goes off to morrow with the small Canoes & what's here & leaves two larger Canoes to take my rum that's comeing by the Grand river

AT GRAND PORTAGE, JUNE 6, 1778

I was Yesterday favoured with your two letters dated the 28th of May last. Your guide⁶⁶ S^t Cir came here last night & proposes setting off to morrow with all the small Canoes he leaves two large ones to take on Board the Rum that's coming up in my Canoes.

I'm sorry to inform you that my conjectures about Provisions being Stopt at Detroit is too true, for my Corrispondant there could not get liberty to Ship an ounce for me except he made Oath that it was for the North Trade & no other, & then he would have had permission to forward my proportion of thirteen thousand, which is the whole of the exports to be allowed, or rather would be allowed at that time, however as I beleive this was no more than taking precautions for supplying the place untill news was heard from Canada of Provisions being on their way up, and as I have reason to think that news must now be Arrived at Detroit, I make no doubt there will be no farther hindrance. I therefore have this Day sent a Vessell for my flour which is ready purchased, & as Major De Peyster has wrote the Governor very pressingly about it & I have taken the other necessary precautions, I hope that it & the remainder of what I'm to Supply you with, will still arrive here in good time, & the utmost dispatch shall be made to send it to the Portage. Please acquaint Mons^r Charls Chaboulliez that the remainder of his Rum & Flour shall also go at same time.

⁶⁶ The hierarchy of the North West Company, which was being evolved in this period, comprised the following gradations from above downward: partners, clerks, guides, and canoemen (or voyagers). Davidson characterizes the guides as "a useful and intelligent set of men who also acted in the capacity of interpreters. They had a stated quantity of goods supplied to them, and received from one thousand to three thousand livres in wages." See The North West Company, 229. Concerning this particular guide (St. Cir) no information has been found.

I this Day have wrote to M^r Benj^a Forbisher fully about what I have done, at same time I sent him your letter. I could have wished that Mess^{rs} Todd & M^cGill had sent me the quantity of Rum I wrote for in Canoes. I warned them in several letters not to depend on what was comeing by the way of the lakes. I'm well persuaded that it was their fear of throwing me into too much expence, prevented them, at same time their being asured the other Rum would reach me in good time, which I still hope it may, however I would much rather be at any Charge than disapoint any person who confides in me—there is no such thing as getting the grease you want yett, but in a few days I hope there will be some in, I expect some in my Canoes. Your own Canoes will be able to take what you have here & what of yours remains at S^t Mary's otherwise of cource the Vessell should, the Additional quantity of Corn & rum you order shall be sent if in my power, of the former I have Sufficient if it was hulled. I will set people to work about it. I'm much hurried at present I will take some other oppertunity to write you more

My dear Brother: I have received all your letters and am sending my reply by the Indian. Your merchandise will go at the same time if I can get men, and I shall try to send everything that you have ordered. All that you have delivered for Mr. Frobisher by St. Cir is put on board the North West Company's vessel except 150 minots of corn; kindly give that to St. Cir as he passes the Sault, also all the merchandise belonging to the North West Company. They will have room for it in their canoes and you will have plenty of other things to send. Charge shipping expenses of the merchandise to the account of each individual owner, that is, the cost of carriage in your boats, its care at the Sault, and carriage at the portage.

Mr. McDonald's wages are 1170 livres a year. The Indian gets 900 livres. I have given them provisions, as much as I thought they could eat in all reason, with a quarter of a pint of rum per day. The other men have half that much rum and what I judged would be plenty of provisions.

Lavoine set out this morning in the Archange for Detroit to get my flour. I have not had a pound yet but hope for some now, also plenty of rum. General Carleton gave orders that mine is to come through the first. My clerk, Lorty, left Lachine in April last with five boats. I have plenty of corn but cannot send you more than 80 minots of lye hominy, and shall fill the boat with other things—ashes, a kettle, and such like.

Capt. Robertson arrived before the Angelica but left the same day to examine the coast along the French River. I have decided to build a house there.

The vessel could not take your canoes. Tell me if you want to sell them. I shall not need either sugar or gum [for myself] but could sell both here at 20 sols a pound. Your order of last fall is now off in my two canoes. Take receipts for all the merchandise you send out.

Mr. Chaboillez,

Sir: I was honored by the receipt of a letter from Madam, your wife, in which she asked me to send you 12 bags of corn and 12 barrels of rum in addition to your order of last year. I can promise the corn any time from here but am not so sure about the rum. I shall try to send it with the rest of your flour and rum. You shall have the grease soon and I shall find out for your profit if the price is likely to fall.

Mr. Barthe reports one of your barrels of rum lacking. I shall send another.

Michilimackinac, June 8, 1778

My dear Brother: I shall try to have the Indian set out with the vessel tomorrow morning. I am sending you his receipt for everything on board, with the mark of each piece, and advise you to give him time to arrange it all on the beach before you check up and sign any receipt for the cargo. If anything is missing he must pay for it. I am certain I sent 40 barrels of rum for Mr. Chaboillez on the last voyage. Have a search made if by any chance it [the missing barrel] is among yours. If you cannot find it replace it from yours and I shall make it up to you. By the bill of lading you will see the destination of each piece.

I loaned the Indian an anchor and a cable for the vessel going up. Please return them the first opportunity. They belong to the big boat and I cannot use it without them.

If, with what you have at the Sault and what I am now sending, you still have not nearly enough to load the two vessels, I think it would be better not to send this one up now but to keep it in readiness below the Sault in case any accident should happen to the other or that it should not return soon enough. We must never disappoint people in the matter of shipping goods. Major De Peyster returns the six barrels of rum you loaned Mr. Bennett and I am crediting your account with the kegs he got. I am sending you one barrel of good port wine and two barrels of whiskey for your own table use.

Kindly advise Messrs. Machard, Piquette & Co. that I hold their acceptance for eight thousand francs drawn by Mr. Sanguinet⁶⁷ that they may make provision for the payment.

⁶⁷ Both Charles and Joseph Sanguinet were engaged in trade in the Northwest during this period. Charles was a native of Quebec, born in 1740, who on coming west first settled at Detroit. Apparently he was at Mackinac by 1770, for a daughter of his was born there in September of that year. A few years later he removed to the Illinois country, and for many years made his home at St. Louis, where he died in 1818. See Wis. Hist. Colls., XIX, 75 and 304, and Ill. Hist. Colls., II, 54 et passim.

Joseph Sanguinet in 1780 became one of the founders of the general store at Mackinac, at which time he is recorded as having his headquarters at Montreal. In 1786 he was a vestryman of the church of Ste. Anne at Mackinac. Wis. Hist. Colls., XVIII, 493.

I shall try to have your big boat sent off tomorrow with the mare's harness, the large kettle, ashes, tarpaulin, cart wheels and corn. I think you told me that the freight from this place to the Grand Portage on goods shipped in the vessels is \$2 per piece, and that $1\frac{1}{4}$ minots is one piece, a barrel is one piece, and a hundred weight of flour is one piece. Besides the freight there is the charge for taking care of them at the Sault and for carrying at your portage. The freight from here to the Sault at 75 cents per piece is reasonable. I have gone over our accounts and find a difference of only 283 livres 4 sols. I had omitted to credit you with the freight last fall and with some provisions for Pomp and Chalou, both amounting to 211 livres. Then I have taken the liberty of charging your account with 62 livres Mr. Francis Campau⁶⁸ owes me, and you had forgotten the tarpaulin in your last account at 20 livres. These all amount to that sum and a pistole over, so that our accounts are straight now. If Mr. Campau does not pay you I shall deduct as much from your account. I am indeed glad to find you so exact. Nothing gives me more pleasure, and it is also the only way to succeed in business.

I have received the kegs you sent. [Take] a receipt from Mr. Cadotte for the 20 minots of hulled corn which is in the vessel for Mr. Henry. I have not been able to get any grease yet, neither for you nor for Mr. Frobisher. The two pairs of shoes I am sending for Mrs. McDonald look to me pretty big but they are the size you ordered. The Indian passed Capt. Robertson by tacking. I never saw a small vessel sail so close to the wind. I sold your panis to Lavoine for 750 livres. He is too stupid to make a sailor or to be any good whatever. You have charged me only 23 livres a minot for the $144\frac{1}{2}$ minots of lye hominy you loaned me, and the 60 barrels of rum are entered at only 150 livres a barrel. I shall return both and shall put them in at the same price. You know I had $105\frac{1}{2}$ minots of corn at your place all winter. That, with the $144\frac{1}{2}$ makes the 250 that you should have credited as taken to the Sault to send on and which I have charged up. Otherwise one could never keep things straight.

You have done well with the Indians I notice, and I feel certain that business will be good. Archange and all the family embrace you tenderly. Present my compliments to Mrs. McDonald. There is a bag of biscuit in addition to the men's provisions which is for the Indian on Lake Superior. Our accounts are now straight and there is a balance of 57897 livres 9 sols that you owe me. I have engaged a man to go with the Indian in place of Jupiter whom I shall send to you in the canoe.

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO NATHANIEL DAY AT MONTREAL,

I was Honoured with your two Letters bearing date the 6th of October & the 20th of Jan^y last the 3^d Inst^t; the returns I transmited to you the 8th of last Month will shew plainly the Quantity of Provisions then in Store, Except I may be a little rong in respect to the W^t of what was laid aside as bad, but the difirence is so trifling that it cannot cause Any Mistake in Estimating what may be wanted for this Garrison. I shall in future [a]greable to your Orders send in the fall of Each year the return & demand of what Provisions may be wanted for this Post.

The great distance of this Place renders it Imposible for me to Comply with your Orders so Speedily as I could wish. the returns for the 24th of May was made up before I recev^d your Orders for changing the form & as the 24th Inst. is so near, & it being a time for making the General Settlem^t I thought it would be best & most Agreable to you to continue the Old form untill that time. In particular as I cannot well see how the change can be made Except after a General Settlement without deviating too much from the rules you have been pleased to lay down. I do suppose that when you sent off Your Orders & the New returns, you Expected they would have reached me Early in february & as at that time I could not have sent off Any Vouchers nor Accounts since the 24th of Dec^r 1777 it would have been Easy for me to have given up the old Vouchers & taken Others with Dif^t N^{os} According to the New form, as also to have had Others Signed Monthly for the Condemned Deficient, & lost (which formerly was done only every six Months,) but your Orders Arriving so late has made the task more difficult, however if you Judge proper still to have the Alteration made, I shall do Everything in my power & commence it when you think proper. The New form of Monthly return has in my Oppinion many Advantages Over any we yett have had, as it at one View shews the true State of the Provisions Store & strength of the Garrison.

With the last Months Accounts I send you a return of the Number of Persons which in all probability will have to be Victuled here from July 1778 to July 1779 Indians Excepted of whoes Numbers no person can well jud[g]e being some days above three hundred & Others not more than ten besides their receiving Chiefly flour & Pork a Calculation in all Species would not Answer for them. I have therefore in the return only said what Quantity I think may serve them without any mention of their Numbers.

There is a Vessell taken Into the Crowns Service at this Post, on the same Conditions as those at Detroit, therefore the Seamen are allowed a ration & a half per day & half a pint of rum & as there was none of the latter In Store I have been Necessiated to purchase a Barrell here at a high rate.

I have now to return you my Thanks for your Allowance of a Cooper & I hope it will not be displeasing to you that I Insert in the General Settlem^t for the last 6 Months two setts of receipts for his & my Rations commencing the 25th of December last. Your having Mentioned in Your Letter that the receipts for the Commissary & Coopers rations are to be transmited to you Every Six Months gives me reason to think I might draw them; if I should be rong in my Conjectures, I will make the Alteration on the first Notice, however Suffer me to Asure you that Even a Ration per

My dear Brother: Since the Indian left and even before, Charlie [has been hunting] your mare every day but has not found her. I have had a thousand difficulties too in finding somebody to get your merchandise ready. I am keeping Caliez and sending Robideau⁶⁹ north. You must tell me how much he owes you, for how long he is engaged, and how much you pay him a year. With respect to the lye hominy, you promised me this spring enough, with what I had all winter at the Sault, to make up 250 minots. I beg you to have that quantity ready in time for those who have ordered it as I told you. Otherwise they will be disappointed and I would not have that happen for a hundred times the amount. There were to be 100 minots for the North West Company and 100 minots for Mr. Chaboillez. If the canoes of any of these gentlemen are passing the Sault and can take what is left of what you agreed to furnish me, kindly deliver it to them; if not, put it on the vessel. Then there will be no cause for complaint against either you or me.

I believe my canoes had orders to go to the Sault to deliver what is for you. Take off all my rum that is for the gentlemen at the north and put it on their canoes as they go through, without sending it on here. Be sure to take a receipt and send it to me.

It is not possible for me to tell you for this year what is to be shipped on the vessel as each trader will take what he can in his canoes and the remainder will go on the vessel. Another year I shall try to have all that arranged better.

It is true that I have engaged Mr. Nodisne for three years, also another clerk, and besides them I expect Mr. Lorty in soon. Grease costs 3 livres a pound and very scarce at that.

I find it will be better to put Baptiste with Mr. McDonald instead of with Mr. Brulon, and I shall send Pomp back to you. I have not thought it well to send Louison out with Brulon as he had the impudence to strike him. Chalou behaved himself on the last voyage. Lavoine is out at present but as the Archange is on her way up from Detroit I shall send her to you with a load of flour and rum. I shall try to collect something of what Mr. Campau owes. As soon as your vessel gets in try to send them [the peltries] to me by the first good opportunity so that I can have them loaded in my canoes.

Archange asks you for her books and embraces you tenderly. There may be something more to add, if not, I remain.

This merchandise amounts to 3696 livres 18 sols.

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO JOSEPH FROBISHER AND JOHN MCGILL,
JUNE 13, 1778

As I'm informed that you two have to transact the business of the N. W. C^o this Season, I take this opportunity of M^r M^cBeth to inform you that by letter I Received from Montreal to day, I'm assured that there is on the way for me about 150 Kegs of Rum & Spirits all which quantity or more if it arrives you shall have by the two Canoes S^t Cir left for the purpose, or what part of it they may not be able to take with them shall go by the first Vessel, the Grease your M^r Jo^s Forbisher ordered shall also go by the Canoes

JOHN ASKIN PAPERS

& if in my power I will furnish the additional quantity of Rum he wrote me about, however it will first be necessary to send what I have already engaged to find you. I hope the return of my Vessell from Detroit will put it in my power to send you the remainder of your Rum & Flour. My Liquors that's coming up this [spring] I'm informed was to leave Deer Island the 10th of last Month in a Vessell that was ready to take them on Board. I imagine that you got by the first trip of the Vessell all that was forwarded to you, except what your own Canoes took, for tho' I mean to serve others, yet my intention is by all means that you have the Preference, indeed I mean to allot one of the two small Vessells purely for your Service, only when you cannot load her of course others may put on board, the other I mean for the use of such other Gentlemen as may choose to Ship in her, when I have the Pleasure of seeing you here we will settle all them matters.

I have not as yet heard from Your Mr John Mc^cGill⁷⁰ who I'm told is gone to the Saut St Mary's some time ago, you have only 50 Bushells of Corn more to receive of me, which I was ordered to leave at the Saut for the Canoes that go down, except the 40 lately ordered

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO MESSRS. TODD AND MCGILL AT
MONTREAL, JUNE 14, 1778

I hear Mr Howard intends sending a Canoe for Montreal to morrow, I will therefore write you as much as time will permit for the present & the remainder by some other opportunity.

I have Received five letters from you this Season, dated the 21st & 28th April, the 9th, 11th & 16th May, the two first I received the 5th & the three latter the 13th Instant, I

beleive there is some others from you for me, but M^r John M^cGill having taken them to S^t Mary's with him, prevents their comeing by several days so soon as they otherwise would.

I'm very sorry you should make yourselves so unhappy about the return of my rum last fall, I'm sure I never blemt you for it, on the contrary I'm well persuaded when anything under your directions miscarry, the same would happen were I there in person. I do asure you I'm under many obligations to you for the pains you have taken about my things. I now have great hopes of seeing them soon & tho' I may reap a great benifit by it in the sale of some of them, what pleases me most is the having it in my power to furnish the Gentlemen of the N. W. C^o the remainder of their Liquors after what I sent them & what is in my Canoes, which is not yett arrived.

The very clear account you have sent me of the furr's shipt on my Account as well as my Liquors & c^a in their different Situations deserves my thanks, as I see you have not spared pains to make every thing very clear to me. I have already sent you all the proofs I can give about the Martins that are missing, if they do not answer, they must of cource be lost. I approve of your plann of sending me Rum whither ordered or not, if it can get up, I can never Suffer by having a quantity, besides I can then contract with much more Safety to myself & others. I shall not for some time yet be able to examine our Accounts.

I have wrote M^r Steadman to send me Rum in lieu of what he took of mine, this will be more advantagious to me by much. You forgot inclosing the Gentlemen of the Garrison's Accounts as you mention, you have only noted the Sum, however I beleive this will answer for me to get Payment from them. Lieut. Bennett had already desired me to charge him his, he knew & told me the amount, when I see my Canoes & hear from S^t Mary's, I will let you know exactly what Rum & Spirits is come for me in my own & the N. W. Canoes. I wish you had been more plain in letting me know whither they were to go to S^t Mary's, or come here first, as I have kept two large Canoes of the C^{os} here in order to take the rum that is in mine.

Old François is not yet arrived, but I expect him daily. I shall pay due attention to what you say respecting his going into the North. I'm sure he shall not with my consent & I dare say he will not without. I assure you that tho' I now supply several others, besides the great C^o, I have a certain inclination to forward their interest preferable to any other, & tho' I would not take any unfair means to prevent Gentlemen in that concern doing well, yet no profit should induce me to undertake any thing that could in the least hurt a concern where so many of my friends are interested. I'm determined never to undertake Canoes for any but them, & one Vessell shall be solely at their disposal, so far as they can make use of her. As to the Supplying of others with Rum, Corn &c^a after I have made sure of what will be wanted for the great C^o⁷¹ (as we now must term them for distinction sake) it can be a matter of no consequence to that concern, for if I did not do so others would. I'm therefore sure it would be rather pleasing than otherwise to my friends to hear I made money. I Received 240ⁿ from Major De Peyster for the Rum & Bisket taken by Mr Ainse from Roi, & the N.W.C^o has credit for it in their last years accounts the 28th of June. I Received from Amable Roi⁷² & La fevre £9ⁿ6ⁿ8 N.Y.C^y last Year which I omitted advising you off, charge me with that sum, it's all I have been able to collect on acc^t of you & your Brother John. Before Lieu^t Bennett left this I did what I thought necessary in order that your C^o at the Portage should still pass for what it actually is, the most respectable both as to proprietors & amount.

⁷¹ The first organization of the North West Company has heretofore been ascribed to the year 1779. See Gordon, The North West Company, 9 ff. This letter establishes that it had been founded at least a year earlier, and by implication indicates that it was formed two years prior to 1779.

you may judge of M^{rs} Askin & M^{rs} Robertson by other Lady's, for in certain matters women are almost all alike. I beleive Cap^t Robertsons Marriage will make him consent to pass some years in this Country. I have not yet talked to him on the Subject, however had there been any thing entred into on his account, you should not have been disappointed, he has too much sentiment to suffer it, we have time to see more into these matters he could have the Command of a Kings Vessell on these leakes, but it realy is not worth his acceptance, nor will he take it.

I hope to hear much news from You after M^r Todds Arrival from England, dont be plagueing me at this busy time with an account of my having drawn the £20000, it would be very unseasonable & perhaps take my mind off[f] my other business. I shall not make you any remittances untill my own Canoes go down.

Madam Chaboillez,

Madam: I should have been pleased to answer sooner the letters which you did me the honor to write me on the 20th and 28th ult.

On the 2d inst. Mr. Augustin delivered to your clerk what goods we were to furnish your husband, so that, with the exception of ten barrels of rum and some hundred weight or so of flour which he will also get long before he needs them, all your goods left here before even a single canoe arrived from Montreal. Your clerk took the canoes from here. It would not be possible to send them to the Sault as early as the northern traders would need them, and to do Mr. Toussaint justice, that gentleman is a man of great dispatch, for he set out again within three hours of his arrival without having left a single article of what he was to take.

It will be my pleasure to serve you at all times as occasion may present, and you may be assured that I shall always keep an eye on your interests.

With respect to the rum and corn that you ordered, I cannot promise the first until the vessel that I have sent to Detroit returns, and I am expecting her any day, but the corn I shall send according to your instructions.

I thank you for your intention of continuing to be supplied by me and I shall do my best to give you good service.

Mrs. Askin begs me to assure you of her regard.

Michilimackinac, June 15, 1778

My Friend: I shall improve a moment of leisure by writing you briefly in reply to your letter of the 25th ultimo, though I must decline your generous offer, and that of Madam your wife, on the subject of my little daughter who is here. Indeed, Mr. McGill was mistaken, for we never entertained the thought of sending her down except we went ourselves. Mrs. Askin could not bear the absence of her children, though we are exceedingly obliged to you for your kind intentions.

News in your quarter is necessarily limited until the arrival of the London vessels. There are great rejoicings here when the first canoes come in from Montreal. The affair of General Burgoyne makes us anxious for our friends.

BURTON HISTORICAL RECORDS

I have attended to your order in the matter of changing the accounts of Machard & Co., and wrote Mr. Barthe at the Sault on the subject of that debt. Now I am waiting until they come here to arrange what is still unsettled of their affairs.

Referring to the note of Hypolyte Chaboillez, I cannot promise you that I shall be able to get payment from him. For one thing, he is below and the Major has taken possession of his packs. You know why. However, I do not think they will be held up. I fancy they will be returned to him below, though I still hope to be allowed to take some out here and therefore am not returning you his note with this.

Mrs. Askin begs you to have a gold thimble made for her the same size as that you so kindly sent her before, but much stronger on the edge, the other being broken already in several places. Both Mrs. Askin and Mrs. Robertson, and myself, of course, beg you to present our respects to your wife.

Believe me sincerely

Since writing the above it has been possible for me to take from the canoes of Hypolyte Chaboillez the value of 200 livres in beaver and 20 otters good and bad, not in payment but as security. I was even obliged to sign a statement to the effect that these peltries will be returned to him below, when he has paid the amount of the note. Foolish arrangement, but one must do all sorts of things to extract payment. The rest of this gentleman's peltries are going down now, so try to get what you think he should return to you on the note after what I tell you should be deducted.

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO RICHARD DOBIE
AT MONTREAL, JUNE 15, 1778

I was favoured with your letter by M^r W^m Grant⁷⁵ the 10th Instant. I shall always esteem myself happy to have it in my power to serve any person you recommend.

M^{rs} Askin, M^{rs} Robertson & the rest of my famely are in good health, they beg I may asure you & M^{rs} Dobie of their esteem.

Little news of consiquence can be expected untill the Vessells arrive from Europe, & that news have reached you before now I'm Sure.

An affair has happened which I fear will render the Securing of the payment of the thirty otters due you on Mons^r Chaboulliez's first note very difficult. Major De Peyster has taken his Packs into the Kings Store in consequence of some complaints lodged against him respecting Merchandize belonging to Government his packs are to be sent down in his own Canoes, but not delivered him untill the Commanding Officer at Montreal consents to it. I think you had better try in case I should fail here to insure your payment below, as to the last note you sent me, I have thought it most advisable to inclose it to you, as I have not any hopes of it's being discharged here, nor the interest of the former, if Mons^r Chaboulliez was on the spot perhaps I could do more

I remain with esteem

P.S. Since I wrote the foregoing I have been trying & find I shall be able to get from 20 to 30 otters good & bad lodged with me as part Security for the 30 due you, however, I will be obliged to give an obligation that you return them otters below on getting their full Value paid you. You'll think this a very extraordinary way of doing of business, yet when there is no law to force people to pay their debts, it becomes even necessary to make agreements such as County takes its name) was named for him. In 1759, when Canada was tottering to its fall, the entire Green Bay settlement together with an extensive area adjoining, is said to have been granted to François Rigaud and wife, and from them the grant was purchased by William Grant. Since it purported to convey an "exclusive right of trade," other Canadian traders complained to Sir William Johnson. The latter regarded the claim as invalid, "a piece of artifice huddled up about the time of the surrender of Canada," and it was never enforced. See letters in Wis. Hist. Colls., XVIII, 274, 287. A letter of Abraham Cuyler to Askin, June 28, 1799, indicates that Grant was still living in Montreal at that time.

fools in business dictates, rather than not get any payment at all. The other Packs of Mons^r Chaboulliez now go down, therefore try to secure yourself.

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO BENJAMIN FROBISHER
AT MONTREAL, JUNE 15, 1778

In my last dated the 6th Instant I wrote you pretty fully about every thing relative to your North Concern, for the present I have only to add on that head, that I every day expect my Vessell every day with the Rum & Flour to compleat your C^{os} quantity which shall be forwarded with the greatest expedition, my Canoes from Montreal are not yer [yet] arrived but I expect them to morrow, as Cap^t Robertson on his way from taking a view of the french River, saw three which must be them.

M^r John M^cGill has got to S^t Mary's several days ago if I may judge from where M^r Morrison left him, for I have not as yet received the letters &c^a he brought up for me.

In all your new undertakings I wish you Equal success to that you have had in the North, & the continuance of that also. I think it very just that the young sett should now take the same pains the old have done, it's true equal success can hardly be expected from such a change, added to the number of adventurers being Augmented, if anything I can do here exclusive of what I'm obliged to do, can be of Service to the concern, it never shall be wanting.

This place affords no news which I can send you in return to your's, which I thank you for.

I received the hundred Livers Galliard owned you & I have wrote Mess^{rs} Todd & M^cGill to pay you that sum, as we have no other account open with each other to my knowledge.

I return you thanks for the Printed engagements you were so kind as to send me, they will be very servicable & prevent some trouble.

I have this day promoted a very necessary Ordinance which is, that no person can hire an Engagé without seeing a proper discharge from his former Master, or a Certificate from the Commanding Officer why he has none, & what strengthens this is all the Merchants having Signed it & invested the Commanding Officer with Authority to make such agressor pay 1000ⁿ without the power of afterwards suing for it, there is something more to prevent carrying from any place persons in Debt who are not hired,⁷⁶ the like is to take place at the Portage, so that I hope things will soon be on a better footing

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO CHARLES PATTERSON AT
MONTREAL, JUNE 17, 1778

As I expect you will be returned to Montreal by the time this gets down, I take this occasion of writing you. I refer you to M^r Frobisher for a full account of every thing relative to your North concern to whom I wrote several letters on the Subject, knowing for certain that he was at Montreal.

Your friends in this quarter have thought themselves very happy to have a dance once a week & entertain their Company with a dish of Tea & humble Grogg during the last winter, whilst you at London could have all your wants & wishes Supplied, as well as your wanton wishes.

A propos now we are on the Subject, there is a Boy here who was sold to the Ottawas, that every body but yourself says is yours, he suffered much poor child with them. I have at length been able to get him from them on promise of giving an Indian Woman Slave in his Stead—he's at your service if you want him, if not I shall take good care of him untill he is able to earn his Bread without Assistance.

We can have no hopes of seeing you in this part of the country. M^{rs} Askin presents her compliments & beleive me

⁷⁶ A study of the contemporary records renders it fairly clear that the administration of the law in the regions where the fur trade was carried on was practically wholly in the hands of the employers. Askin's statements afford interesting evidence confirmatory of the general conclusion here stated. For further light on this point see Quaife, Wisconsin: Its History and Its People, I, 397-98.

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO JOHN HAY AT DETROIT,
JUNE 17, 1778

As a true Irishman I want to tell you that at this present time I have nothing to say, or rather that is worth your hearing all the Spring news from Montreal you must have had, & our last canoes from Montreal left that the 16th of May, at which time there was not any Vessel Arrived from London, or any part of Europe at Quebec.

Mess^{rs} Langlade & Gotiez⁷⁷ are on their way from La Bay here with above two hundred Warriors who are going down the Country.

M^r Charles Morrison is with us & gives a much better Account of the Rebbels behaviour respecting what they call justice than any I have heard, as to public matters he was kept in the dark as much as if he had not been in the Country, he got twenty-eight of their paper Dollars for a half Joe⁷⁸ before he came away, judge the repute of their Currency is in

This is my buisy time, I shall therefore conclude by presenting M^{rs} Hay and famely with M^{rs} Askin & my Compliments I am &c.

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO JAMES STERLING AT DETROIT,
JUNE 17, 1778

I hope by the time this reaches you that a great part of my things will be arrived from Montreal, & as C^t Robertson says I have empty Kegs at Detroit, I wish as much as time would permit that the Spirits in Barrells all except a few, was drawn into the Kegs & sent forward the first [opportunity], provided the whole cannot come at once, I hope you'll do your utmost to get as much as possible on board each Vessell untill the whole arrives, the Liquors are more wanted than any thing else, except my flour, which I hope is on the way in the Archange. I shall want of that Article what I first ordered, thirty thousand W^t, & as I'm well asured that very large quantities are comeing up I imagine the price must soon if not already fall.

I shall want twelve Barrells of good lime, so soon as they can be sent without taking the room of them up, from something more necessary.

I shall want a good Ox for my own use between this and the fall, the sooner you can have him sent the better.

My dear Brother: I have just learned from Mr. Solomon⁷⁹ that my canoes have gone to your place, probably to deliver your bales and all my rum. I am told that I have 93 barrels of rum in the canoes and 9 barrels of spirits. Please deliver that to the bearer of this letter and take his receipt. There will still be 4 barrels of beef of mine, 2 trunks, some bales, and other things which you will send to me. You may keep one barrel of beef if you think best. You will do well to send me by these canoes all the peltries you have on hand, and be sure to count them in the presence of the guide.

The gentlemen of the North West Company brought up from Montreal in some of their canoes 5 barrels of rum and 24 barrels of spirits. Tell me if these were left with you. If they are there you may give them also to the bearer and anything else you may have for these gentlemen, provided that he can take it, if not, send what is left by the first vessel.

I hope that the Mackinac has got up, for as soon as the Archange arrives I shall send her with her load to you and I want a vessel all ready above the Sault to receive it as we cannot lose a minute without great wrong to the gentlemen whom I have agreed to supply. Goodby, my dear brother.

⁷⁹ Ezekiel Solomon was one of the earliest British traders in the Northwest, coming out to Mackinac from Montreal in 1761. He was here at the time of the massacre of the garrison in 1763, when he was taken prisoner, but was ransomed and returned to Montreal. In July, 1778, he signed the subscription made by Mackinac residents for a missionary at that place, and in 1779 he was one of the founders of the general store in which the Mackinac traders pooled their goods and activities. In 1784 he joined in creating a committee to regulate the trade of Mackinac and "dependencies." No certain information concerning his later career has been found, but from certain papers in the Mich. Pio. Colls. it seems likely he located at St. Joseph Island in Lake Huron upon the British evacuation of Mackinac in 1796. Information adapted from Mich. Pio. Colls., passim.

Michilimackinac, June 21, 1778

My dear Brother: I received your letter by the canoes.

I have only time now to say that it will be necessary to send back the De Peyster as soon as possible without waiting for the flour or anything else as she has her load and there is not a moment to lose without loss to the northern traders.

I am much mortified that you did not send Mr. Oakes's share of merchandise with that of the other gentlemen. One should never give offence in trade. To go to the other extreme, I mean to please everybody.

Now, as soon as the De Peyster arrives I beg you to put on board first all that then remains for Mr. Oakes at your place. It may be that these canoes in passing will take something before the De Peyster gets there. There should be 100 minots of lye hominy for Mr. Oakes according to the first account that I sent you, so I hope that you have that much. Not for a thousand francs would I have him disappointed.

I am expecting any day from Detroit by the Angelique 200 minots that I shall send you. You may therefore give out the 100 minots for Mr. Oakes even though you take it from the supply for some one else in case you have not enough. I shall send both the Mackinac and the Archange to the Sault so that Brulon can help to get the Mackinac up also, for it is absolutely necessary that she goes on. It will be too late to wait for the third trip of the De Peyster to send the flour and the rest of the rum for these gentlemen.

Robideau has deserted though I am quite sure he is in hiding somewhere. He is afraid of having to go north. Messrs. Holmes & Grant promised to send you a good carpenter for me provided you could let them have a man in his place for the north. If you have one I will give him a thousand francs. There is a sailor too that these gentlemen would send you if you could find a man in his place, and Robideau, I might have exchanged for him

My Canoes are now arrived & have brought every thing in good order & agreeable to the invoice, except in Bale N° 7 a small white Shirt in lieu of a large one Ruffled, Bale N° 3 wants a Shirt of Russia Sheeting, a pair of Russia Trousars & a pair of oxbide Shoes, N° 4 also wants a Shirt of Russia Sheeting.

The things from England are really well choose & please me much, however a fiddle which I had mentioned in that memord^m is left out, & tho' such an omition can be of no consiquence to persons who can supply the want at the next Shop, it is so different here, that I would not for ten Guineas it had not come, please purchase one for me at Montreal without fail, let the price be about £6 Hallifax. I sent you a memord^m this Spring in which a fiddle was mentioned, that one is also to come, its for an other person, please not to forget a quantity of strings with the fiddles.

I approve much of your plan of forwarding rum as soon as you receive it, no matter what Quantity if it gets on, for except I have it here beforehand, I will not make any more positive contracts, the freight of what came in my Canoes will I dare say cost as much as I get for the whole Rum, but this is not what gives me the greatest uneasyness it's the fear of the NW. C° not receiving the whole of their Quantity in time, during these troubles I know of no other way of contracting with them, but fixing a price on what of the rum comes by the Lakes & letting them have that by the Grand River at first cost & Expences (I want no profit on it) they must allow me Commissions for purchasing their Corn, flour &c^a for the Bushell of Corn this Year costs me 32/ & I furnished it for 24/ I received my Shirts by M^r Solomon who arrived here in eighteen Days

I have no time at present to examine the Accounts, but shall so soon as [I am] more at leisure. I intend sending off my Canoes in about ten days time, I cannot [write more?], there is above three hundred Warriors going down.

MONTREAL, JUNE 23, 1778

Looking over the letters yet unanswer'd I find yours of the 25th Ult^o to which I made no reply in my Yesterdays letter.

I'm very glad that there is so great a likelihood of my rum arriving so soon, I daily expect the Angelica & the Vessell I sent for the flour here, perhaps my rum may be on board, the Tarr & Kettles are not pressing articles, I can do without them some time, provided the pitch gets safe here, & as to the cheese please repleace it with another Hamper this Year. The Canadian Pork & loaf Sugar which you mention being Short of my order of the 18th Sep^r 1777, I can well do without, but the covering Nails & common Wine are both very Saleable articles, however as there is a large Quantity of the former of these articles comeing or come out for me, it will be needless to purchase others at Montreal.

Old François goes for Detroit he intends living there. I shall send a Young Brother-in-law⁸⁰ of mine to take his place at Millwakee as much on acc^t of the Corn to be got there as the Peltry.

I am under many obligations to you for the Uncommon pains you have been at in order to insure the speedy passage of my things by the Lakes. I will be attentive to what you mention respecting the time of payment of such drafts as I shall draw on You.

I am in such want of Waistcoats & Breeches that I beg you will have immediately purchased for me six or eight

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO ALEXANDER HENRY AT
MONTREAL, JUNE 23, 1778

I suppose by this time you are returned from England⁸²

81 John Porteous was a prominent merchant of Montreal in the Revolutionary period. He was a signer, Jan. 10, 1774, of the petition to the Crown for the establishment of a representative assembly in Quebec Province, and in this connection has been characterized as one of the "most loyal, sterling, and moderate persons in the community." See Canada and Its Provinces (Toronto, 1914), XV, 142. On Oct. 4, 1771, he married Josephite Drouet de Carqueville and to them several children were born. He died, June 13, 1782, and in 1785, James McGill became guardian of his children. See Canadian Archives Report for 1885, lxxxii ff.; ibid for 1889, xvi.

82 In the summer of 1776, Henry had returned to Montreal from his fifteen-year sojourn in the wilderness, and that place remained his home thenceforth until his death in 1824. In the latter part of the year 1776 he had gone to England; apparently this was Askin's first letter to him after his return to Canada.

JOHN ASKIN PAPERS

& of cource expect to hear from your old Acquaintance.

I sent your Corn & flour to S^t Mary's agreeable to your letter to me on that Subject. I did not go to Detroit last fall as I intended when I seen you last, these troublesome times causes many disputes in which a man often gets involved, notwithstanding his great desire to the contrary I therefore thought it most prudent to stay where I'm sure to live in peace.

Im building a new house out of the Fort & intend to make use of it untill the present warr is at an end & then shall change my Quarters, but where to I know not as yet.

Lyons wintered with us here & Bostwick went to the Illinois, he is returned with a large Bag of Diamonds & other precious Stones.

My dear Brother: The Mackinac has come in and now I know that Mr. Oakes has not had any corn at the Sault. More than that, he notes that I still owe 45 minots to Mr. Charles Chaboillez. I am exceedingly worried for I had assured both these gentlemen that their supply was on hand. I am not reproaching you but such a thing would never have happened to me for I should have relied only on what I had myself. I now send you the account for the corn I have sent to the Sault by the vessel this year and last fall. Deduct from all that what you have given out and there remains only 24 minots. Your statement to me for this year said 200 minots of corn. You will see by the account that I have furnished 216, in both hulled and lye hominy. I have made some brief notes about the mistakes which occurred in the last bill of lading.

Mr. Joubert notes that he marked 28 pieces. He also notes that there are 28 of another mark too many. That must be from what Lorty⁸³ put on board, of which there are two bags marked E S too many, for there are 312 pieces and I thought there should be only 310.

⁸³ Possibly Jean Baptiste Lorty (Lortie) who was on the payroll of the Indian Department at Detroit prior to Oct. 24, 1782. See Mich. Pio. Colls., XI, 344.

JOHN ASKIN PAPERS

Tomorrow morning I shall send the vessel with all the corn that I can gather up, to try to prevent, in part at least, that my contract with Mr. Oakes and Mr. Chaboillez may not be filled. Have her pass up the Sault as soon as possible that the goods of these two gentlemen may be delivered, and the other articles which are on board, if the Archange arrives so that she can be at the Sault in plenty of time before the Mackinac is prepared to leave for the Portage, if not there is no need for her to wait.

Michilimackinac, June 26, 1778

My dear Brother: I have before me your four letters—two dated the 17th, and two the 18th inst. and have received the books you sent by Lamouche. You did right to stop him from trading when he had no license. I have warned the Major about him. As both boats must make the trip to the Grand Portage and as they will not be loaded, the freight you miss on Mr. Nadin's goods will not be a great loss. I would rather not make any more contracts with the traders until these troubles are over. There is too much risk, besides the blame one incurs. I might engage to supply provisions on commission to those who care to employ me in that way, with the assurance that I would do my best not to disappoint them. Merchandise is neither dear nor scarce as you have been told. The Major needed it for the Indians but that is all over now. Neither the Mackinac nor the Archange has come in yet. I am hoping to see one or the other today, now that the wind is fair.

I bought the bark you ordered, and had it stripped for Mr. McGill. You did right to keep the 99 barrels of rum. That is just what I would have told you to do. You have delivered them, no doubt, to the two canoes. I have not time now to make out the freight on your goods, but I dare say it will cost about 80 livres each piece, according to what I am told by one who has made some estimate on it. However, as my canoes will come back loaded that will fix the rate.

I have written you enough on the subject of Mr Oakes's corn in my letter of the 21st inst., and hope you gave it due attention. I notice what you write for Robideau and the provisions that you furnished for the guide Parisien.

The Mackinac is in sight now since I began to write. I shall send her back immediately with all the lye hominy I can gather up. As soon as she reaches you get her ready to go on up for I shall have the Archange set out again as soon as she comes in. Tell Messrs. Machard & Co. that I expect them here before they dispose of their peltries or pay any notes, since they wish to begin by the last equipment, according to the custom of the country.⁸⁴

⁸⁴ The custom referred to was that a trader should begin payment of his debts with the merchant who had supplied his last outfit of goods; whatever remained

I have received the note Merci drew up for you. It is not yet paid. I am sending you his written statement, and it would seem by it that there has been a partnership between Gaudin and La Belle. However, without waiting to see both parties, it is impossible to form a correct opinion in the matter. If Joubert and Gaudin cannot agree between themselves, the quickest way will be for them to come here where they will have a private room to arrange for a settlement.

27th I am having the merchandise carted over to load the vessel in the bay as there is a fine fair wind. She should be at the detour this evening. The corn I am loading lacks 145 minots. Do try to find that much as we must have it for Mr. Oakes and Mr. Chaboillez, unless you have sent them some that you have not mentioned in the account you sent me. In that case it would be that much less you would need to send now.

Mr. Charles Chaboillez,

My Friend: You are blaming me perhaps, but not justly, for I assure you that only today did I learn that you had not received all the corn I contracted to supply, either by the first voyage of the vessel or for sure by your own canoes. Now I can only hope that the 45 minots still lacking will go up by the De Peyster on her second trip, but if not, they will be in the Mackinac which I sent off this morning and which will go straight through to the Grand Portage. The vessel that was to go to Detroit for the rest of the rum and flour for the North West Company and for you has not come in yet, though it is more than three weeks since she left. I dare not send you any of the King's flour, it is so bad. However, I have risked sending a little to the North West Company, as they must be in great distress for flour.

I close by assuring you that I am doing everything possible, but in a time of universal trouble, no one is sure.

Sir: I had yesterday the pleasure of receiving your letter dated the 21st inst. Your representation of the affair between Gaudin and La Belle seems clear enough, but as the decision does not rest with me, my opinion has no more weight than any other. The Commandant himself, by a council of the traders, decides in all matters of dispute that may arise here.⁸⁶ Therefore, your quickest plan will be to come here with Mr. Gaudin. Yesterday evening I received a letter from Madam, your wife. At first, seeing it addressed to me, I was breaking open the seal, but at the same moment I noticed my error and resealed it without, I assure you, having read a single word. [Mrs.] Askin presents her compliments. I am, Sir,

Your very humble and very obedient servant.

And be assured, Sir, that I have every inclination to serve you. It is true, I do not prosecute people. I might have more paid for myself, but with those who have the means, I manage without that.

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO MESSRS. MCGILL AND FROBISHER AT GRAND PORTAGE, JUNE 30, 1778

My Vessell from Detroit is arrived this morning, but instead of being loaded for me Solely, She was obliged to bring the Kings Stores & even other things, so that I only got in her some Rum & flour, all which I send for the Portage. You will receive 25 Bags of 100 W^t each & 38 Kegs of W. I. Rum filled up at Detroit, all my attempts are vain to keep my Engagements with those I have contracted with, my own Vessell is treated in the same manner as if she was paid by the Crown, if this continues rather than have the anxety I have had this Summer I will not contract with any person, besides many casks which I foresee will be altogether wanting, it takes two to fill seven at Detroit, we expect another Vessell in a very few Days, in her I hope to have more flour & Rum which I will forward to you without loss of time. Corn begins to be a Scarce Article, however I must send 50 Bushels for your Canoes to S^t Mary's & then you will have received more than our agreement I'm so hurried I hardly know what I write. M^{rs} Askin presents her Compliments & beleive me most truely &c.

My dear Brother: I am sending you the bill of lading for the Archange, with nothing removed, and expect much more by the Angelica and the Welcome. I have not marked the goods but ask you to do that as follows: Mark 38 barrels of rum N W for the North West Company, and the remaining 10 barrels mark C CH for Mr. Charles Chaboillez. That makes the 48 barrels on board. Mark 5 bags of flour C CH for Mr. Charles Chaboillez, 10 bags of flour F O for Mr. Oakes, and 25 bags of flour N W for the North West Company. That makes the 40 bags on board. Send all that to the Grand Portage for these gentlemen by the first opportunity, which I think will be by the Indian. Then there are $62\frac{3}{4}$ minots of lye hominy on board, which, with the 109 minots I sent you by the Indian, makes $171\frac{3}{4}$. I still owe 100 minots of the amount I agreed to supply Mr. Oakes, and 45 to Mr. Chaboillez, and to you also, according to the account I sent you by [blank] I owe $24\frac{1}{2}$ minots. After you have sent Mr. Oakes 100 minots, and Mr. Chaboillez 45, there will still be $26\frac{3}{4}$ minots, which is $2\frac{1}{2}$ more than I owe you—and which I have today charged to your account—and all the corn debt is settled. Before the Archange can get back here I shall have as much more to load her and send you.

I received your letter dated the 24th and the 25th, and am really satisfied that you do everything as well as possible. Indeed, I do not see how you could accomplish all you have to do. I am sending you a clerk. If you find he suits you, he will relieve you a little. I think it would be better for you not to have anything more sent this shorter route.

Bill of lading of the Archange, at Michilimackinac.

Mr. Bourassa⁸⁷

Sir: I am extremely mortified to be obliged to send you such a bad account of your debtors in this place, and now Mr. Sanschagrin makes still another. He had gone before your letter arrived. The late Mr. J. B. Cauchois⁸⁸ did not leave anything according to all I have heard. Mr. Duguay⁸⁹ does not come to this place any more; so that there is only Mr. Roche who seems to have the inclination to pay you a sol this year. But I shall keep your bills.

⁸⁷ Probably this was René Bourassa of Detroit. The Bourassa family was long active in the fur trade. Its founder was Francis Bourassa, a native of the diocese of Lucon, France, born in 1659, who came to Canada and married at Contrecoeur, July 4, 1684, Mary Le Ber, a native of Montreal. Their son, René, born at Laprairie, December 21, 1688, married there, October 23, 1710, Agnes Gagnier, daughter of Pierre Gagnier and Catherine Daubigeon. They had one son, René, who was born at Laprairie, June 1, 1718, and was buried at Detroit, November 24, 1792. The father married (second) Marie Catherine Leriger, and engaging in the fur trade, located at Mackinac. A younger daughter of this union, Charlotte Ambrosine, born June 14, 1735, became the wife, August 12, 1754, of Charles Michel Langlade of Mackinac and Green Bay, for whom see ante, 72.

René Bourassa, the younger, married at Mackinac, August 3, 1744, Ann Charlotte Veronica Chevalier, who was born at Mackinac, March 1, 1726, the daughter of Jean Baptiste Chevalier and Frances Alavoine. They had numerous children (one son was born before the marriage rite was solemnized), all born at Mackinac. Not long after 1763, however, the family removed to Detroit, where in due time the children were married, and where the father died, as already noted, in 1792. Denissen traces his descendants to about the year 1880; undoubtedly they are still numerous in Detroit and vicinity. See Denissen, op. cit., and Wis. Hist. Colls., XVIII and XIX, passim.

Mons^r Thercy⁹⁰ goes off to day in a light Canoe well maned, which makes me think his passage will be short & you will receive this before several others I wrote you some time ago. I received Yours of the 7th Ult^o & am sorry to hear Beaver is fallen, did I know any certain price I could give for furs, I could have purchased some parcells.

Tho the Vessells from Europe are long acomeing, yet I dare say nothing has happened them, it's necessary they now take more precaution than formerly.

M^r Lyons Suffers much by his goods not comeing, he is obliged to keep men whose provisions are now very dear, corn will not be had for 30^s in a few days, added to all this had they come up in the Spring he could have Sold them to government, with this I send you the Copy of a Letter I wrote you the 29th Ult^o as also a memord^m for some goods for M^r Lyons & me for the trade at the entrance of the french River, & as there is several things in this Memord^m to be made up at Montreal, it cannot get to you too soon. Three Canoes for me loaded with furs, will set off this evening, or to morrow morning.

I write the N W C^o by this oppertunity. I'm so hurried that I can only add that I am &c.

⁹⁰ Pierre Thierry, born at Montreal in 1750, is characterized in a communication of Governor Sinclair of Mackinac, October 22, 1781, as "Conductor of the King's Canoes." Sinclair speaks of his conduct in terms of commendation. The Mackinac Register of Baptisms (printed in Wis. Hist. Colls., XIV) indicates the presence of Thierry at that place at various times down as late as 1804.

an acc^t that there was great quantities on the way, there was an order published that every person with permission might send what Quantity they thought proper, but this served no great purpose as my Vessell was ordered along side of the Kings & what clothing, Liquors &c. for this Garrison were put on board her, & not only that, but Merchants had permission to put things on board as well as myself. I asked the Master of the Vessell if he represented to the Governor that the Vessell was not in the Service & therefore not subject to carry for every person, he says he did & even mentioned that after he had taken the Kings things on board, he desired that he might make up the rest of the loading with mine, & that the Governor told him I could not have any preference over others If what he says be true, I really think it a hardship. I imagine Major De Peysters letter to Governor Hamilton explained fully his reasons for letting my Vessell go to Detroit. I dont want there should be any complaints about these matters. I only mean to shew you that I nor no other person in these troublesome times can asure you about Provisions, or anything Else, all I received was four thousand of flour & 48 Kegs of Rum which I dispatched immediately for the Portage. I expect more in a few days, as it comes here I will forward it till I at last get your quantity or more

I am &c.

I have taken in here, as part payment on the note Hypolyte Chaboillez owes you, two hundred and fifty-six pounds of beaver, English weight, and sixteen bad otters. That is all I could get out of him here. I sent you his note several days ago. You must try to have him pay the rest. Messrs. Machard & Co. arrived yesterday. I spoke to them today on the subject of your note and the other debts and they assured me that as soon as they had arranged for their peltries they would have me paid by the people who got the skins. What I received from Messrs. Hypolyte Chaboillez & Co. I am sending in my canoes tomorrow morning, made up in three packs marked P R and numbered 1, 2, and 3. There is so much noise in the house I do not know what I am writing to you. Mrs. Askin presents her best compliments to you and to Mrs. Perinault. Kitty is at Detroit with her husband.

Since I wrote the above and without saying a word to me Messrs. Machard & Co. have sold their peltries to Mr. Joseph Sanguinet. That means that I should be obliged to take his note in payment and I consider it would be better to keep the one I have, seeing that it is endorsed by him and signed for Machard & Co. For the remainder of what he owes you I shall take another note.

My dear Brother: There has not been a vessel from Detroit since Mr. Brulon came up. Rum is worth 240 livres a barrel, flour 100 livres a hundredweight, corn 30 livres a bag (Huron hominy), and grease 8 livres a pound.

You will please send me back the anchor I loaned the Indian by the first opportunity. I cannot use the big boat without it. I need also the double tackle I loaned him. I bought all the sails and rigging of Mr. Bostwick's vessel for about 1500 livres. If you need any, you may have them at the same price. Mr. Robertson tells me they are well worth it. One of the two notes you sent me belongs to Mr. Solomon.

I have engaged Nadin but he is not obliged to winter at the Sault.

I wrote you already on the subject of the merchandise. As soon as a vessel arrives from Detroit I shall send you provisions and rum. Be sure to eat good and plenty. You must send for your cart horses. I cannot keep them this winter. I have had a letter from my father⁹⁴ at the Miamis. He is very well. Archange and all the family embrace you.

Anthony Soumande, a great-grandson of Pierre, born in 1752, married at Sandwich, Feb. 11, 1782, Regina Angelica Guillet dit Tourangeau, a native of that place. Anthony was buried at Sandwich, June 4, 1792; his widow was buried there, Feb. 28, 1845. A sister of Anthony Soumande, Mary Louisa Soumande dit Delorme, married William Monforton, for whom see ante, 107.

the said purchaser assumes conformably to the bond in the possession of the said Antaya; secondly, the sum of six hundred livres in paper currency of this post which the said Monforton counted and paid to him in the presence of Messrs. Réaume,⁵ Antaya and Guillar; thirdly, the sum of six hundred and eighty-one livres fifteen sols in accounts and bills which the said Monforton has paid for the said vendor, for which he now produces and delivers to him the receipts; fourthly, the sum of forty-five livres, which the said vendor declares to have received from the said Monforton in paper currency of this post; the said sums and bills as herein mentioned amounting together to the sum of nineteen hundred and eighty-four livres; which, with sixteen livres which the said purchaser now gives to the said vendor, makes the sum of two thousand livres for the payment of which he acquits the said purchaser, and by these presents gives him good and valid discharge.

IN CONSEQUENCE WHEREOF the said vendor has conveyed and does convey all and such rights of ownership, title, equity and demands which he has upon the said land, real or pretended, of which he stands possessed and of which he divests himself in favor of the said purchaser, for himself, his heirs and assigns, that he may use and dispose of the same as his own property, it being the will

Another member of the family, who may have been a nephew of Pierre, was Hyacinthe Réaume, born at Lachine, March 25, 1704, who married at Montreal, Nov. 17, 1727, Agatha Lacelle, daughter of Jacques Lacelle and Angelica Gibaut. In 1733 the family came to Detroit, where Hyacinthe, who was a shoemaker, was buried, June 10, 1774, and Agatha, July 19, 1778. The individual here mentioned was their son, Jean Baptiste, who was born at Detroit, July 9, 1741, and married here, Dec. 20, 1763, Agatha Lootman dit Barrois. In 1774 they settled at Sandwich, and in 1792 at Raisin River settlement, where Agatha was buried Nov. 12, 1806, and Jean Baptiste, April 18, 1807. Jean Baptiste Réaume was engaged in the Indian trade. Concerning his rescue of James Moore from captivity, see Burton Hist. Coll. Leaflet, V, 76. A younger sister of Jean Baptiste was Marie Julie Réaume, who became the wife of Governor Jehu Hay of Detroit. A brother was Capt. Charles Réaume of the Indian Department, for whom see post, 249.

of the said vendor that the said purchaser may be invested with full powers thereof of ownership and seizin and be placed in good and peaceable possession of the same; substituting the bearer hereof for his true and lawful attorney, in giving him full power and authority for that purpose.

The said vendor reserves for himself four arpents from the depth of the said land, beginning above the meadow, for the space of two years, to sow such grain as he shall consider necessary for his own use, it being expressly agreed that in case of his absence he may not assign this right to any other person, nor may he exercise the right himself after the expiration of the two years as calculated from the present until after the time of harvest. He also assumes a pro rata share of the customary charges and services due upon the said land.

For thus and so &c., promising, obliging, renouncing, &c., duly executed at Detroit, in the office of the said notary, on the second day of March, one thousand seven hundred and eighty, and both parties having said that they cannot write, they have made their accustomed marks, after hearing these presents read, and the witnesses have signed with us.

In case the said purchaser sells the said land he promises to give the said vendor the preference for the same.

extending 2½ miles along the St. Clair River. Cox's grant began at a small creek still known as Cox Creek. In 1794 Alexander Harrow of the British naval establishment became the owner of these tracts, and settled them the following year. In 1786 Cox bought from Isidore Chêne a tract of land at the River Rouge. He kept an inn in Detroit, and also owned a lot in the town, which he sold to William Macomb. Soon after the American occupation Cox became tax collector, and in December, 1798, the county commissioners ordered the sheriff to levy on his property to the extent of $419, which he had defaulted. Two weeks in advance of this action Cox deeded his River Rouge property to George Cottrell. In the deed he describes himself as "sick but in perfect memory and understanding." ⁸ George Hoffman was a prominent citizen of Detroit in the period prior to the War of 1812. In 1804 he was serving as register of the land office; in 1806 as postmaster. In 1809 he was foreman of the grand jury which, among other actions, made a presentment of Governor Hull for having remitted the punishment of John Whipple, who had been fined for calling Judge Woodward a "damned rascal." The same year Hoffman served as secretary of a committee which made a report on the several forms of territorial government, and petitioned Congress to grant the people of Michigan an elective legislature. time of this grant was living at Sandwich, whither his parents had removed in 1774. His early age, as well as the wording of the document, tends to the conclusion that the grant must have been made chiefly by reason of his father's instrumentality and influence. Joseph Réaume married at Raisin River, Feb. 9, 1795, Geneveva Suzor, who was born at Sandwich, March 9, 1780, daughter of Louis Suzor and Josette Le Beau. Genealogical information adapted from Denissen, op. cit.

¹⁰ Presqu' Isle was on the north side of the Maumee River, being partially enclosed between that river and a creek tributary thereto. At its lower end was fought the Battle of Fallen Timbers, August 20, 1794, and General Wayne's camp the night before the battle, was made a short distance higher up the island. John Askin purchased Réaume's Indian title to the island in December, 1796, and in July, 1807, preferred a claim to the property before the Board of Land Commissioners at Detroit. The Board subsequently ruled (Dec. 11, 1809) that the land claimed was outside the bounds of its district. ¹⁴ Toussaint Anthony Adhémar dit St. Martin was descended from Michael Adhémar and Cecilia Gache, who resided in the diocese of Alby, in Upper Languedoc, France. Their son, Anthony Adhémar, Sieur de St. Martin, born in 1640, was a royal notary. He migrated to Canada and married at Quebec, Oct. 10, 1667, Geneviève Sazeot, a native of St. André-des-Arts, archdiocese of Paris, France. She was buried at Champlain, Aug. 30, 1683, and Adhémar married (second) Michelle Cusson at Cap de la Madeleine, Jan. 20, 1687. The son of Jean Baptiste Adhémar and Catherine Moreau was our present subject, Toussaint Anthony Adhémar dit St. Martin. He was born at Montreal, Sept. 10, 1740. He came to Detroit as early as 1765, married Geneviève Blondeau, and in 1768 was living on Ste. Anne Street. For upwards of twenty-five years Detroit was the center of his activities, although his trading operations sometimes necessitated prolonged absences. He was at St. Joseph in 1773. He early visited Miamitown (modern Fort Wayne) and he was employed there in the later 1780's. Henry Hay, who spent the winter of 1789-90 there, makes frequent mention of him in his Journal. GRANT OF LAND TO RICHARD CORNWALL AT BELLE RIVER

KNOW ALL MEN by these Presents, that we, the Chiefs and Principal Leaders of the Ochipué [Chippewa] Nation of Indians, at Detroit, for ourselves, and by and with the advice and consent of the whole of our said Nation, in consideration of the good will, love and affection which we, and the whole of said Nation, have and bear unto Richard Cornwall,¹⁵ of Detroit, and also for divers other good causes and considerations us the said Chiefs and rest of our Nation hereunto moving, HAVE given, granted, aliened, enfeoffed and confirmed, and by these presents, DO give, grant, alien, enfeoff and confirm, unto the said Richard Cornwall, a Tract of Land on the North West side of the River or Streight leading from Lake St Clare to Lake Huron, beginning at a certain River called Belle River,¹⁶ running thence up said River or Streight, forty acres, the whole One hundred and

General Harmar's army, and the traders' establishments were destroyed. Probably this circumstance explains the removal of St. Martin to Mackinac, where he lived from 1791 until his death, Nov. 22, 1804. Although not notably successful in his trading operations, St. Martin was a man of probity, and he enjoyed the esteem of his contemporaries. He held various local official appointments at Detroit, including those of justice of the peace and member of the Land Board for the District of Hesse. At Mackinac he served as justice during both the British and the American régimes, his last appointment to the office being made by Governor Wm. H. Harrison, Sept. 1, 1801. An entry in the journal of John Porteous (ms. in Burton Hist. Coll.) notes the arrival of Mr. Adhémar (probably our subject) at Niagara, May 11, 1767, "with 6 Six boats and canoes in 14 days from Montreal." St. Martin volunteered to serve under Hamilton on the expedition against Vincennes in 1778; the following spring he went with a convoy of boats carrying provisions and relief to Hamilton; the party was captured by the Americans, Mar. 5, 1779, but St. Martin was paroled by Clark a few days later, on taking the oath of neutrality at Vincennes. Information adapted from manuscripts in Burton Hist. Coll.; Denissen, op. cit.; Mich. Pio. Colls., passim; and Wis. Hist. Colls., passim.

¹⁵ Richard Cornwall was a native of New York who served for many years as master shipbuilder of the naval establishment on the Great Lakes. In a petition to General Haldimand in 1781 against a reduction in his pay he stated that he had served as master builder on Lake Erie for fourteen years, and in 1776, when the government assumed control of all shipping, was commissioned master builder for Lakes Ontario, Erie, Huron, and Michigan, which appointment he still continued to hold. His family still (in 1781) resided in New York, and his loyalty to the King prevented him from rejoining it. See Mich. Pio. Colls., XIX, 674-75. He was living in Detroit as late as 1796. In December, 1795, he sold John Askin the tract of land conveyed by the present grant, and in the document described himself as "Richard Cornwall of Detroit master builder."

¹⁸ Walter Roe seems to have come to Detroit as a warrant officer in the marine department. On the organization of the judicial department of the District of Hesse he undertook the practice of law, and it has been said that he was Detroit's first lawyer. He was for some years clerk of the court at Detroit, and in 1793 he auctioned a slave boy for the benefit of the estate of Philip Joncaire of Spring Wells. For much information concerning his legal activities see the Prerogative Court records (ms. copies in Burton Hist. Coll.) and William Renwick Riddell, Michigan under British Rule.... (Lansing, 1926). Roe was given a grant of land on the north shore of Lake Erie below Amherstburg. He became addicted to drink, and while intoxicated fell into the river and was drowned, shortly prior to August 10, 1801. Information adapted from mss. in Burton Hist. Coll.; Burton, History of Detroit from 1780 to 1850, p. 21, and Riddell, op. cit. Considerable additional data about Roe is supplied by Riddell in The Legal Profession in Upper Canada in its Early Periods (Toronto, 1916), 168-70.

BEFORE US, Thomas Williams, undersigned, notary of Detroit, and there residing, was present Pierre Cardinal,¹⁹

¹⁹ The Cardinal family is one of the oldest in Detroit. The American founder of the family was Simon Jean Cardinal, born in 1619, who married Michelle Garnier, and was buried at Lachine, Aug. 9, 1679. The two sons of this union, Jacques, born at Montreal in 1659, and Pierre, born there in 1665, both came to Detroit. Jacques who, by these presents, acknowledges and declares that of his own free will and without constraint of any kind, he has sold, ceded, abandoned, assigned and relinquished, from now and forever, with promise of ownership and guaranty from all troubles, debts, dowers, evictions, alienations, mortgages and hindrances whatsoever, to Pierre Drouillard,²⁰ accepting by these presents for himself, his heirs and assigns, a tract of land of two arpents front by forty in depth located and situated on the north of the river of the said Detroit, adjoining land of Basil Campau²¹ on the east-north-east, and of the said vendor on the west-south-west, with all appurtenances and dependencies, such as it is and as it extends on all sides in its entirety, without any

Cardinal married at Montreal, Nov. 23, 1682, Claudia Louisa Arrivé, a native of Quebec. He came to Detroit on business as early as October, 1707, and was buried here, May 18, 1724. Of their four children, all born at Montreal, two came to Detroit: Jacques, born July 21, 1685, who married Jane Duguay at Montreal, Feb. 17, 1715, and was buried at Detroit, Sept. 21, 1763; and Mary Magdelene, born Feb. 15, 1699, who became the wife of Jean Baptiste Lootman dit Barrois.

The Pierre Cardinal of our text was a son of Jacques Cardinal and Jane Duguay. He was born at Detroit, Aug. 30, 1729, and was buried here, Jan. 19, 1808. He married, June 26, 1778, Mary Angelica Sejournee dit Sanschagrin, widow of Jean Baptiste Cauchois and daughter of Alexis Sejournee dit Sanschagrin and Mary Angelica Tareau, who was born at Mackinac, March 10, 1749. She was buried, Sept. 18, 1800. Information adapted from Denissen, op. cit., and Wis. Hist. Colls., XVIII and XIX, passim.

THIS SALE is thus made, with the conditions and considerations aforesaid and to follow; that is with cens et rentes and seigniorial rights in favor of His Majesty, or of the accustomed service to which the said land is subject,²² and moreover, for and because of the price and sum of fifteen hundred livres, Quebec currency, equal to one hundred pounds, New York currency, which the said vendor acknowledges to have received from the said purchaser in good and perfect commodities or other things, and expressing himself as satisfied and content therewith, and thereby granting to the said purchaser, and all others, a full discharge.

IN CONSEQUENCE of which and of all aforesaid, the said vendor has conveyed and does convey unto the said purchaser, his heirs, and assigns, all rights of ownership utterly and entirely, title, equity, demands, seizin and possession, of which he stands possessed, real or pretended, or that he may lay claim to or upon the said land, and of which, by these presents, he is dispossessed, demised and divested in favor of the said purchaser, and his assigns; with the desire and intention that the said purchaser may be placed in good and sufficient possession by these presents and that it may belong to him by virtue of the same.

AND THAT this sale may be recorded in the register at Detroit and elsewhere as there may be need, the said parties have appointed the bearer hereof their true and lawful attorney and give him power of record.

FOR THUS &c., promising, &c., obliging, &c., renouncing, &c., duly executed at Detroit in the year one thousand seven hundred and eighty-one, the second day of April, in the afternoon, and the said vendor has signed with us, but as for the said purchaser, he has declared that he cannot sign and has therefore made his accustomed mark, after ²³ John Casety was the son of James Casety, who came to Detroit some time prior to the Revolution. In 1771, according to Farmer (op. cit., 78), and for several years thereafter, he cultivated a farm on Belle Isle, as tenant of Lieutenant George McDougall, who had acquired title to the island in 1768. Prior to this (in 1769) Casety had purchased a lot on St. Peter Street. He accumulated considerable property, among other items being a farm at Windmill Pointe, bought in 1777 of James Sterling. Soon after this Casety, like Sterling, was accused of disloyalty to the Crown and sent in irons to Quebec, where after some three years' imprisonment, he succeeded in making his escape to the United States. Probably because of this trouble, Casety removed his family from Detroit after the Revolution; he died, probably in New York, some years prior to 1824.

John Casety, the subject of our present sketch, became clerk and subsequently partner to Thomas Williams of Detroit, for whom see ante, 169. Williams died, Nov 30, 1785, leaving considerable property which, according to the Williams family tradition, was dissipated through the incompetence or rascality of Casety. See Mich. Pio. Colls., XXIX, 492. Quite possibly he was innocent of both charges, for he himself died shortly after Williams, and the affairs of the firm, thus deprived of both its members, were left deeply involved. The London merchants to whom it was indebted consigned their interests to Alexander Henry of Montreal, who in turn deputed them to James Fraser of Detroit. About the same time, Mrs. Casety gave power of attorney to James McIntosh to represent her interests and he obtained possession of the books of the firm. Fraser was unable to gain access to them, and many years later he was still vainly seeking formal release from the responsibility he had assumed in connection with the affair. One of the debtors of Casety was Francis Vigo of Vincennes, who figures prominently in Askin's commercial transactions.

Casety married Therese Baby, daughter of Jacques Duperon Baby. When he died, in 1787, leaving her a widow at twenty years of age, she called for the Bible on which to swear she would never marry again. In 1795, notwithstanding, she married Capt. Thomas Allison, and died at Quebec in 1847. Information adapted from Mich. Pio. Colls., passim; mss. in Burton Hist. Coll.; and letter of Thomas Casety, a son of John, printed in the Quarterly Journal of the New York Historical Association, VI, 295-96.

HOUSE GIVEN TO CAPTAIN BIRD

I, Arent Scuyler De Peyster Commanding the Kings or eighth Regiment, and the Posts occupied by it, on the different communications; By the authority in me vested, as a means of improving the appearances in the front of the Fortifications and grand Parade, by improving and cultivating the ground adjacent bounding the Town of Detroit to the North West Do Grant, by these Presents, unto Capt^a Henry Bird²⁴ of Kings or eighth Reg^t and unto his Heirs or assigns forever, a Lot of ground begining at the N.W. end of St^t Honore Street,²⁵ and on the east side; continuing in a line with said street as far as the Run or ditch which terminates the Grand Parade; then turning towards the East, ²⁴ Henry Bird received a commission as lieutenant, Oct. 3, 1764. Four years later he was assigned to the Eighteenth Regiment, and May 11, 1778, was promoted to the rank of captain. W. C. Ford, British Officers Serving in the American Revolution 1774-1783 (Brooklyn, 1897), 28. A considerable account of his military career is given by William Renwick Riddell in his Old Province Tales, Upper Canada (Toronto, 1920), 4 ff., and numerous documents concerning him are found in the Mich. Pio. Colls. Riddell characterizes Bird as "one of the most active and efficient officers in the British service." He came to Detroit from Niagara in the autumn of 1778. The garrison at Detroit was then expecting an attack by Colonel Brodhead, and, deeming the existing fort on the water-front wholly indefensible, the construction of the new Fort Lernoult, at the intersection of Fort and Shelby Streets, was hastily begun. In the absence from Detroit of the regular engineer officer, Captain Bird laid out and planned the new fortification. About the same time the Americans were building Fort Laurens on the upper Ohio as an outpost in their progress toward Detroit. In the spring of 1779, therefore, Bird was sent to take post at Sandusky, where he organized a force which laid siege to Fort Laurens and brought about its abandonment by the Americans. During this period he exhibited his humanity by interceding with his red allies who were about to torture a prisoner, and cursing them when they ignored his plea for mercy. The following year (1780) Bird headed an expedition which raided the Kentucky settlements, and carried off the inhabitants of Martin's and Ruddell's stations. See Burton Hist. Coll. Leaflet, Vol. IV, No. 2. The manuscript list and pay roll of the Detroit volunteers who went on this expedition is contained in the ledger of Macomb, Edgar, and Macomb, now in the Burton Hist. Coll. At the close of the Revolution, Bird and several others, chiefly army officers, obtained from the natives a grant of land seven miles square at the mouth of Detroit River. Bird's portion was on the present site of Amherstburg, and a manuscript in the Burton Hist. Coll. shows that he paid William Lee for clearing sixteen acres of this land by assigning to him a "wench" named Esther, who had fallen to his share in the division of the plunder taken at Martin's Station in 1780. A document in the Askin Papers shows that in 1796 Captain Bird was living in retirement in England on half-pay, and that he then intended to return to America. He subsequently joined the Fifty-fourth Regiment and assisted in crushing the Irish rebellion. He then joined the expedition to Egypt, where he died in 1801. See, in addition to references already cited, Wis. Hist. Colls., XXIII and XXIV, passim.

PARTNERSHIP BETWEEN JOHN ASKIN AND HAMILTON AND CARTWRIGHT

THIS Indenture made & entered into by John Askin of Detroit on the one Part, and Hamilton²⁷ & Cartwright,²⁸ Merchants of Niagara, on the other, Witnesseth: that the said Parties have agreed to enter into a Partnership for the Purpose of carrying on Trade at Niagara, Detroit, and other of the upper Posts, on the Conditions following, namely:

That this Copartnership commence with the Transactions of John Askin at Detroit from the first Day of October, one thousand seven hundred and eighty; and of Hamilton & Cartwright at Niagara from the fifteenth of April one thousand seven hundred & eighty one; and continue till the first Day of Mây, one thousand seven hundred & eighty four.

²⁷ Robert Hamilton was the eldest son of Rev. John Hamilton, minister of Bolton in East Lothian, Scotland, and was born about the year 1749. In 1778 he entered upon a three-year engagement with one of the Ellices of Montreal, in consequence of which he came out to Canada. In 1779 he was located at Carleton Island, at the east end of Lake Ontario, and the next year, apparently, removed to Niagara. Some years later he established himself at the lower end of the Niagara portage and thus became the founder of Queenston. He was a man of much ability, who was long accounted one of the leading characters of Upper Canada. He prospered in trade and at the time of his death his fortune is said to have amounted to £200,000. He was a member of the Land Board of Upper Canada in 1791, and of the first Executive Council of the province a year later. He was also the first judge of the District of Nassau, one of the four districts into which western Canada was divided by Lord Dorchester. In 1785 he married Catherine Askin Robertson, widow of Captain Samuel Robertson; they had five sons, several of whom were destined to prominent rôles in the history of western Canada. Mrs. Hamilton died in 1796 and Hamilton married (second) Mary Herkimer, widow of Neil McLean, by whom he also had several children. He died at Queenston, March 23, 1809. Information adapted from sketch in Buffalo Hist. Soc. Pubs., VI, 73-95; data in Niagara Hist. Soc. Papers, No. 25 (Niagara, 1913); and mss. in Burton Hist. Coll. His will is printed in the Ontario Hist. Soc., Papers and Records, XXIII, 344-50.

That the Stock in Trade do consist of such Goods as either of the Parties had on Hand at the Time abovementioned for the Commencement of this Copartnership; and of all Purchases since made; and also of such Sums of Money as shall hereafter be put in by the different Partners, for which the Company shall allow them 5 P Cent Interest.

That the Goods at Detroit belonging to M^r Askin in the Month of October 1780, being intire Packages, be considered as put into the Concern at that time at 80 P Cent Advance; but the Goods belonging to Hamilton & Cartwright, remaining on Hand the 15th April 1781, being only the Remainder of an Assortment, are to be rated at first Cost and Expences; Liquors excepted, on which a further Charge of 5 P Cent is allowed.

That the Goods already come out for Hamilton & Cartwright, this Year, from England, as well as those expected out in their Name, be considered as the Company's, and be liable only to the Charge of 5 P Cent at the Foot of the English Invoice,

That all Goods purchased this Year in Canada by either of the Parties, be charged no more than they cost, and go up at the charge & Risque of the Company.

That the Business of the Concern be managed at Niagara by Hamilton & Cartwright; and at Detroit, and the Posts beyond it, by John Askin himself, or proper Persons under his immediate Direction and Controul.

That each of the Houses keep their Accounts with each other with the same Exactness as though they were not connected; that their Orders for Goods be distinct & separate, and that they transmit Copies of these Orders to each other for mutual Information.

That each of the Houses keep clear & distinct Accounts of all their Transactions, agreeable to the Custom of Merchants, which shall be closed every Year on the first Day of March, and exact Copies thereof transmitted from the one to the other as soon after as possible.

That neither of the Parties be concerned in any Trade directly or indirectly apart from the general Interest of the Company.

That, however, any Partner may order on his private Credit any thing he may want for his own or Family's particular Use.

That the Parties keep exact Accounts of their House Expences from the first Day of September next till the Conclusion of the Partnership; and that all Articles for this Use be charged at first Cost and Expences, with an Addition of 5 P Cent for Risque, and carried to the Debit of each of the Parties, respectively, every Year on closing the Accounts.

That, on Account of the Expences of Living at Detroit, being greater than at Niagara, an allowance be made by the Company of five hundred Pounds N. Y. Currency to the House at the former Place, and three hundred & Fifty Pounds at the latter, for their annual Charges of House Keeping, which shall be carried to their respective Credits, on closing the Yearly Accounts.

That as John Askin has carried on the Business at Detroit at his own Expence from the first Day of October last, and is still so to do till the first Day of September next, his Account is to be credited for that Time in Proportion to the yearly Allowance made the House at Detroit for their Expences, as also for a Clerk & Mans Wages for that Time.

That Hamilton & Cartwright's Family Expences are to be at the Charge of the Company from the 15th April to the 1st Sept^r next, as also their Clerk and Servants Wages.

That no Partner take upon himself to lend Money on the Company's Account; or to withdraw any Sums exceeding two hundred Pounds N. Y. Currency, yearly from the Stock he shall have put into Trade, which Stock is to be settled on the first Day of March 1782.

That a reasonable Rent be allowed for a House at Niagara, and one at Detroit to carry on the Business in; and should the Business require additional Storehouses at either Place they are to be built or purchased at the Company's Expence; and at the Expiration of the Copartnership, to be disposed of for their Benefit, to the best Advantage. The latter Part of this Article to be extended to the two small Vessels, and the Buildings at S^t Mary's put into the Concern by M^r Askin. It is however understood, that, if either of the Parties choose to retain in their Hands the Buildings belonging to the Company, at the Place they reside, it shall be at their option so to do, on paying the Company what they cost.

That the Wages for the Clerks & Servants that may be necessary for carrying on the Business at either Place, be paid by the Company in general.

That the House of Hamilton & Cartwright and of John Askin, or John Askin & Co. have each one Half, or equal Share in this Copartnership, and divide alike, the Whole of the Profits or Losses arising therefrom.

That the present Concern be in no wise accountable for any Transactions of either of the Parties previous to the Terms of its Commencement aforementioned.

That if either of the Parties should be unwilling to continue this Connection longer than 'till the Month of May 1784, they shall make known their Intentions to the other before the first Day of September 1783, that a general Settlement may take Place.

That if any of the Partners should die before the Expiration of the Copartnership at the Time aforementioned, it is to be considered as dissolved, in Course, by his Death, and to terminate on the first Day of May next succeeding such Event.

That as the Business which the House of Hamilton & Cartwright may have to do in Canada, is to be transacted by Mess^{rs} Todd & McGill who have a part in said House, they are to have the same Allowance made them on that Account, as shall be paid by the House at Detroit to their Agent in Canada for the same Business.

That the Goods which may remain on Hand at the Expiration of this Copartnership be divided, unless the Parties can agree otherwise; and the Debts which may be owing be collected free of Commission by each of the Parties at their respective Places of Residence, and be accounted for as soon as one hundred Pounds is received.

That if any Differences should arise between the Parties in any thing relative to the Concern, such Differences shall be determined by two or more indifferent Persons, equally chosen by both.

In Testimony of our free & full Assent to the above Agreement, and of our Intention to perform & fulfil every Article thereof, We the abovementioned Parties have hereunto set our Hands and Seals at Niagara the third Day of August, in the Year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred & eighty one.

30 The Tremblay (Tremblé) family is numerous represented in Detroit and vicinity. Pierre Tremblay, founder of the American line, was born in the diocese of Chartres, France, in 1626 and married at Quebec, Oct. 2, 1657, Ozanne Achon, also a native of France. A son, Michael Tremblay, born at Quebec, Sept. 10, 1662, married Geneviève Bouchard, June 20, 1686. Of their large family of children at least three, Pierre (born in 1708), Augustin (born, March 6, 1710), and Ambrose came to Detroit in the summer of 1750 and settled on farms in Grosse Pointe, thus establishing the Detroit line, or lines, of Tremblay. Presumably Montague Tremblay was a son of one of these brothers, each of whom reared a large family. He was engaged in trade at Detroit about the close of the Revolution, but we have not succeeded in constructing a sketch of his career. Genealogical information adapted from Denissen, op. cit.

31 There are numerous contemporary references to this interesting person, yet we have not succeeded in constructing a satisfactory outline of her career. That she was engaged in trade is established by numerous manuscript references in the Burton Hist. Coll. The Macomb ledger for 1775 records that she was also called Montour, while in a grant of land made by some Indian chiefs to Jonathan Schieffelin in 1788 (recorded in Detroit Notarial Records, Vol. D., original in Ottawa, copy in Burton Hist. Coll.) she is described as "Sarah Ainse alias Wilson." John Porteous records in his journal (ms. in Burton Hist. Coll.) that in the autumn of 1766 he met on Lake Erie Sally Montour going "with one boat and some goods to winter at Grand Point." The possibility that she was the "Mrs. Ainse" of Askin's diary at Mackinac in 1774-75 has been mentioned ante, 31. Her name is included in the Detroit census of 1779, and in De Peyster's list of merchandise ordered by the merchants of Detroit for 1780 she is credited with two bateau-loads. Mich. Pio. Colls., XIX, 589. In 1785 she was trading with the Moravian Indians on Huron River, and offered to give them a "good strip" of her land "on the east side of St. Clair." David Zeisberger, Diary (Cincinnati, 1885), I, 248. In May, 1787, Sarah Ainse "of Detroit" sold a lot within the fort to Grubb and Dowler, boat builders, for £350. Detroit Notarial Records, Vol. D. It seems probable that she was a sister or other connection of Andrew Montour, a noted half-breed of the Seven Years' War period and later, for whom see sketch in Wis. Hist. Colls., XVIII, 227. His mother was a French woman who married an Iroquois chief of the Mohawk tribe. Andrew began his career as an interpreter in 1744, and his biography is a part of the history of the Ohio frontier. Zeisberger's Diary records (Vol. II, 148-49) that he had two sisters, Mary and Catherine, and our surmise is that Sally Montour, alias Ainse, alias Wilson, was a daughter of one of these, or, possibly, a third sister. However this may be, she was obviously of mixed blood and was regarded by the Indians as one of themselves. In 1788 they granted her a tract of land at the mouth of the Thames River in modern Kent County, Ontario. Her title to this was later disputed and over it a long controversy was waged, which served, incidentally, to bring out the fact that she was held in high esteem both by the Chippewa and by the Iroquois. Joseph Brant, the Mohawk chieftain, stated on June 28, 1795, that "she is one of ourselves and has been of service to us in Indian affairs at this place [Detroit]." Mich. Pio. Colls., XII, 173. Considerable information about the settlement developed around the River Thames grant to Sarah Ainse is assembled in Louis Goulet's "Phases of the Sally Ainse Dispute," in Kent Hist. Soc., Papers and Addresses, Vol. V. (Chatham, 1921), 92-95. On May 10, 1824, letters of administration for the estate of Sarah Ainse, late of Amherstburg, deceased, were granted to George Jacob and James Gordon as executors of the estate of Richard Pattinson, she having left no kindred in the province of Upper Canada. Ms. in archives in Ottawa. On the history of the Montour family see Hodge (ed.) Handbook of American Indians.

32 The numerous members of the Detroit line of St. Aubin are descended from two distinct families of France. One lived at Dieppe, in Normandy, whence Adrian St. Aubin migrated to Canada and married at Montreal, Feb. 19, 1680, Jane Margaret Blois, daughter of Julian Blois and Margaret Leclerc. A grandson of this couple, Joseph St. Aubin, born at Montreal, April 2, 1707, married at Lachine, Sept. 3, 1731, Julia Cuillierier, a native of that place. He removed with his family to Detroit in 1750. Here he was killed by an Indian, and was buried at Sandwich, Nov. 29, 1774. He left several children.

The other line of St. Aubin sprang from Jean Casse dit St. Aubin, who was born in the village of St. Aubin, archdiocese of Bordeaux, in 1659. He became a soldier, and in 1707 came to Detroit as corporal of the garrison. He had previously married (Feb. 7, 1707) at Quebec Mary Louisa Gaultier, daughter of Mathurin Gaultier and Ann Girault. On March 10, 1708, he was granted a lot by Cadillac, lying at the intersection of modern Shelby Street and Jefferson Avenue. Within a few years St. Aubin left the army and engaged in trade. In 1734 he procured a grant of land east of the fort, 4 arpents wide by 40 deep, extending eastward from modern Baldwin Avenue, later designated as Private Claim 38. He was buried at Detroit, Feb. 27, 1759, aged one hundred years. Mary Louisa Gaultier was buried, April 26, 1768, aged ninety years. The couple had nine children, and these in their turn increased and multiplied. The second son, Pierre, born at Detroit, May 2, 1709, married at Montreal, Feb. 14, 1735, Margaret Fournneau dit Brindamour, whose mother, Elizabeth Price, had been carried captive to Canada from the Deerfield massacre of March 11, 1704. Thus was a strain of New England blood introduced into the St. Aubin family of French Detroit. Which one of the grandsons of William Casse dit St. Aubin the "Jacko" of this document was, we have been unable to determine. Denissen, op. cit.

33 Jean Crête, born in France in 1626, married at Quebec, Sept. 13, 1654, Margaret Gosselin, daughter of Vincent Gosselin and Mary Soudemer. Their great-grandson, Jean Baptiste Crête, born at Beauport, March 20, 1736, married (second) at Montreal, Feb. 11, 1760, Mary Joseph Aymond, daughter of Jean Baptiste Aymond and Louisa Margaret Gibaut. About the year 1772 the family removed to Detroit and located on a farm at the Grand Marais in Grosse Pointe. Jean Baptiste and Mary both died in 1796. The latter made the butter which figures in this transaction. Denissen, op. cit. Entries in an account book kept by Crête, now preserved in the Burton Hist. Coll., indicate that he followed the carpenter trade.

34 George Cottrell was of Pennsylvania German descent. His father (named Holfer) and family were massacred by the Indians, who carried George, then five years of age, a captive to Canada. Here he was ransomed and adopted by one Cottrell. He married at Detroit in 1781 Cecilia Creque, daughter of Jean Baptiste Creque and Magdelene Gastinon dit Duchêne. He secured from the British authorities a grant of land on the St. Clair River where modern Cottrellsville, St. Clair County, Michigan, is located, and settled here about the year 1791. He became a man of considerable influence locally, as evidenced by the governmental appointments he held. In 1796 he was appointed captain of militia by Winthrop Sargent, acting governor of the Northwest Territory. In 1805 Governor Hull appointed him justice of the peace for the Huron district, and the same year captain in the First Regiment of militia and (subsequently) lieutenant colonel. Cottrell was the parent of ten children, to whom numerous descendants trace their ancestry. Genealogical information adapted from Denissen, op. cit.

35 Nathan Williams is described as an "able Master Carpenter" by Major De Peyster, who in 1780 appointed him to appraise the buildings on Hog Island. Not long after this he appears in the guise of a merchant, when signing a petition to the commandant for relief in the matter of collection of debts. When the Quaker delegation of peacemakers from Pennsylvania visited Detroit in 1793, Williams was living some miles up the river "at the entrance of Lake St. Clair." They found him "an intelligent man," and intimately acquainted with Indian affairs. With the establishment of American rule in 1796 Williams was appointed one of the judges of the Court of Common Pleas of Wayne County. He died, March 5, 1798, and is said to have been the first person buried with Masonic rites in Detroit. See Mich. Pio. Colls., passim.

36 David White was engaged in trade at Detroit. In 1780 he ordered four bateau-loads of goods from Canada in a total of ninety listed from Detroit this year. In 1787 he was one of the subscribers to the fund for the support of Rev. George Mitchell at Detroit. A letter of Alexander Henry to Elijah Brush written Sept. 18, 1804, on

We as unprejudiced arbiters chosen to give decision in a matter of dispute between Jean Marie Durand³⁷ and Joseph Guilbaut, are of the opinion that the said Guilbaut should pay the debts as more fully and explicitly set forth in a discharge acknowledged before witnesses on October 3rd, 1782, even for the house now in the possession of the said the subject of the debts owed by the firm of Thomas Williams and John Casety, states that David White was one of two principal creditors, and implies that he was no longer at Detroit.

Durand, but and if the said Durand wishes to keep the said house on his own account, he is to pay the said Guilbaut the sum of fifty pounds, New York currency. Such is our opinion and our decision, as given at Detroit, May 21, 1783.

Joseph Cabasier, born at Montreal, May 2, 1722, married at Detroit, Jan. 10, 1752, Angelica Bienvenu dit Delisle, widow of Claude Esprit dit Champagne, and daughter of Francis Bienvenu dit Delisle and Mary Ann Le Moyne. She was buried at Detroit, Dec. 14, 1773, and Joseph married (second), Jan. 15, 1781, Angélique Moran, widow of Joseph Paschal Viger, and daughter of Vincent Moran and Angélique Jusseaume dit St. Pierre. Angélique Moran was buried, Nov. 24, 1789; Joseph Cabasier, on April 16, 1796. Denissen, op. cit.

Jacques Lacelle married at Montreal, Feb. 16, 1732, Mary Ann Lalande, a native of Lachine. Their sons were Jacques, signer of this document, and Antoine, both of whom figure prominently in the history of Detroit and of the Maumee and Wabash valleys. The first named was born at Montreal, May 1, 1735. He married at Lachine, Feb. 18, 1765, Teresa Berthelet dit Savoyard. Soon after this he removed to Detroit, where he engaged in the Indian trade, operating particularly in the Maumee and adjacent regions. Some time prior to 1776 he located at Miamitown (modern Fort Wayne), where his son, Hyacinthe, and possibly other children, were born. The family hastily fled the place in advance of La Balme's expedition of 1780, taking refuge, apparently, at Detroit, where Jacques was buried, Aug. 14, 1791. Genealogical information adapted from Denissen, op. cit. Three sons of the Jacques Lacelle here noted, Jacques, Antoine, and Francis, were prominent early settlers of Monroe.

To them were born ten children, the eldest being the Louis Villers dit St. Louis who was a party to the contract here printed. He was born at Detroit, June 8, 1747. On Jan. 9, 1775, he married at Sandwich, Charlotte Regindeau dit Joachim, whose parents resided at Boucherville. On the American occupation of Detroit, St. Louis signified his desire to remain a British subject. He was buried at Sandwich, June 3, 1826, leaving a large family of children to perpetuate his line. See Denissen, op. cit.

⁴² The Hunot (Hunault, Hunaud) line descended from Toussaint Hunault dit Deschamps, born in 1628 in France, who married at Montreal, Nov. 23, 1654, Mary Lorgueil, a native of the city of Rouen. Their grandson, Gabriel Hunault, born at Montreal, May 30, 1695, was thrice married, the second wife being Mary Joseph Cristin. Two sons of this union (Gabriel, born at Montreal, March 26, 1721, and Toussaint, born at Sorel, March 18, 1725) came to Detroit, the former as early as 1766. He engaged in the Indian trade over a long period of years. He operated at Sandusky for a time, where he gained control over "divers large tracts of land," which he claimed to own through "sale and actual settlement and improvement." One such tract, sold to John Askin prior to 1805, is described as fronting nine miles on Lake Erie, with a depth of six miles, and having the Huron River running through it. This tract Askin later sought to dispose of to one Major Dean, who professed to be the agent of some prospective settlers from Connecticut. Hunot's trading ventures extended as far as New Madrid on the Mississippi. Probably the Illinois family of the same name, one of whose members figures in history as St. Louis's first bridegroom, is connected with the Detroit Hunots. Gabriel lived with an Indian woman, after the fashion of traders. They had at least one son, also named Gabriel, born in 1778 and baptized at Sandwich, March 25, 1783. Information compiled from Denissen, op. cit.; Askin mss., passim; Louis Houck, History of Missouri . . . (Chicago, 1908). II, 26.

We think we may now flatter ourselves with things going on more smoothly in future, & that we shall be more free from perplexity & anxiety than has been the case for two or three years past.

In 1780 he was permitted by Colonel De Peyster to visit the Saginaw Bay region, an act which drew a complaint from Governor Sinclair at Mackinac to General Haldimand. ⁴⁸ Elijah Brush, one of Detroit's earliest lawyers, was born in Bennington, Vt., in 1772. He came to Detroit shortly after the British evacuation and until his death, in 1814, exercised much influence in the affairs of the city and of Michigan. In 1803 he was elected a trustee of Detroit and for several years beginning in 1806 served as treasurer of Michigan Territory. He also held important military offices, being in command of the territorial militia when the War of 1812 opened. In February, 1802, he married Adelaide Askin. In October, 1806, he obtained from John Askin title to the farm originally conceded to Eustache Gamelin on May 1, 1747, which now for over a century has been known as the Brush farm. From it (or from him) Brush Street derives its name. Portions of the farm are still held by descendants of Brush, who have been made wealthy by the growth of the city. Elijah Brush died, April 1, 1814; his wife, Adelaide, died, July 20, 1859. By reason of his personal and business connections with Askin he figures frequently in the Askin Papers. Many documents relating to him are published in the Mich. Pio. Colls.

⁵² Thomas Shepherd (Sheppard) was a Detroit merchant in the period subsequent to the Revolution, and a partner of George Leith in the firm of Leith and Shepherd. About the year 1790 Shepherd paid a visit to England. On the return journey he was drowned in the Jacques Cartier River, May 25, 1791. A detailed and vivid recital of the event was given by his companion, John Richardson, in a letter to John Porteous, which is printed in Ontario Hist. Soc., Papers and Records, VI, 34-36. The body was recovered and conveyed by Richardson to Montreal where it was buried beside that of a "worthy friend, James Ellice." Whether Shepherd was a brother or other relative of William Shepherd, who was a clerk at Detroit in 1791 and subsequently a member of the firm of Leith, Shepherd, and Duff, with trading houses at Amherstburg and elsewhere, we have been unable to determine.

⁵⁶ Alexander McCormick was taken captive by the Indians, according to testimony before the Board of Land Commissioners at Detroit in 1808. The place and time of this occurrence is unknown, but prior to the opening of the Revolution McCormick was engaged in trade in the Ohio country. In 1777 he had a store near Upper Sandusky, and in 1780 he was a member of Captain Henry Bird's expedition against the Kentucky settlements. In 1784 his name occurs among a list of loyalists at Detroit. Not long after this he married Elizabeth Turner, who had been carried into captivity by the Wyandot, and settled at the foot of the Maumee Rapids, where he was living in the summer of 1794 when General Wayne invaded the Indian country. The Battle of Fallen Timbers was fought on or close to McCormick's property, and his establishment was burned. McCormick subsequently located in western Ontario and died at Colchester in 1803. In 1808 his heirs, William, John, Matthew, Alexander, Agnes, Elizabeth, Sarah, and Mary McCormick, preferred a claim to 640 acres of land on the Maumee before the Board of Land Commissioners at Detroit in virtue of their father's former occupancy there. ⁵⁸ Stephen St. Cosme married Mary Clair and resided in the city of Bordeaux. Their son, Pierre, born there, migrated to Canada and on Nov. 22, 1717, married at Laprairie, Elizabeth Faye, a native of that place. Their son, Pierre Laurence St. Cosme, born at Laprairie, Oct. 30, 1721, came west to Detroit, where on Jan. 25, 1747, he married Catherine Lootman dit Barrois, daughter of Francis Lootman dit Barrois and Mary Ann Sauvage. He lived on St. Jacques Street, within the town of Detroit, where he was buried, Sept. 21, 1787. Catherine Lootman was buried here, Nov. 3, 1790.

It seems probable that Pierre Laurence St. Cosme was the landholder here noted. He was a man of considerable local influence in his generation; he was a magistrate prior to 1763, and in 1768 was one of four residents delegated by the townsmen to act as their representatives in rebuilding the stockade around the town. This same year he served on a committee of ten citizens appointed by the commandant to investigate the official conduct of Justice Dejean.

St. Cosme had a large family of children. One daughter became the wife of Philip Dejean, and another the wife of James May. Information adapted from Denissen, op. cit.; Mich. Pio. Colls., passim, especially VIII, 297, 465-66.

⁵⁹ Peter Audrain was born in France about the year 1725 and is said to have come to America after the Revolutionary War. He lived some years in Pennsylvania, where he was a prothonotary and among other activities took much of the testimony in the investigation of the Whisky Rebellion of 1794. He accompanied General Wayne to Detroit in the summer of 1796 and although already past the allotted span of life he began here a new career of great activity. He was at once appointed prothonotary, "an office never known or heard of in Michigan except in this single appointment." From 1796 to 1809 he served as judge of probate, and in 1802 he became clerk of the Court of Common Pleas. In addition to these, he filled a number of other clerical offices until nearly the close of life, when incapacity due to advancing age gave rise to complaints and to his removal from office. He was a man of extreme precision, and the county and other records kept by him are so beautifully written as to be sometimes mistaken for print. Audrain married Margaret Moore long before coming to Detroit, and the couple had many children, several of whom inter-married with prominent Detroit families. One daughter (Elizabeth) married Robert Abbott and another (Margaret) George Hoffman, while a son (Peter) married a daughter of James May. Audrain died, Oct. 6, 1820, aged about ninety-five years. But I am to recieve some more Corn from M^r Zeisberger¹ and others, for which Money is expected. Indeed I have recieved of an Indian to the Value of £5 in Corn which is not paid yet. The Money is to pay a Debt which was owing to Justice Williams; perhaps You know a way to settle that. I judge there will be about 70 or 80 Bush. of Corn for which hard Money is wanted. I am no ways forward in assisting any body in demanding Money, but on the contrary try all means to put it off[f], yet some have no ocasion for any thing else, and repeat the Bargain which was made, of which I cannot deny. I therfore hope evry one will be served to his Sattisfaction. If You please to send me by Nathan Lewis² the bearer of this one piece of Scotch Sheeting more I think that will serve me, and if I should find that I should not want it all, I would not cut it up, but return the remainder in the Spring. I have about 3 Bush. of Sweet Corn for You to[o], which I purchased at the price You told me. Lewis will fetch me the Sheeting up to my House in his Carryall, but perhaps You would want the Sweet Corn immediately, and would chuse to send a

Sir It may not be unknown to You, that we the Missionaries, now Living on the River Huron⁴ were towards the end of the last War taken and carried with the Christian Indians belonging to Us to Sandusky. We were from thence

⁴ Concerning the work of the Moravian missionaries, here alluded to, an extensive literature has developed. A convenient resumé of the Huron River Moravian settle-called into Detroit, where in a Council, the Warriors present, our cause was tried, and We honourably acquitted, after which Major, now Col^l De Peyster furnished us with Necessary's and a Pass to return and Live with our Indians in Peace, but finding soon after that our Life was in Danger, he in the Spring following, sent for Us to come into Detroit. We lived formerly on the River Muskingum, where we had for Years together enjoyed Peace on all sides. We had Three large Villages and thro Industry our Indians were so far advanced, that they hardly knew or remembered of anything they wanted. Large and compleat dwelling Houses, with furniture; a great Number of Horses; upwards of 200 Cattle; besides some hundreds of Hogg's, with the Corn on the Ground ripe for Harvest amounting at a moderate Computation to 5000 Bushel, were either Destroyed there, or afterwards lost. A few Days after our arival at Detroit, Col^l De Peyster consulted our welfare, and wished with Us, to see Us settled with our Indians again, that they might further be instructed in the Gospel way. He first proposed to Us, to return over the Lake to where our Indians was, and promised evry assistance in his Power, but we being too sensible, that the same People who were the cause of our Destruction were still residing among the Indians, and of whom we had good reason to believe, wished rather the Indians might remain as they was, than to be converted or civilized, would always be ready to do Us any Mischieff which lay in their Power. The Col^o believing the Aprehen-tion we were under not to be groundless, proposed next: That We and our Indians should settle down the River, either on an Island, or any other place, which might suit Us best, but as objections were made, the Island being to heavy Timbered, and the War path passing by the other places, he at length consulted the Chibbuway Chieffs, and it was agreed upon between them, that We might Live on their Land on this River⁵ until Peace should be made, then ment is published in Mich. Pio. Colls., XXX, 63, written by John E. Day and Clarence M. Burton. For further information concerning the Moravians see the Diary of David Zeisberger and John Heckenwelder's Narrative.

⁵ The modern Clinton River, known a century ago as the Huron. The site chosen to return again wherever We chose. He then sent Speeches to our Indians, at and about the Shawnee Towns to invite them in, and after the arival of the first, informed them of the whole matter. We then acordingly went with those Indians in search of a place, and pitched upon the spot We now live on, which was an entire Wilderness. We begun to Work on our Improvement the 26th July 1782, and have continued so untill the present Day, in which time we with our Indians, have built a small Villiage consisting of 27 log Houses, besides some Stables, out Cellars, and smaller Buildings. We have cleared Lands in different places about the Village, made fences ect: so that it appears to Us to be a Valuable Improvement at which, if it suited our Destina-tion, we could now live contentedly and more at ease. But we, being sent by the Bishops of our Church to reside near the Dellaware Nation, to continue to Instruct them in the Gospel, as We had done this Thirty Years past, finding this not to be the proper place, that Nation being so far distant, and they not inclined to change a good hunting ground for a worse, neither, that the one half of the Indians belonging to Us have yet on this present Day joined Us on this very account. And moreover, We having found, that the Chibbuways become more and more Uneasy that We stay here so long on their Land after the peace. And that our Indians, whoom they call expert Hunters, destroy all their Game. We therefore, have at length resolved to go to our former place, and for that purpose acquaint You of it. But at the same time We beg leave to ask a favour of You, which is: to sell our Improvement. We do not speak of selling the Land. The Chibbuways have frequently told Us that it belonged to them, and to nobody else. We only mention the Improvement, in which a vast [amount] of Labour is sunk. We understand, that a number of French intend to take posession of our Houses and Labour, without giving Us the least satisfaction, but We believe it to be far from the approbation of a Commanding Officer to see Us served in such a manner. We rather believe that You will direct matters so that Justice may be done Us in that respect. And we are persuaded, could You but take a view of this our Improvement,⁶ You would readily acknowledge, that we justly deserve something for it.

We therefore most humbly present this Petition to You, confident of receiving from You a favourable Answer.

We beg yet to mention, that Necessity presses us greatly to such a request, for it is hard to begin again with empty hand.

⁶ This Major Ancrum did on March 4, when he and Askin visited the settlement. The result of their inspection was a determination to purchase the improvements. Ancrum and Askin each had a land warrant from the government for 2000 acres of land, and by exercising these they gained control of the land adjoining the settlement. See Zeisberger's Diary, passim.

⁹ Gottlob Senseman was born in Bethlehem, Penn., Oct. 9, 1745. His father was a missionary to the Indians, and his mother was massacred in November, 1755. Sensemen, early began the life of a missionary and was long associated with Zeisberger. He was an eloquent speaker and an able teacher. He died at Fairfield, the Moravian mission established in 1792 on the Thames River, and his neglected grave may still be seen in the cemetery near Bothwell. Zeisberger, op. cit., I, xxiii.

SALE OF MORAVIAN VILLAGE

River Huron Feb^{ry} 27th 1786

Dear Sir, I would fain have mentioned to You sooner, that I had recieved the 30 lb Coffee by M^r Dolson,¹² but had no proper Opportunity. Now I am to ask Liberty of You in proposing a way, which We think perhaps easiest and best concerning our Improvement, but it is rather to ask Your advice in the matter. We are told, that there are both French and English People watching for Us to leave the place, who immediately intend to go in Our Houses, and make themselves masters of our Labour, without the smalest reward. We therefore, considering our circumstances, (and that We have but a short time to stay, if we,

After the removal from Michigan he followed the converts to Fairfield, Ontario, where he remained until the settlement was overrun by General Harrison's army in 1813. Young then retired to Litiz, where he died in 1826. Zeisberger, op. cit.

¹² Matthew Dolsen was a member, during the Revolution, of Butler's Rangers, and it is probable that he first came to Detroit in this connection. In 1781 he purchased from Gregor McGregor a lot within the fort, and in the deed he is described as a resident of Detroit. In 1789 he is described in another indenture as a tavern keeper at Detroit. The delegation of Quakers who visited Detroit in 1793 in the capacity of peace commissioners lodged with Dolsen, and seem to have conceived a real friendship for him. In like manner he cultivated friendly relations with the Moravians and enjoyed their confidence over a period of years. It seems probable that Dolsen later removed to the Thames River region, where he obtained a grant of land from the local Land Board in the spring of 1792. Dolsen's descendants were as we intend, to set off as soon as the Lake is clear of Ice) know of no better method, than to lay the matter before the Major of Detroit cet. of whom we are fully persuaded to believe, that he will act impartial, and do Us justice. We therefore being acquainted with You, beg of You, to lay the case before him, and inform him; that We have lived here three Years and an half, that, when we settled first here, we found ourselves in a Wilderness, but by the Industry of about Sixty dilligent hands, have built a small Villige, consisting of 24 log Houses, besides Stables and other small Buildings. That we have cleared Lands, made fences, Gardens, cet. that We therefore cannot think otherwise, than that We ought to have liberty to sell our Labour (We do not mean to sell the Lands but the Labour done on them) and that we therefore beg of the Major to permit Us to do so, as we shall want what little we shall get, to help Us where We shall settle again. Perhaps the next thing then would be, to put up an Advertisement that People might see that not only the Improvement is for sale, but that likewise it is by permission of the Comandant which would be a great encouragement to the buyer. M^r Dolson who is here at present, and the bearer of this Letter, has a notion of buying it, but he says also, he could not do it without the Majors permission. I am convinced You will, Sir, act in our behalf as much as lies in Your power, and if You have any proposals to make to Us, concerning the matter, such shall be readily accepted, in the mean time I am

MAJOR ANCRUM'S RESPONSE TO APPEAL OF MORAVIANS

Detroit March the 1st 1786

Gentlemen Your Letter of the 26^h of last Month to Major Ancrum Commandant of this Post I delivered and to which he desired me to give you the following Answer.

That he looks Upon your Letter as a fair Honnest Narrative of the Manner in which you came to and settled at this Place and as it Appears to him that from a wilderness by your Industry you have made a good Settlement for so Short a time, he thinks it very Just that your labour should not be in Vain, & in Order to Defeat the Ungenirous & mean Intentions of those who you say wait the moment of your Departure to take Possession of your Place without rewarding you for the Improvements you have made—he will himself make you a reasonable recompence for what you have done & represent the Matter to the Commander in Chief; Added to which you will have his Pass and Protection to return to your former Place of Aboad with some Assistance to your People. There will be a person Appointed to take charge of Your Place when you remove

You will see by the plan of the River enclosed herein, that I have not yet a Straight line of two miles and an half, observing that it is plotted by a Scale of Ten Chains to half an inch, it nevertheless comprehends all the best land on the River. M^r Edwards informs me that all the land on the N. E side of the River is high-up-Land and M^r Heckewelder who has explored the side where the Town is, says that better cannot be found, but is apprehensive that if the Back lines only run Twenty Acres, that much of it will be left out, I have therefore not done Any part of them untill I hear farther from you. I must again refer you to the Chart of the River, which I am positive is exactly laid down—The Corn fields are marked thus [figure]. Should you be at a loss to know which War pole & cabbins I mean it is where M^r Arden¹⁴ asked whether trophies were attached to it.

Two of the Men, Miller and a soldier were here Yesterday to grind an Ax. they say they have not yet made above Seven Miles of the Road. All the Indians are gone to work upon the Road¹⁵ this morning & will continue working at untill they Meet your Men, which will be as they say in two days, they have made an excellent Bridge next the Town. The Indians on the road request you will send them Some Tobacco for smoaking. M^r Chevalier Du Quindre has left 47^{lb} Bread with M^r Heckewelder to trade for Racoons. There Are no Racoons, and The Bread is getting mouldy! we have therefore taken Upon our Selves to give it to the Pathmakers and leave you to settle it with M^r Du Quindre. The Houses twenty-seven in Number are all marked, in a fair draught. hereafter I shall Number the Corn fields. The ice in the River is almost decayed. The Bearers are ¹⁴ Humphrey Arden was commissioned ensign in the Thirty-fourth Regiment, March 1, 1776, lieutenant, Aug. 2, 1780, and adjutant of the regiment, June 23, 1783. Since Major Ancrum of the Thirty-fourth Regiment commanded at Detroit from the spring of 1784 to the spring of 1786, it is probable that Arden's stay here coincided with this period.

OWNERSHIP OF MORAVIAN LANDS²⁰

Relative to what is marked N° on Mr Greeleys²¹ Map of the Upper River aux Hurons that falls into lake Sinclair

¹⁹ Francis Vigo was a native of Mondovi, Sardinia, where he was born in 1747. He entered the Spanish army and served at Havana and New Orleans. Leaving the service, still a young man, he engaged in trade at St. Louis, then in Spanish Louisiana. Here Vigo prospered, and on the advent of George Rogers Clark in the Illinois country used his wealth freely to promote the enterprises of the American leader in his warfare against the British. Not until 1876 were these advances repaid to his heirs, and largely in consequence of this defalcation by the American government, Vigo's later career was beset with financial embarrassment. He died in poverty, March 22, 1836, having passed his later career at Vincennes, Indiana. He was engaged in the Indian trade for many years, and became heavily indebted to Askin, the discharge of which the latter sought vainly to procure. For an account of Vigo's service to Clark and claim against the government for compensation, see "A Centennial Lawsuit," by C. C. Baldwin in Western Reserve and Northern Ohio Hist. Soc., Tracts, No. 35 (Cleveland, 1876).

²¹ Aaron Greeley was born in Hopkinton, New Hampshire, April 25, 1773. In early manhood he went to Canada, whither certain of his mother's relatives, who were Tories in the Revolution, had preceded him, and here for about a dozen years he engaged in surveying and in colonizing a township of land, in the latter connection building sawmills and gristmills, laying out roads, and bringing in settlers. In 1803 he married Margaret Rogers, a niece of Robert Rogers, the famous ranger, and about the year 1806 removed from Canada to Detroit, where he resumed his calling of surveyor. He surveyed the private claims awarded by the Board of Land Commissioners in the period 1806-10, making in the latter year the map of them here alluded to. In 1811 he went to Washington on business connected with his surveys, and remained until the early summer of 1812; while there, in response to his representations, Congress passed an act validating his surveys of the private claims at Detroit, regardless of their conformity with the awards of the Commission. Greeley returned to Detroit in time to be taken prisoner by General Brock, and soon thereafter he conveyed his wife and children to Hopkinton, New Hampshire, where they found asylum during the war. After its conclusion, Greeley returned to Detroit and resumed his surveying operations, dying, while thus engaged, in the Raisin River region in April, 1820. His wife and children, at the close of the war, returned to their former Canadian home in Haldimand Township; here they remained permanently, Personally came before me A B one of the Magistraits for the Michigan Territory residing at Detroit John Askin Senior Esquire who being duely sworn on the Holy Evangelist of Almighty God, deposeth & saith That on the 28^h of April 1786 he purchased for Major Ancrum & himself of the Moravian Ministers their Improvements at the Afores^d Place for the Sum of Two Hundred Dollars & likewise on same day from the Moravian or Christian Indians 16 In Number their Improvements on said Tract for a further Sum of Two hundred Dollars as will more fully Appear by the Deed of Sales recorded by the Late Geo. Hoffman Esq^r at Detroit in Liber E folio 3 also for a further Improvement at same place made by a Jn^o Bull for fifty Dollars which last deed of Sale seems to be missing but can be proven & That as a further consideration the Deponent for himself and Major Ancrum furnished two Vessells without any charge for the same to transport said Moravian Ministers & their people to the South shore of Lake Erie to Enable them to return to Mus[k]ingum their former Place of residence, and As a further consideration in order to Enable them to go home purchased their Canoes &^{ca} as will more fully Appear by their Deed of Sale & more Than 10 Letters of Thanks wrote the Deponant by the Reverend John Heckenwelder their principal in their behalf. That at the time of Purchasing & went [when] the Moravian Ministers & Indians went away there were 27 small dwelling Houses in the Village Exclusive of Out Houses & that of the whole of these Only One was claimed or Occupied by the late Richard Connor²² & no other. That at that time he [the] s^d Connor to the best of Deponants recollection had Im-never rejoining Greeley at Detroit. Mrs. Greeley died in 1866, and a daughter, Susan, was living as recently as 1901. Information condensed from biographical sketch of Aaron Greeley in Burton Hist. Coll. Leaflet, V, No. 4.

22. Richard Connor is said to have been a native of Maryland who engaged in the Indian trade and having ransomed a white captive from the Shawnee, Mary Myers, married her. They continued to live among the natives for a time, but about the year 1774 settled at Pittsburgh, having left a child with the Indians in pursuance, it is said, of one of the terms of the agreement whereby Mary Myers was ransomed. About the year 1775 they returned to Ohio for this child and, coming into contact with the Moravians, settled at their town of Schönbrunn on the Tuscarawas River. They subsequently accompanied the missionaries to Michigan. When the latter abandoned the Huron River settlement in 1786, Connor remained behind, not know-proved Only One corn field with a Garden and some small Lot in the rear of his House. That the deponant for himself & Major Ancrum purchased the Soil of the afores^d Improvements with other Lands adjoining of the Chippaway Indians (Eleven of the Principals having signed the Deed of Sale) for a Valuable Consideration as will more fully Appear by the Deed of Sale recorded by Peter Audrain Esq^r at Detroit in Book N^o 1 Page 95 & by the late Geo. Hoffman Esq^r in the Land Office at Detroit in Liber E Folio 6. That the Deponant went to considerable Expen^ce for himself & s^d Major Ancrum in laying out & making a road of 21 miles in length through the Woods from part of the Detroit settlem^t to said place called Moravian Town or Village as can be proven by the Deponants Books of Account. That Immediately After the departure of said Moravian Ministers & their Indians s^d Deponant made an Agree-

m^t with John Cornwall²³ to go there & take charge of the place whoes Oath as well as that of a man called Robert Dowler²⁴ will best prove how long they remained, what persons were on the place as tenants holding of the Deponant & Major Ancrum, how long they remained & what small part of that tract the late Richard Connor & no Other laid claim to. The Deponant further saith, That after s^d Cornwall, Dowler & several Others who were On these Lands went away the principal Chief of the Nation

ing, records Zeisberger, "whither to go nor what to do." Thereby he became the first permanent white settler of St. Clair County. He obtained a grant of land, and died here in 1808. His sons were well-known scouts and interpreters in the War of 1812. Information adapted from Zeisberger's Diary, passim; Mich. Pio. Colls., passim; sketch compiled by C. M. Burton in Denissen, op. cit.; and data in Am. State Papers, Pub. Lands, I, passim, especially 549.

²³ John Cornwall came to Detroit as a private in Butler's Rangers. He was here as early as July, 1779, when he made a deposition impugning the loyalty of James Casety. Mich. Pio. Colls., X, 344-45. In 1790 Cornwall occupied a lot on the Canadian side of Detroit River in the vicinity of Amherstburg. Ibid., XXIV, 58. Prior to this (in 1786) he had entered into an agreement with John Askin for farming the land near Mount Clemens which Askin (together with Major Ancrum) had purchased from the Moravians. See post, 234. In October, 1793, Zeisberger records, Cornwall came to Fairfield on the River Thames, where the Moravians had established themselves, and was about to settle near them. Diary, II, 327. In 1795 he seems to have been established at Amherstburg. Mich. Pio. Colls., XII, 167.

²⁴ Robert Dowler was a loyalist who came to Detroit probably at the close of the Revolution. His name is included in Major Mathews' list of those who, in 1787, were to be assigned grants of land on the north side of Lake Erie.

CLAIMANTS OF MORAVIAN LANDS

River Huron March y^e 22^d 1786

Dear Sir, I have acording to Your direction shewn M^r Bart[he] and the other Young Man the Land and Corn-fields over the River, as likewise the Houses in the Vilage. They like the place exceeding well, but imediately pitch'd on my House, and the one in which Your Corn is, which I endeavoured to persuade them, they would hardly obtain, mentioning to them that You had told me at Detroit, and now repeated to me again, that You would reserve these 2 Houses to Yourself. They have walked about on the Land and Cornfields on this side of the River, and by what I understand they mean to do their best, and try for the 2 above mentioned Houses, with the large Cornfield in the bent, namely the field We planted, and which is in a good fence. I desired them not to decieve themselves, but rather to look at some of the other Houses, to which they at last informed me: that in case they could by no means obtain the 2 Houses and Cornfield they pitched upon, they would then satisfy themselves with the 2 opposite Houses, N^o 14 and N^o 15 which are the Houses Mr Zeisberger and Edwards lives in, and likewise with Land over the River, oposite the Vilage.

Two Rangers, Lewis and Hamilton²⁵ have begun to clear Lands back of the Vilage, between 2 and 3 Miles. I am not certain that it is within Your Line, but by the description I have of the Indians of the distance of the spot, I can hardly think otherwise. I have heard, that they have try'd the course by the Compass, and say it will not fall in Your Line, and if it did, they will maintain their right as the Improvers, (tho this I have not heard them say). But be the matter as it will, I think they act very wrong, and besides, they can never be called the Improvers, since some of our Indians has built Sugar Cabbins there, and one had Deadened a Number of Trees, 3 Years ago on the Spot in order to plant Corn there. I have further heard that they shall have said: That they do not look upon a course mentioned acording to the Compass, which is caled a Line, to be a line at all; neither do they see any Body warnd from settling on any Lands hereabouts within such or such a distance. Wheither they actually have said all this, and intend to do what I have mentioned I do not know, but it is what I am told they shall have said and intend to stand to.

What assistance I gave to Mr Fry was a pleasure to me, and I shall always be ready to asist and serve You, when it is in my Power, and had the Indians have had a better

Season of the Year to have worked on the Road, they would most probably have made a very good Road, but it happend ju[s]t to be at the breaking up of the Weather, and now it will hardly be possible to do much more to it till June or July, however they have done pretty well for the short time they was at it, and I thank You for Using and sattisfying them so well. I hope the Lake will soon be clear of Ice, and We should be very glad if the Corn could be fetchd as soon as possible, so that We might make room to those who are to Live and plant here, for the sooner the[y] can go to Work, the better it is for them, and We want, if possible to put a Crop in the Ground over the Lake this Spring. SALE OF MORAVIAN LANDS

River Huron Apr. 9th 1786

Dear Sir, I have wrote a Letter, or rather a kind of petition to the Major concerning our Improvements agreeable to what we was speaking of. You will be so kind and look over it, and if it answers the purpose keep or present it, but if any thing should be wanting, or I had not wrote it properly, I beg of You to correct it and send it to me back again, that I might copy it off. I did for that reason not seal it, but if it answers the purpose as it is, You will Seal it or not according to Your Judgement. I suppose I must give You a Bill of Sale, but must ask You the favour of writing it and it shall be signed when we come down. Last Week a Dunker with his Son was here looking at the place, likes it very well, and thinks to find more of his profession that will join and get Farms of You. Two Men, the bearers of this were looking at the fields over the River, they tell me likewise they will rent them for a Year,

²⁷ John Harvey was an Englishman who came to America about the year 1796, leaving his family behind. After a considerable sojourn in New York he came to Detroit about the beginning of the nineteenth century. Here he followed the trade of baker, and also conducted an inn, and acquired considerable property. The fire which burned Detroit in 1805, originated in his shop. In 1816 Harvey left Detroit, intending to return to England, but instead he turned up at the falls of the Ohio (lured there by the prospect of the canal which was subsequently built around the falls) and passed the remainder of his life at Jeffersonville, Indiana, dying Dec. 5, 1825. In 1801 Harvey had purchased from Isaac Todd and James McGill a tract of land west of the town now known as Private Claim 39. With the growth of the city this land became very valuable, and was the subject of an extended litigation, which was not finally settled until half a century after Harvey's death. For a fuller sketch of Harvey's career see Burton Hist. Coll. Leaflet, IV, No. 1.

NEWS OF THE FUR TRADE

Montreal 12 April 1786

Dear Askin I must not let the first oppertunity of the Spring slip over without my personal Respects & I hope they will find you well in your health & a fair prospect of plentiful Returns from the Indian Country.

The House having wrote you on business, leaves me nothing further to say on that head than to conjure you by every tie of friendship to leave no stone unturned in order to make remittances, for on this Summer depends our own existence as men of Character & Credit. The very scanty payments we made last year, has left us indebted with our friends in England so largely that Todd writes me he was under the necessity of relinquishing every Scheme of business except the shipping a few dry Goods & some Rum, being afraid to run further in debt & perhaps even meet with a refusal of further Credit. This situation I need not tell you the cause, least it should have an appearance of reproach, your own feelings will dictate what must be mine. I have no occasion to say more than that I depend confidently on your acting in consequence. Do not suppose that, because I have been complaining for years past, the necessity is not greater than it was the case is much altered—a bad trade here, a scarcity of money & near double the sum owing us from above, but why should I detain you with this exposition of affairs, knowing that you will leave nothing undone that may be in your power to accomplish. I forsee & know that very few goods will be sent to Detroit this Season & it might have been a good year to push, but it is out of our power, therefore I advise you to husband well your dry Goods & if you order any that you may be as sparing as possible. Michilimakinac will be greatly overstocked, insomuch that it would not surprise me were goods sent from that Post to Detroit.

I cannot yet say anything certain to you about the prices of Furrs, but I am persuaded deer Skins have sold badly & I fear Beavers & Otters have had a tumble. I advise you strongly to change all your late fall & winter deer Skins for Raccoon & Pichoux,²⁸ but Foxes are really worth no more than 4/ York—a good Raccoon large size is better & two Raccoons or one Pichoux as they run of more value than a deer Skin, except it be a good red, very short [illegible], or parchment Buck.

Your friends of the Northwest are making a larger outfitt this year than they did the last & are going to build a small vessell at the Portage—their great success last year enables them to undertake any thing & I make no doubt they will continue successful, which on some of their accounts I most sincerely wish.

It is generally thought that Sir Guy Carleton who is expected early to be our Governor will permitt small vessells of private property on the Lakes, should that be the Case, you will no doubt wish to have one, but it will be prudent to wait till his determination is known, & so soon as we do know it, you shall hear from us.

I hope you will push Barthe to convert every thing into Returns this Season, he says he intends it as well to pay you as us, the Balance he owes is very near to 70000ⁿ Houses & Lands can never produce much benefit to Merchants & it may be the properest time to sell them before final determination of Government is known respecting the Posts; excepting a House for my business I would not wish to have any dead property in a country where for want of Courts of Justice, Tenures must be very insecure.

Your daughter Madeleine is in perfect health & when a proper opportunity offers It is my intention to fulfill M^{rs} Askins & your wishes by sending her up & I am pretty certain you will find her bien entendue dans le menage insomuch that I fancy you will not keep her many years

²⁸ This was the French-Canadian name of the red lynx (lynx rufus).

Mademoiselle. I expect Todd from England early & as there will be little to do here, he may probably pay you a visit, taking Madeleine with him.

River Huron Apr. 13th 1786

Dear Sir, I was favour'd with Your Letter Yesterday afternoon, and am sorry that I knew nothing before of Your wanting the Petiagers so bad. We will endeavour to have some down by tomorrow Night. Amos Western²⁹ has pitchd upon N^o 14 and I believe the Corn field below the Villiage. I would be glad to know wheither M^r Cornwell might have the Hope to live in next to mine, in which Your Corn is N^o 27. he asked me about it, and I told him that I had understood You intended to keep these 2 Houses to Yourself. I'm sorry the Vessel has such bad luck, and cant come up yet, however it may be soon.

²⁹ Amos Weston was a blacksmith, who may have come to Detroit from Niagara. In 1787 the report of Major Mathews on land allotments to discharged rangers and loyalists, lists Weston as a "blacksmith, many years with Stedman." See Essex Hist. Soc., Papers and Addresses, III, 72. In 1795 Weston was located at Spring Wells, having a house and shop there. He died shortly prior to Aug. 23, 1797, when a letter of administration was issued to John Askin as administrator of his estate. Numerous accounts relative to this matter are preserved among the Askin Papers in the Burton Hist. Coll.

Dear sir, I have got William and several others the owners of the seven petiagers³⁰ to take them down to You, and likewise some of the Women will send Hulling baskets with them. The Indians who have Petiagers to sell, are all in Debt and chiefly their Debts are old; but they are desirous of paying every body they owe before they leave the place, and for that reason have desired me to beg of You to assist them. There is no one remaining in Debt to me for You, except the three in the Account, which You are to take out of the petiagers. Will^m will enquire of them and inform You who they are in Deb^t to. We want and ought to be away from this place in the course of next Week, and chiefly on account of those People who are to settle here, and must have houses to go in. I must detain the remaining seven new Petiagers untill the Vessel arrives and is Loaded, and then immediately We intend to push off. I am glad to hear that my Letter answers the purpose, and that You find good People to live on Your Land. I think in a few Years time it will be a fine Settlement, but then You will have to get a Mill built, which will be still a greater encouragement towards settling. M^r Cornwell assures me he will do the best he can for You, and tells me the Land is to be laid out in Lotts very soon, which I think very needful. I am informed as I believed and told M^r Tracy: that there is no 13 Mile Tree to be found on the Road. So that the Road is one Mile shorter than We expected. I hope You have got the Seeds I sent You by M^r Dolson. Mr. Cornwell thinks it will not be amiss if he keeps the Powder and Shott yet remaining here.

I am Dear Sir, Your most Obed^t Humb^e Serv^t

Dear Sir, At length Capt^a Understund³¹ arrived at the Mouth of the River, and is now at my House. I am not at present positive what quantity of Corn will be taken, but We have agreed to send 400 Bags down, and in case it could not be all loaded to leave the remainder at Tuckers.³² The Barrel of Pork, Hog and other things belonging to You I will also send likewise Mine and M^r Zeisbergers Fowles. You will see what is sent by the Account, and what is left with M^r Cornwell, I will acquaint You of when I come down, which will be I hope in a few Days, as We are getting ready to go off as quick as possible. I am very sorry that You was Disappointed in getting the Number of Petiagers, and had it not been, that the Mouth of the river had been shut up for a few Days with Ice, I would have sent such of our People down who would have behaved better. I think I may venture to assure You now, that there are 7 large and well made Petiagers at this place, which no one is to have but You. I send 2 of my Tables by the Vessel and leave one for the Use of the House. Likewise I believe the two fishing canoes will be stowed in the Boat, which if so, You will please to present to the Major and Adjutant Arden. I can assure You We are very sensible of the manifest ³¹ Capt. James Underston. In 1796 he was living at Grosse Ile.

³² William Tucker was a native of New Jersey who was captured by Indians in boyhood, apparently about the beginning of the French and Indian War, and by them brought into the region of the upper lakes. After some years' captivity he was released, and thereafter lived at or near Detroit until his death, March 7, 1805. He is said, although on doubtful authority, to have conveyed to Major Gladwin the first information of Pontiac's designs in 1763. In the summer of 1773 he journeyed to Virginia and there married, which would seem to indicate that he had retained some connection with former friends and relatives. During the Revolution he served in the British Indian Department at Detroit, being listed in 1783 as interpreter to the Ottawa. In 1780 he received from the Chippewa an extensive grant of land on the Huron River, removing his family thither in 1784. He thus became one of the first permanent settlers of this region. See *Mich. ³⁷ David Duncan of the firm of Duncan and Wilson of Pittsburgh. They were engaged extensively in trade, their operations extending to Detroit, Vincennes, and other places. When Caldwell and Elliot failed at Detroit in 1787 they assigned their available assets to local creditors, leaving Duncan and Wilson, from whom they seem to have procured large numbers of cattle and considerable quantities of goods, wholly unsecured. In this connection Duncan charged Caldwell with having sent Indians to steal horses of the former, in order to avoid the necessity of paying for them. In 1787 Duncan reported that he was engaged in supplying all the U. S. posts and offered to assist John Askin in collecting debts due him by persons living at Vincennes. A copy of Duncan's will, made in Pittsburgh, Dec. 20, 1791, is in the Burton Hist. Coll. Besides his widow, Margaret, he left two sons (Samuel and David) and three daughters (Hanna[h], Mary and Margaret). In addition to considerable personal property, the will disposed of his residence in Pittsburgh and a plantation "on the hill," apparently in this vicinity. Information from manuscript letters of Duncan and others in Burton Hist. Coll.

³⁸ John Bull was a Moravian who in 1783 was delegated by General Benjamin Lincoln to proceed to Oswego and Niagara to inform the Indians that peace had been concluded between Great Britain and the American States, and to urge the natives to cease hostilities. At the same time Ephraim Douglass was sent on a similar mission to the Indians of the Ohio and Detroit areas. Both missions were largely frustrated through the action of the British commandants at Detroit and Niagara, who took the peace commissioners into custody and prevented them from delivering their messages. Douglass was brought in to Detroit, and from there forwarded, under custody, to Niagara and Albany. Bull, on the contrary, was forwarded from Niagara to Detroit, at which place he is stated, by the only authority we have found on the subject, to have been permitted to join the colony of his fellow religionists on Huron River (near Mount Clemens). It seems evident from Askin's letter to Duncan that he was still with them (now in Ohio) in 1786. See C. M. Burton, "Ephraim Douglass and His Times," in Magazine of History, Extra No. 10 (New York, 1910), 34; and Howard L. Osgood, "Indian Affairs in Western New York at Close of Revolution," ms. in Burton Hist. Coll.

³⁹ Captain William Caldwell was born at Castle Caldwell, Fermanagh County, Ireland. He migrated to America and shortly prior to the Revolution was living in western Pennsylvania. He remained loyal to the Crown, joined Bird's Rangers under Lord Dunmore in 1775, and served in Butler's Rangers from May, 1776, until July, 1784. He was an active and able partisan leader and over the western Indians he acquired an influence which remained unshaken until his death. He led the Indians in many battles with the Americans along the western frontier, two of his more notable exploits being the defeat of Colonel Crawford and the Battle of the Blue Licks, both in 1782. At the close of the Revolution, Caldwell located at Detroit where, in partnership with Matthew Elliot he engaged in trade. In 1787 the firm failed, having liabilities of £18,000 and assets of only about one-tenth this sum. In 1784, Caldwell and a group of associates procured from the natives a grant of land seven miles square at the mouth of Detroit River, on the northern portion of which they founded the town which was subsequently named Amherstburg. The same year, Caldwell obtained a grant beginning some four miles east of the river's mouth and extending about fifteen miles along the north shore of Lake Erie, which was settled by loyalists and disbanded soldiers; it was known as New Settlement, and was the nucleus of the subsequent townships of Colchester and Gosfield. In 1783 Caldwell married Susanne, daughter of Jacques Duperon Baby; to them five sons and three daughters were born. Caldwell and several of his sons bore prominent parts in the War of 1812. The father was captain of Caldwell's Rangers from 1812 until May 8, 1814, when he was transferred to the Indian Department with the rank of deputy-superintendent. He died at Amherstburg about the year 1820. Besides his regular family, Caldwell had a son whose mother was a Potawatomi woman. This son, known in history as Billy Caldwell, also bore an active part in the War

VOYAGE OF THE MORAVIANS TO OHIO

Hoper Cove, May 28th 1786

Dear Sir, About a half hour [ago] Your Barge arived safe in this Cove where they found both Your Vessels and ourselves lying yet on account of Contrary Winds. We had but once since our first arrival a midling fair Wind with which we made an attempt for the Grand River, but by the time we had sailed 30 Miles, the Wind turned right ahead again, and we were obliged to run back again to the Islands. We are indeed impatient to get to the main shore where our Inds. may get [some] hunting for a great many of them has been out of provision this good while, and had it

I have proposed to both Cap^{ts} wheither the Macinaw Sloop could not set part of Us on Shore at the Mouth of Sandusky, thinking it will speed the Voyage in a great measure, and only carry our Baggage with a few hands to the Grand River. I hope it will meet your aprobation. I thank You a thousand times for Your kindness in sending Us some provision. I had already served what I had of my own out to the hungry Indians. I think it would be to[o] much to agree to Your kind offer in sending us more provision, have consulted Mr Zeisberger, Edwards and Bull about it, but we are of different opinions concerning this matter. I should indeed be very sorry, should all this be at Your own expence, but should Government, who indeed has always been very kind and acted as a father to Us do as much more for Us as to send the boat with a little more Provision, we being in a desert place on an Island and not knowing when we shall be off, at least the whole of Us, we shall indeed be very thankful and acknowledging for it. Captⁿ Understan has had great patience with Us, and deserves much praise, for I asure You so many Indians of all Sizes are no agreeable Cargo in the whole. Translation

WE, the chiefs of the Potawatomi, after due deliberation on the present condition of lands which we have long left uncultivated, and by the advice and consent of the whole tribe, have decided to give a portion to our friend Charles Réaume,⁴⁴ to the extent of six arpents of front on the right bank of the River Raisin ascending the stream, by one hundred arpents in depth conformable to previous concessions adjacent to the said land, adjoining land of his brother, Baptiste Réaume, on one side, and uncaded lands on the other side.

And for the good fellowship which we bear to him, we light with him a pipe of peace and tranquillity, as a guaranty of possession of the entire tract, its meadows, marshes, woodland, etc., from now and forever, to him, his heirs and assigns; and that he may enter into full rights of ownership, with no hindrances whatsoever, we all now make our accustomed signs. Executed at Detroit, June 10, 1786.

FINANCIAL SETTLEMENT BETWEEN JOHN ASKIN AND JEAN BAPTISTE BARTHE

Having been requested by M^r John Askin, on the part of John Askin & C^o, & by J. B. Barthe, on the part of J. B. Barthe & C^o to examine the account of John Askin & C^o against the said J. B. Barthe & C^o as well as to settle some other points hitherto disputable; we have done so. And conformable to the articles of copartnership, which say, that J. B. Barthe & C^o are to be furnished with whatever they may want at the price it cost here, if purchased on the spot; & if below, at the prime cost in Montreal with charges & risk: we find according to the tenor of these articles that the sum of Thirteen Hundred & thirty five pounds eleven shillings, must be deducted for overcharges &c: & further, that the sum of Five Hundred & twenty six [pounds] four shillings, being the balance of Freights received by J. Askin & C^o on account of the sloop Mackinac between the 15th May 1782 & 19th June of the same year has not before been credited J. B. Barthe & C^o These two sums therefore will form an additional credit to them with John Askin & C^o of Eighteen Hundred & sixty two pounds five shillings New York currency. This is the result of our examination, & what, to the best of our judgment is just & right: Detroit 19th June 1786.

William Robertson
Tho^s Finchley

JOHN ASKIN PAPERS

After carrying the balance of the Mackinac's account to the credit of J. B. Barthe & C^o the sum then due by them to John Askin & C^o would be nearly five thousands; from which, according to the articles of their copartnership, there must be a deduction of thirteen hundred & odd pounds as above stated: in order however to bring the affairs of J. B. Barthe & C^o to a final conclusion, a matter much wished for both by M^r Askin & M^r Barthe; M^r John Askin has this day agreed before us to accept the sum of Five thousand pounds New York currency, as a full & complete payment of the debt due by J. B. Barthe & C^o to John Askin & C^o relinquishing all claim to any share of profits that may have arisen from the trade of J. B. Barthe & C^o as if the said copartnership never had existed: and, in consideration of this M^r J. B. Barthe obliges himself to pay the above sum of Five thousand pounds; one-half the 15th October next in Montreal, & the other, namely two thousand five hundred pounds, the 15th October one thousand seven hundred & eighty-seven: Detroit 22^d June 1786.

TRADE CONDITIONS AT DETROIT

Detroit June 22^d 1786

Dear Friends Your Sundry favours of the 30th April & 13th & 14th & 20th May came all to hand Yesterday, and what of them is not Answered by Letters wrote prior to my Receiving these I now mean to do. If none but those who pay their Freights will have a Preferance in the Kings Vessalls others will not Receive any Considerable hurt by it for my part the little I want I would wish in Bateau by Wintering men the Advantage Arising from them is much more than the whole of the Freights up so that it might be said good[s] in that [way] are b[r]ought up for nothing.

Mr Pollard⁴⁵ has shewn me Coppies of the Letters that passed between General Hope⁴⁶ and the Gentlemen in Trade Relative to Freights, the Latter corresponds with our Sentiments of the Matter I note what you say about Collecting Proofs of Losses Sustained which shall be done but I cannot possible Conceive how any Suit as yet can be Commenced against me, as no Regular Account has ben produced against me nor a Demand made for the paym^t Mr Laughton by the Vessall before this brought me what he Called an Account and asked If I would give him a Receipt for it I said I would and Accordingly got one

⁴⁶ Henry Hope was commissioned major in the Forty-fourth Regiment, May 3, 1775, and lieutenant colonel Oct. 5, 1777; later he became a brigadier general. In the summer of 1782 he was sent by General Haldimand on a tour from Quebec to Mackinac and Detroit to report on military conditions, especially on the great expenditure of government funds which was going on at Mackinac. In 1785 Hope succeeded Henry Hamilton as lieutenant-governor of Canada, serving until the arrival of Lord Dorchester in Canada in 1786. He died, April 13, 1789. Information adapted from Mich. Pio. Colls., X, passim; Ford, British Officers in the American Revolution; and inscription on tombstone of Henry Hope, in St. Matthew's churchyard, Quebec.

Ready which however he did not send down as it would Expose the manner in which these Accounts are made up. I send you it Inclosed however Except necessary I would not wish to have it produced as it would hurt an Obliging man. Your Letter on the Subject of Freights I have shown to M^r Robertson, M^r Hamilton being gone.

The Continued Losses on Skins added to Others of an Other nature has nearly thrown me into a Stupid State from whence nothing but my Duty to Justice to those who have Supported me perhaps could Rouse me. It's impossible to get Skins Exchanged but to give Correspondents such as you are a Directional power about them I agree to with all my Heart If General however in my Oppinion If there was Leather dressers & Breeches makers here we would get Rid of a large Quantity on the Spott for Smoked Skins Sell or Exchange very fast with the Inhabitants from 12/ to 16/ There cannot be a better Remedy for the Disorder this Country is got into than few goods Coming to it in Deed there is no other that would Answer, by these Means none but the Capable of Good Characters will be Furnished 2^d [illegible], & they Sparingly as they will not meett with Opposition as Usual they will get the full Value for what they May part with.

As to myself I have before Mentioned to you that the part of the Memorandum which I sent you that may be convenient for you to Compleat will answer me £250 worth of Silver works in lieu of £400 your Currency will Answer the only things then wanted to Compleat my 6th Share is the Liquor ab^t 30 pieces of Calicoe 20 p^s Striped Cottons 8 of Coating & as many of Ratuns with ab^t 20 p^s of R. Sheet- ing. If I should want a few Indian Goods M^r Robertson has plenty so that the Remainder of what you send I mean for the Trade of this Place.

M^r Vigoe is here & has brought about 100 Packs he would not have brought so much had he known that the Skins was so low as he Still [has] to Remain in Debt he is allowed to be the best man towards the Post we have fitted him out & have great Reason to think he will make a great Stroke as we do not see any person who is both Capable & Inclined to Oppose us in that Quarter nor Indeed in any other [of] the dependances of this Post.

I before wrote that Barthe is going to make his Residence at S^t Marys for some years therefore does not want anything [sent] up this way he promised me at parting to Convert all he Could Into Remittances for this year & I dare say he will do it. I Omitted mentioning that you send off without Loss of time in Bateauxs & with Wintering men all you have to send. I note what you say about the Rum Rec^d of M^r Martin in paym^t of a Debt due you by Mess^{rs} Douglass & F[il]eming I Realy Rec^d it on that Account only & gave a Receipt Accordingly. I'm Glad there is some Pork on the Way for me as Im disappointed in what I should have got from the Colonies, the Reason of which I'm not yet Acquainted with. Im perticularly happy to learn that I may depend on Seeing one of you this Summer. No matter shall be settled with M^r Grahams before that time nor shall any Threats whatever make me deviate in the Smallest Degree from what I think Right.

Our new Concern agrees with you in Sentiment that our Outfit should not be for one half what it formerly was among us all Separately & yet we have much Reason to Expect that the Returns will be Equal if not more than formerly that most certainly is the only means to be taken of Changing our Trade for the better. M^r James Ellis is now here & does not relish the Manner in which M^r Th^{os} Forsyth Acted for tho the Answer to the whole of us as a C^o might be necessary or you & him might have had Reasons for it, yet he should like you in private Letters wrote such of his Correspondants as he mean to Continue Supplying that he would provide their 6th Share & send it Immediately forward as by our Articles Each of us are to Furnish our shares at a Certain Price those who fail will have to go out of the Concern.

I'm thankfull to you for the Advice but I asure you at same time it never was my Intentions to Engage in any Joint purchase for the Concern Unless some Peticular

Advantage derived to Myself therefore. The Felicity is now taking in Packs and the Rebecca will take in to Morrow In the Latter I will load my proportion & send you an Account of them at same time. There is many of my Customers from whom I have not any perticular Account of what they have made & are sending me. I fear many of them will fall short but I hear of only one that I'm doubtfull of his having gone off, but M^r Vigoe says he will see him this Winter & does not dispear of geting some paym^t from him. I shall End this long Letter with Asurances of Strict friendship on the part of Yours &c

Translation

Sandusky, June 22, 1786

Sir: As your carts are delayed I have sent St. John on with thirty-three packs so as to make the best use of our time [?]. He has a cartload more of thirty packs ready. I am leaving for the Shawnee country to see my creditors. They promised to pay me this summer, if they do not owe me anything more, it will be because there has not been any trade. They were to have some goods and, of course, their wages. They owe me 317 pounds more of roe-buck skins. If your carts come they can take whatever there is. My father will attend to the thirty packs that are made up. If I had had a better assortment of goods, as I see now was necessary, or if I had not had the misfortune to give my merchandise to those people out there, I would have made two hundred packs the past [winter] which I fully intended to send you in payment of what I owe, but those people did me a great wrong. They got the first two cartloads that you sent. But I have sworn never again to trust any man, white or black. Will you kindly send an order for payment from Charles Drouillard?⁴⁷ He owes me yet 177 [pounds] of roe-buck skins, and will not pay, neither in peltrie, nor skins, nor pork.

I should tell you that Mr. Coon⁴⁸ has written to the savages not to let any white man put up buildings. I do not know if that is by the major's order, or just his own. If the savages have asked that no more rum be sold at Sandusky then it is Mr. Elliot's⁴⁹ orders and Mr. Coon has done it only

⁴⁸ Abraham Coon, or Kuhn, was a white captive who lived among the Wyandot of Sandusky, and according to some statements became a war chief. However this may be, he exercised considerable influence over his associates, and if not formally attached to the British Indian Department, was evidently subject to its control. According to Gov. William Walker of Kansas, Coon was taken captive in western Pennsylvania about the year 1770. He is said to have exerted his influence over the Wyandot in favor of making peace with General Wayne in 1795. A descendant of Coon, John Coon, was the first person to be legally executed in what is now the state of Kansas, being convicted of murder by the Wyandot council and shot on the present site of Kansas City, Kansas. See Heckenwelder's Narrative, 368-69.

⁴⁹ Matthew Elliot was a native of Ireland who came to America as a young man in 1761. He served in Bouquet's expedition for the relief of Fort Pitt in 1763. For many years thereafter he was engaged in the Indian trade or the government service, or both, with headquarters at Pittsburgh. By the opening of the Revolution he was conducting rather extensive trading operations, and had acquired much influence over the Indians of the Ohio Valley. Probably by reason of his government employment, Elliot remained loyal to the king, and in the autumn of 1776 set out with two or three followers and a considerable train of goods for Detroit. En route his goods and slave were seized by the Indians, but Elliot himself reached Detroit in safety. There, however, he incurred the suspicion of disloyalty and was arrested and sent down to Quebec by Governor Hamilton. On being released, he made his way back to Pittsburgh, where he associated with other loyalists and became known as a dangerous character. On March 28, 1778, Elliot again sought refuge at Detroit, in company with Alexander McKee and Simon Girty. This time he won the confidence of the British authorities and was soon employed in the Indian Department. Throughout the remainder of the Revolution he was an active leader of Indians in the warfare in the West, participating in almost every important expedition in the Ohio region during the war. He led 300 Indians in the defeat of Colonel Crawford's expedition, aided in the slaughter of the Kentuckians at the Blue Licks, served with Hamilton with respect to you and to me. Both Mr. Isaac [Williams?]⁵⁰ and John Elliott,⁵¹ who owe much to Mr. Cornwall, have gone to the Grand River⁵² to try to get liquor. My rum and flour comes from Detroit and is opened for them at Grand River. The savages have held a council. It is reported that they must not take rum from any white man except on the order of Mr. Coon who wants to be a chief among them. I have nothing more to say except that if I could only make good arrangements for trade, I could do more than anyone if there was no liquor. I remain your most humble and obedient servant, on the Vincennes campaign, and with Bird on his invasion of Kentucky in 1780. In 1781 he conducted the Moravian Indians from Sandusky to Detroit, and in 1783 conducted the American peace commissioners, Douglass and McCully, to the same place. Prior to the American occupation of Detroit, Elliot withdrew to the vicinity of Amherstburg, where he conducted a farm and continued his service in the British Indian Department. He effectively served his country in the operations in western Ohio from 1790 to 1794, and in July, 1796, was promoted to the superintendency of Indian Affairs. By reason of a garrison intrigue, he was dismissed a year and a half later, and for several years he vainly sought vindication of his conduct at the hands of the authorities. Ten years after his dismissal, when war with the United States seemed again impending, the government found that no one else could control the western Indians, and Elliot was reappointed Superintendent of Indian Affairs. Although now an old man, he served zealously and effectively until his death, May 7, 1814. He led the Indian contingent when Brock captured Detroit in August, 1812, and as much as any one man was responsible for the River Raisin massacre. On Procter's withdrawal from Detroit in 1813, Elliot accompanied him. One of his last exploits was to lead the savages in the assault on Fort Niagara in December, 1813. Few men have known how to control the American Indian as successfully as did Elliot, and none have been bitterer foes of the United States. He died at Burlington Heights, May 7, 1814, a fugitive from his home, which had been ravaged by the victorious Americans. Elliot married Sarah Donovan, daughter of Matthew Donovan, one of Detroit's early schoolmasters. The outward shell of his home still stands on the shore of the Detroit River, a short distance below Amherstburg. Information adapted from biographical sketch (ms.) by C. M. Burton in Burton Hist. Coll.

⁵¹ John Elliott was a private in Butler's Rangers during the Revolution and came to Detroit at the conclusion of that struggle. His name is in Major Mathews' list of loyalists and disbanded soldiers to whom grants of land were to be made on the north side of Lake Erie in 1787.

Dear Sir I suppose You have heard already, that We have settled, and planted a little Corn on this River, and as matters seem as yet not to be cleaverly [clearly] at Rights in the Indian Country, We, I suppose may stay here some time, perhaps at least a Year or two. At present We are pretty much pinched in the Way of Provision, but I hope we will be able to surmount this and other difficulties. We understand, that 2 paquets of Letters for Us, were sent to Detroit by People that took Cattle in for M^r Duncan, and it is likely they are left with Capt^a Caldwell or at M^cKee. I must beg of You to enquire for them, and send them by the first Opportunity to the Mouth of this River, (where M^r Neil who has the Care of Flower and Your Pork lives). It was not M^r Duncans fault that the Pork was not out in the right time. I suppose he has mentioned all about it to You already. to the first of July 1787, shall belong to John Askin, at which period the said copartnership shall terminate & cease.

2. John Askin obliges himself to sustain half the expenses that may be incurred, & half the losses should there be any, as also to render the copartnership every service in his power in the way of trade &c.

3. The said copartnership is to pay William Robertson six hundred pounds a year as an equivalent for his conducting the business & for his being publicly responsible for whatever the company does; as also, an equitable rent for such places as he may judge necessary for carrying on the trade; the mode of doing which he reserves entirely to himself without any restriction whatsoever: Detroit, 22^d July 1784.

William Robertson

MISCONDUCT OF JOSEPH REAH

R^e Blanche Le 24^e Novembre 1786

Monsieur Ne pouvant pour le present me transporter au
Detroit etant le fort de la traite d'automne; Je vous adresse les Comptes de Joseph Reah qui doit y aller se plaindre d'une violence Soit disant que Je lui ait fait; pour vous mettre offet de cette affaire Je vais vous la detailler; cet homme apres plusieurs prieres et employé meme un de mes commis pour que Je vint a Lequiper me fit déterminer, malgré quelque repugnances, a lui donner des marchandise
a commission, a raison de Dix castor pour Cent Castor, et de traiter sur les prix que Je lui feroit et deprendre les peaux mal comme femelle, a deux pour un Castor commes étoit L'usage dans ce temps; ainsi que de toutes les autres peltries, aux quels ils devoit se conformer; il étoit pour lors a la R^e Blanche eloigner de moy denviron 25 Lieux, et s'obli-geoit de m'apporter les peltries chez moy, toutes ces conventions verbal presence de M^r Largeau et promettant de les excuter. Quelques temps apres il vint m'apporter des peltries et me dit qu'il ne pouvoit gagner sa vie au prix de Dix p^r cent et quil y avoit quelques Articles de trop chere; Je consentie a Luy donner 12 Castor pour cent castors
quil vendroit et rabattre sur ces Articles quil trouvoit

trop chere; il a continué a travailler assez bien pend^t le restant de L'été et une partie de L'automne, apres ce temps Je recue avis qu'il detournois de mes peltries et en avoit même vendue au Sieur Lafontaine; Je lui en fit reproche et me l'avoûa mais non pas une si grande quantité comme il avoit fait Et Voyant quil n'avoit plus d'envie de continuer, et quil cherchoit des moyens de s'equiper allieur, Je lui dit en fevrier 1785 quil vint arranger ses comptes avec moy il me le promit mais s'en vouloir l'executer car depuis ce temps M^r Largeau a été plusieurs fois pour cela, il n'a Jamais dit non mais eludez Le temps. Je mi Suis transportez moi même avec Le S^r Saffray qui me Servit d'Interprete, Je trouvois plusieurs charges de peltries Lier qui estoit du provenû de ma Marchandises et quil Se disposoit a comporter aux Miamis (comme il avoit deja fait cidevant) Je lui ait demandé a me Les donner il me dit que Si Je vouloit prendre Les peaux de mal a un Castor (ce qui n'etoit point nos conventions) Je n'avois qua les prendre mais que Si Je vouloit Luy quitter elever un commerce Avec ces peltries qil me payeroit sous deux mois, J'ai cru Sa promesse Sincere Et Le lui accordée; Le terme s'est ecoulée et un Lapse de Temps tres considerable sans Le voir; Je l'ai fait prier par Autrui Et par M^r Largeau et ce inutilement. Ayant pour reponce ordinaire dans les conversations quil tenoit avec d'autres personnes No Law here qui a passé en proverbe dans ces endroits ici, ou Londit (comme Le vieux Jos.[] point de Loix ici, il en a donné une marque assez convinquante Lorsqu'un nommé Charley Luy demandoit Son payement, il Luy a repondre d'un coup de fusil dans le coté avec plomb en grain et une balle.

Le Bruit publique estoit que Le dit Joseph Reah Se determinoit a partir sous peu avec des charges de peltrie, pour aller chez les Ameriquains, d'autres quil S'en alloit a la Roche de Bout, cette derniere place me fut confirmé par Lavertissement qui vint me faire la S^r Saffray Je me determinai a Lui aller otter les peltries qu'il devoit emporter, et voyant que cet homme n'avoit plus de commerce et quil ne cherchoit qu'une occasion de sevader Je partie le 29 Septembre avec un de mes hommes pour ce Sujet et trouvant

quil etoit deja partie p^r la Roche debout Je fut a Sa poursuite et le S^r Rivet vint avec moy pour lui faire rendre ou payer un cheval qui lui appartenoit. Je le rejoignit a quelques Lieues de la R^{re} Blanche Sur le chemin, Je lui ait Ottez toutes ces peltries et un cheval comme vous voirez par le proces verbal ci Joint sans faire aucune insulte a Sa personne comme il en a fait courir Le bruit (il est vrai que Javois ma carabine mais tout Le monde scait que Je ne marche Jamais sans L'avoir et que ces avec elle que Je vis et fait vivre mon monde p^r mon homme il n'avoit ni verge ni baton) main en lui disant que Si Je le Retrouvois encore avec des peltries a lui, Je lui en feroit autant Jusqu'a La conqurance de mon payement, puis quil ne vouloit point venir me Satisfaire. C'est un homme que J'ai arretée dans le chemin et qui emportoit mon bien par Le chemin; la Sagesse des Legislatteur ont infligé des peines pour Le Larcin, Je regarde La facon de Joseph Reah en enlevant mes peltries comme Telle Je le Payoit pour me vendre mes marchandises Je reprenoit ce qui restoit (vous envoirez La preuve par L'Etat de marchandise remise) Les ventes quil en a fait hors ma Connöissance son telle, les personnes qui les achetoit avec connoissance du fait sont reputez receleur. C'etoit Les Loix de notre Ancien Gouvernement. M^r Gray qui paroît comme Avocat et parti n'apoint eu de repugnance de les acheter de mon commis (Je puis le ratifie tel puisque Je lui payoit commission) et de Lui avancer des marchandises Je crois parfaitement quil n'en etoit point instruit mais il ne doit point trouver Mauvais que Je reprenne ce qui etoit a moy. Enoutre Les propres discours du dit Reah qui disoit qu'il n'avoit point de Loix ici et que Je voyois clairement quil vouloit S'evader, mon fait agir envers lui de la façon que Jai fait sa mauvaise conduite Envers moy m'en a persuadez Et vous allez le voir en ce Trait. dans L'automne de 1784 Je lui dit de m'acheter du Bled pour ma provision, il le fit au nombre de 6 a 700 Tresses, et me dit quil avoit eü 7 Tresse pour un Castor Je fut comptant de Son achat mais Lorsque Je voulû avoir du Bled il ne voulut me donner Le meme nombre de Tresse qu'il avoit eu p^r un Castor et auroit Comme voulu m'en faire une vente; C'etoit cependant Avec ma marchandises qu'il l'achetoit, et que Je lui payoit Commission apres plusieurs demande il ne m'a point donné de Bled. La vendu allieurs et n'en ait point eu le produit. voici de La façon que Jai été traitté. Je ne finirai point Si Je vous disoit totalement Les manques quil ma fait et Je vous prie instament de le faire arreter si il va au Detroit et de le pour suivre partoutes Les voies de La Justice, pour mon entier payement, Vous m'obligerez Beaucoup.

Soyez toujours persuadez que Je vais faire le plus quil me Sera possible a satisfaire a mes dettes tant passives qu'Actives; le derangement ou sont les Sauvages les empeches de Chasser et l'incertitude ou ils sont d'aller se fixer un azile, me fait être de même, Les menaces continuelles que font les Americains qui doivent venir en gros dans ces endroit ici Le printemps prochain m'engage aussi a aller enChoisir une pour eviter le pillage quils se proposent de faire a tous les Marchants qui traite avec les Sauvages, ce ne sont que des bruits qui pouroit s'effectuer et Je vais tacher de les prevenir en meretirant. Je croyois cependant que nous étions en paix et que Suivant les traittés que le commerce etoit libre; mais en quelques Endroits que Je le fixe Je me ferai lhonneur de vous en instruire et de vous faire parvenir ce que Je me propose de vous envoyer

Jespere que vous vous interessez pour moy dans mes petites affaires et particulierement dans celle que Je vous adresse, de mon coté Je m'employerez a vous être toujours agreable et conserver votre confiance.

Je suis Monsieur Votre Tres humble Serviteur

Lorimier

P.S. Je vous observe que Les Marchandises que Jai donnée a vendre a Joseph Reah étoit a moy, que Je lui payoit commission Et que Je lui avoit Expresement Defendû de faire aucuns credits aux Sauvages avec Les ditte Marchandises.

White River, November 24, 1786

Sir: I cannot come to Detroit at this time as it is the rush of the autumn trade, so I am sending you my accounts against Joseph Reah.⁵⁸ He goes up to complain of an alleged assault by me, and that you may know the truth of the matter I give you the facts in detail.

That man kept begging me to set him up in trade and even employed one of my clerks to intercede for him. Against my will, I let him have merchandise on commission at 10% in beavers, with an agreement that he was to trade according to my prices, and that bad skins and female, should be graded at half value, as the custom was then, and the same for all other peltries, to which he agreed. He was then at White River, about 25 leagues distant from me, and he was to bring the peltries in to me. This was all by verbal contract, in the presence of Mr. Largeau,⁵⁹ Reah promising to do everything according to this agreement.

Some time later, he brought in peltries and told me he could not make his living on the 10% contract, and that the goods were too high priced. I consented to allow him 12%

in beavers on what he sold, and to make a reduction in the price of those articles he thought were too dear. He worked fairly well all that summer and part of the fall, but after that I heard that he was diverting my peltries to his own profit and had even sold some to Mr. Lafontaine.⁶⁰ I accused him of this, and he admitted doing something of the kind, but not as much as he had done. Seeing that he did not wish to continue, but was seeking some excuse to get his goods elsewhere, I asked him in February, 1785, to come in and settle his accounts with me. He said he would, but evidently had his own plans about doing it, for since then Mr. Largeau has been several times for a settlement and though Reah has not said anything he just kept putting it off. I then went myself, with Mr. Saffray as interpreter, and found several loads of peltries made up which had been procured by my goods and that he was preparing to take them to the Miamis (as he had done before). I asked for them. He said that if I would take the bad skins at full value (which was not our agreement), I had only to do so, but that if I would leave them with him for the purchase of goods he would surely pay me within two months' time. I took him at his word and let him have the peltries. This time has elapsed and much more, without seeing him. By Mr. Largeau, and others, I have demanded payment, but with no effect, his usual response in conversation being "No law here," and this has become proverbial in these parts, where they say ⁶⁰ Francis Lafontaine was engaged in the fur trade at Miamitown (modern Fort Wayne) as early as 1780. He was a great-grandson of Guillaume Dubord dû Lafontaine, born in France in 1625, who married there Catherine Guerard in 1670 and about ten years later migrated to Canada and settled at Champlain, where he was buried April 2, 1705. His descendant, the subject of this sketch, was born at Lanoraie, Feb. 23, 1757, and spent most of his active life in the fur trade of the Wabash Valley. There he consorted with a Miami woman and their son became a chief of the tribe. An interesting picture of Lafontaine's fur trade activities is given in the Journal of Henry Hay. It would seem from the information recorded in Denissen that later in life Lafontaine returned to civilization, making his home at Detroit. On Nov. 17, 1807, he married here Catherine Chabert, daughter of Francis de Joncaire de Chabert and Josette Chêne, and to them in the next few years five children were born. In 1802 Lafontaine had made a will giving his property to a son named therein; this instrument he subsequently revoked. He was buried at Detroit, Jan. 31, 1815. His widow afterwards married Ezra Younglove. Lafontaine was one of the men chiefly instrumental in stirring up the Indians to attack and destroy La Balme's expedition at Miamitown in 1780.

(like this old Joe), "Point de Loix ici!" He even gave proof of this to one named Charley who asked for his pay, and got for answer a gun shot in his side with powder and ball.

There was a report that this Joseph Reah intended to set out with his loads of peltries, either for the Americans, or, as some said, for Roche de Bout.⁶¹ This last place was confirmed to me by a warning from Mr. Saffray, so I decided to go and seize the peltries that he was planning to carry off, seeing that the rascal was not trading with me any more, but was seeking only the chance to evade me. I left on September 29 with one of my men for that purpose, but found that he had already started for Roche de Bout. So I set myself in pursuit. Mr. Rivet went with me to recover a horse which belonged to him, or make Reah pay for it. I came up with him on the road some leagues from White River and seized all his peltries and a horse, as you will see by the certified statement, but with no personal injury to himself despite his assertions to the contrary (it is true I had my carbine with me but everyone knows that I never go out without it, as I depend on it for game for myself and my people, but my man had neither cane nor cudgel). I told him that if I found him with any more peltries I would do the same up to the amount of what he owed me, since he would not settle with me.

He is a scamp whom I have waylaid on the highway when he was carrying off my property on that highway. The legislature has justly imposed a punishment for larceny. I regard as such the action of Joseph Reah in taking my peltries. I was paying him to sell my merchandise, and I seized what was left (you can prove this by the statement of goods returned). The sales he made without my knowledge constitute the same crime and those who bought the things, knowing this, may be called receivers of stolen goods. That was the law under the French régime. Mr. Gray,⁶² who appears in his interest as a lawyer, did not hesitate to buy from my clerk (I can prove that he is so since I paid him commission), and advanced him goods. I am persuaded that Mr. Gray did not know the circumstances, but he should not blame me for seizing my own property. Besides, Reah's own words, when he said that there was "No Law here," convinced me that he meant to evade payment and prompted me to action. It was his own bad conduct that influenced me, as you will see from the following transaction.

61 Roche de Bout is a rocky point on the Maumee River about a mile above modern Waterville, Lucas County, Ohio. Nearby was fought the Battle of Fallen Timbers by General Wayne in August, 1794.

62 Probably David Gray, a trader who was operating in the Maumee and Wabash

In the autumn of 1784 I asked him to buy corn for me for fodder. He got about 6 or 7 hundred tresses⁶³ and told me that he had bargained for them at the rate of 7 tresses for 1 beaver. I was depending on his purchase but when I needed the corn he would not let me have it for the same number of tresses for a beaver as he had got it, but wanted to sell it to me, though he had even bought it with my merchandise and I had already paid him a commission. After several demands he would not let me have any corn at all, but sold it to others without any profit.

That is the way I have been treated. I could not begin to tell you all I have lost through him, and I beg you to have him arrested as soon as he reaches Detroit, and to prosecute him to the full extent of the law to the amount of my debt. I will be greatly obliged to you.

Be assured that I intend to do all possible to pay my obligations, both active and passive. The troubles in the Indian country, and the uncertainty where they will go for shelter, prevent them from hunting, and disturb me also. The persistent menace of an influx of Americans here in the spring induces me to think of going elsewhere, and thus avoid the pillage they threaten to all engaged in the Indian trade. These are only rumors which might, however, become facts, regions at this period. In 1785-86 he was at Miamitown, where George Leith wrote him a letter advising him not to visit Detroit since William Robertson (to whom Gray was indebted) would do everything in his power to make trouble for him. See Indiana Quarterly Magazine of History, V, 142 ff. His name occurs frequently in the manuscript account books of the Miamis Company, preserved in the Burton Hist. Coll.

and I shall try to prevent it in my own case by changing my location. It is my belief that we shall have peace, and free trade, according to the treaties. But wherever I go I shall do myself the honor of telling you, and of arranging so that what I send you shall be certain of delivery.

I hope that you will interest yourself in my affairs, trifling though they be, and especially in that which I have now narrated. For my part, I shall be diligent in serving you and in retaining your confidence.

I remain, Sir, Your very humble servant,

Lorimier⁶⁴

P.S. Allow me to add that the merchandise I gave Joseph Reah to sell was my own, that I paid him a commission, and that I had expressly forbidden him to give credit to the Indians for the said merchandise.

⁶⁴ Louis Lorimier was a notable figure in the West for almost half a century ending with his death in 1812. He was born at Lachine in 1748, and about the year 1769 accompanied his father to the Ohio country, where the two engaged in trade at the portage of the Miami and Maumee rivers. Here (at Pickawillany) had been struck, in 1752, the blow against the English traders and their red supporters which marks the prelude to the Seven Years' War. During the Revolution Lorimier was an active British partisan and his place, known as Lorimier's Station, became noted as a center of British-Indian activity. Lorimier married a Shawnee woman and acquired great influence over her tribe, as well as over the Delaware. In 1778 he and another Frenchman led a Shawnee war-party on a raid into Kentucky, when the exploit was performed of carrying Daniel Boone into captivity. In 1782 George Rogers Clark organized an expedition against the Shawnee which captured and razed Lorimier's storehouse, after which he seems to have established himself on a tributary of the Glaze. As a consequence of difficulties which are in part described in this letter, in the spring of 1787 he fled from his creditors, finding refuge in Spanish Louisiana. It will be seen by a subsequent document (post, 288-90) that Hugh Heward, acting as agent of the Miamis Company, followed him and seized the goods which he had carried to the Illinois country. For this act, Lorimier, in 1787, sued Heward for damages in the court of Cahokia. See Ill. Hist. Colls., II, 298-99.

In Spanish Louisiana Lorimier embarked upon a new career of success and prosperity. He acquired much influence with the Spanish authorities, was made commandant of the Cape Girardeau district, and was instrumental in inducing many of the Shawnee and Delaware to remove from Ohio and Indiana to Spanish territory. Lorimier was twice married. His first wife, a half-blood Shawnee woman, bore the name Charlotte Pemanpieh Bougainville, from which fact the surmise seems permissible that she was a natural relative of Louis de Bougainville, Montcalm's chief of staff. She died March 23, 1808, and Lorimier subsequently married Marie Berthiaume, whose father was a gunsmith for the Shawnee and whose mother was a Shawnee woman. After the death of Lorimier his widow married an American settler, John Logan, who subsequently removed to Illinois and became the father (by another marriage) of General John A. Logan of Civil War fame. An extensive account of Lorimier's career is given by Houck in his History of Missouri and Spanish Régime in Missouri.

JOHN ASKIN PAPERS

I am sending my power of attorney to Mr. George Sharp.⁶⁵ He will communicate with you.

INDEBTEDNESS OF JOHN ASKIN

Mr John Askin

Dear Sir Our last Respects were of the 29 October and by the Express for Niagara which will leave this in a few days we are to answer your favors as well to the House as to either of us individually on business, of the 27 Sept^r, 11th 14th 16th 24th & 26th of October and of the 3^d & 11th November. After what we have so often wrote you on the Subject of our distresses occasioned largely by our heavy, very heavy advances to you, we had not the slightest Idea that we were still to go on increasing your Account; it would seem however that our expectations were not well grounded and we now see it increased above that of last year altho' we have only supplied you this last Season with Goods to half the amount of the preceeding year. For once more we have nevertheless resorted to honor your different drafts or requests of transferring over the Accounts of others who ⁶⁵ George Sharp was a prominent trader of Detroit and the Northwest in the period subsequent to the Revolution. In 1784-85 he traveled as far as Nashville, Tenn., and on his return to Detroit made a report of his observations to Governor Hay. In 1786 he was in the South West Company. About this time he became agent for the Miamis Company and centered his activities on the Maumee-Wabash region. In 1789 he was at Miamitown and when in the autumn of 1790 Harmar's army destroyed the place, he withdrew to the mouth of the Glaize (modern Defiance, Ohio), where he was in 1792. Probably on account of General Wayne's advance, he was located at Detroit two years later, where in 1795 he was serving as justice of the peace. He was a friend of Askin, who desired him to locate near him on the British side, but Sharp seems to have gone abroad in search of more attractive surroundings. On Jan. 1, 1799, he writes from Montreal that since leaving Detroit he has visited most of both provinces (Upper and Lower Canada) but has found no situation superior to Detroit, and few equal to it. About this time the new North West Company was being formed and letters of Sharp and Alexander Henry to Askin disclose that Sharp was to act as its principal representative at Grand Portage, for which place he was to depart in the spring of 1799. Whether he did so or not has not been learned. He was at Montreal again the following winter, where he died, Jan. 17, 1800, after a brief illness. In reporting the event to Solomon Sibley, Jonathan Schieffelin writes: "I need not expatiate on his merits. They were too well known to need any encomiums. Suffice that all who knew his virtues lament his loss!" Information compiled from mss. in Burton Hist. Coll., passim. Some of Sharp's letters are printed in the Indiana Quarterly Magazine of History, V, 137 ff. See, also, Mich. Pio. Colls. XIX, 280, 291, and Journal of Henry Hay.

owed us to yours, and as we fully relied on this trial of our ability & friendship being the last of the kind, so we hope your uneasiness will be removed and that having now nearly [merely?] but one Creditor to satisfy, your exertions and punctuality will be such as to never make us repent the unbounded confidence we have placed in you. Inclosed you will receive your Account Current till this date, also that of the late firm,⁶⁶ balance of the former £15059.5.10 $\frac{3}{4}$ and of the later £9261.2.2 $\frac{1}{4}$ both Currency & exclusive of Interest which as usual will be brought into Account on the 10th of April, to them we shall refer you for all outlays or payments since 10 of April last, which should you find right we wish you to confirm or if any Errors or omissions that you will be good enough to note them that they may be rectified and the Account approved. The magnitude of the two Balances is such as we presume will plead our cause with you fully as well as if we were to write Pages on the Subject, but there is a circumstance attending that of your own, which may not perhaps strike you and we shall therefore mention. It is that the whole of the Goods & Liquors supplied you since 1784 inclusive do not come to so much as the Balance of the Account, consequently we have as yet received no payment whatever, except to replace your drafts—you will allow this to be a singular hardship on us, especialy when it is considered that you have paid all others of whom you have bought anything during that period (H & G excepted) and perhaps to a greater amount than all our supplies—we are willing to believe that in future things will go on very differently and that at last our Turn has come to be considered as not only being in want but fully entitled to your utmost exertions in respect to our demand. It is in this hope & confidence that we have undertaken supplying your part of Goods for next year and that we mean in conformity to your desire to send you a Bateau Load of Rum early in the Spring.

We observe by your Letter of the 11 Nov^r that your ⁶⁶ Presumably this alludes to the partnership between Askin and the firm of Hamilton and Cartwright, concerning which see ante, 188-92.

Share in the Miamis Company⁶⁷ was near to £10,000 yk—we most heartily wish you may have returns for it—this perhaps cannot be expected the year ensuing, but we have strong hopes that with your other affairs the least we shall receive of nett payment will be £15000 yk. In looking over the State of them brought down by our I.T. [Isaac Todd] we observe a Sum of £3000 supposed with W.R. [William Robertson]. As this is an object of considerable consequence and as it is probable that next year we may fall into his debt we should be happy that matters could be so settled as to transfer so much from your to his Account in our Books not only as it would Accomodate all Parties, but because we think it highly necessary in justice to yourself to your Family and Connections that your Concerns with him should be well & clearly understood—we have no reason to suppose there will be any difficulty in settling them, but be assured, we know from experience that a time of success is the best in the world to bring to certainty any matters which are in suspense and that the longer they are put off the more unwilling to speak of them, till, finally circumstances are forgot & disputes arise to the disquiet of all & probably the loss of Friendship & Confidence as well as property. In offering you this advice you cannot suppose us as other [than] disinterested, you know we have too much at Stake, we feel that we do not think it improper to urge the matter and we trust that you may lose no time in getting the business fixed so as to admitt of no doubts or difficulties.

Another matter we must take the liberty of recommending to your most serious consideration & that is the large ⁶⁷ The Miamis Company, organized in 1786, was composed of six leading Detroit merchants or firms: John Askin, Leith and Shepherd, James Abbott, Angus McIntosh, Meldrum and Park, and Sharp and Wallace. Its field of operations was the Maumee and Wabash river regions. Askin kept the accounts and made up the outfits for the individual traders at the different settlements. These included Joseph Guilbaut at Sandusky, Adhémar St. Martin at Miamitown, and Paul Gamelin at Vincennes; subagents who fitted out minor equipments for small traders were Francis Vigo, Gabriel Hunot, and Louis Lorimier. The ventures of the company proved unprofitable, and its operations continued for only a few years. There remained an inheritance of conflicting claims and legal proceedings which lasted many years and which fill a considerable part of the Askin Papers. Many of the records of the Miamis Company are preserved in the Burton Hist. Coll.

Sum of £8000 yk real property. It is much more than we have—it is more than any man in business should keep from the circulation of his Trade and in the part of the Country where yours is placed the tenure of it is but uncertain—these Causes should induce you to part with at least one-half of it as soon as possible, not only as a relief to yourself & your Friends, but as a means of affording you the more time to attend to your mercantile pursuits.

We come now to speak of M^r Barthe, whose affairs are in a miserable situation indeed—we mentioned in a former Letter that we had got from him this year no other returns whatever than the Furrs made at the Sault & his part of the general Store which it would seem satisfies you that we were not wrong in declining to answer for him to you the sum of £1100 yk which you wanted us to assume—had he sent us as you expected a Sum in Bills we should not have hesitated but the Case was otherwise & if he got paid of any Provisions you trusted him he employed the money to some other purpose. He indeed sent us a State of his affairs but it is by no means a clear one, all that we can gather from it is that he has put into the general Store about 42,000 [livres] which is entirly of Goods he has had from us which surely (exclusive of your recommendations) entitles us to their produce, and when we do get it, he will still remain largely our Debtor, yet we do not mean to drive him to despair, it is necessary to make a small Outfitt this year for the general Concern and we will not allow him to incur a penalty or be turned out of it with disgrace—we have even paid for him here more than 2000^l which he fell indebted as one of the general Concern. We consider him as unfortunate in having embarked in a business he was unequal to manage & having met also several untoward accidents in the prosecution of it. He may nevertheless do well in a smaller line & as our I.T. may probably see him at Mich-ncke next Season we shall be glad to learn from him that he merits further support.

In writing to Mess^{rs} Hamilton & Cartwright it is our fixed intention to desire that one of them shall go to Detroit next Summer for the purpose of settling the late Concerns which were under their & your management and for that purpose we shall send them copy of J. A & C^{os} a/C—we would for the same end forward you copy of their late firms, but from the State of their affairs we consider the balance as assumed by their present concern, it appearing that they have received nearly if not altogether as much as to satisfy that demand—what we wish for is that each of the Parties should take upon them a proper Part of J. A & C^{os} Balance & that some Person should be employed to collect the debts; indeed we heard from our M^r Todd on his return that he had engaged M^r Heward⁶⁸ for that purpose, but we are since told that you had sent him to Saguinaw; if that is the Case you must no doubt have had strong reasons to alter the object of his business, which in our opinion was of much consequence.

As you do not in any of your Letters make mention of Government buying Flour from the Settlement we are somewhat surprised at it, for General Hope told our M^r Todd that he had given orders to buy at your post at four dollars p C^{wt}; either his Letters must have miscarried or the Commandant must have reasons we do not comprehend for withholding the information, for the order must have arrived in October; we are employing means to [ms. torn] a Sale to the Inhabitants of all their Surplus Flour which we have no doubt will prove succesful and of course enable them to pay part of the heavy debts they are owing.

⁶⁸ Hugh Heward was engaged in the fur trade in the Detroit and Wabash regions as early as 1782. In 1786, he was given power of attorney to represent the Miamis Company in French Illinois, and in 1787 he sojourned for a time at Cahokia. In the same year, an account among the Askin Papers shows, Francis Vigo of Vincennes was indebted to him in the sum of £900. In 1790 Heward made a journey from Detroit to the Illinois, keeping a journal of the trip, which is printed post, 337-60. At this time he was serving as clerk and bookkeeper for William and David Robertson, in which employment he continued until 1796. In the autumn of 1800 he left Detroit for York, where he was employed by the Governor in the capacity of clerk or secretary. There he died in June, 1803. His relations with Askin were intimate over a long period of time, and upon his death Askin was named as one of the executors of his estate; he did not serve, however, in this capacity. Heward was a man of considerable education, and it is a matter for regret that more of the journals of his wilderness life, which there is reason to suppose he kept, have not come down to us. Information adapted from manuscripts in the Burton Hist. Coll. and Ill. Hist. Colls., II, 283, 509-11.

We cannot yet say whither Government will admitt of private Vessells but we may venture to assure you that the Transport will be put on a better footing than at present. Committees of the Council have been appointed by Lord Dorchester⁶⁹ to enquire into the Laws, Commerce, Police & Population of the Country & they are endeavouring to obtain information on these subjects so as to form a report for his Lordships perusal, you will readily judge that with respect to the upper Country Trade we shall not fail to lay every thing before them in the clearest & fullest manner.

We sincerely hope that the disturbance raised in the Indian Country by the Americans may be at an end, but we fear there will for many years to come be frequent interruptions to the quiet of the Indians which must constantly affect the Trade of your place, and we confess to you that with respect to the Wabash Trade we do not entertain favorable Sentiments were Peace even assured, the easy communication with new orleans & the proximity to the Americans are strong temptations to people of loose Principles when in debt to defraud their Creditors, and if prudence would permitt that Trade being given up, at least as to giving Credit, perhaps the general Returns would not be much inferior to what they now are, or if they were, better prices might be obtained for Peltries. The Subject merits consideration and from your knowledge & Interest therein we leave you to determine the result.

The bad Success of the Mich-ncke Company⁷⁰ this last year & the large quantities of Goods which will remain has brought the Interested to a determination of sending up few or any Dry Goods, but as Canoes must be sent up to bring down the Furr's there will be a great deal of Rum & Flour [to] be sent up in them—it is not therefore to be expected that the demand on your place from that Post will be so much as usual, a circumstance that may be of use for you to know early that you may act accordingly.

⁷⁰ The Michilimackinac Company seems to have been organized about the same time as the North West Company, and to have numbered among its partners many of the members of the latter firm. Unlike the North West Company, however, it operated almost wholly within territory belonging either then or subsequently to the United States, in the regions of the Great Lakes, the Mississippi, and the upper Missouri. It continued in existence until 1811, when John Jacob Astor, founder of the American Fur Company, bought its interests and organized in its stead the South West Company. The latter, in turn, was reorganized in 1816 as the American Fur Company.

We inclose you a note of M^r Vigos Furr's as accurate as could be kept with the prices we think them worth, had they been of equal quality with your other Furr's we should perhaps have advised your waiting for the Sales from England, but as we are of opinion that the average prices there would be more than their worth, we think you had better settle with him at those we have fixed.

As nothing of moment occurs to us further to mention at present we shall finish this long Letter with requesting our best Respects to M^{rs} Askin & your Family in which M^{rs} M^cGill desires us to join us; and with assurances of being in truth

FROM JOHN BURNET TO JOHN ASKIN

Plymouth 6th March 87

My Dear Sir It seems to me a long while since I had any communication, with my friends at Detroit. I hope they will do me more justice than to suppose this proceeds on my side from any want of regard to those with whom I passed so many happy days—and my pride will not let me suppose I am forgotten by the friends I so much esteem—even if I had any thing worth your paying postage for it was not the Season to get a letter to Detroit.

I have not heard from you since the letter wherein you express yourself so kindly with respect to the Ballance between us—it has cost me many a painful thought that my circumstances and situation is so changed as to be hard run for such a small sum—yet small as it is I am grieved it is still unpaid—but I have for some time felt myself much relieved by recollecting that M^r Laughton never accounted to me or you for all the time Paddy Edgar was employed as a Sawyer in the Yard.

The books must alwise be forth coming. I therefore authorize you to demand the same from his first employment which was in the month of December & to give receipt to M^r Laughton for the wages he pays you, which will over Ballance my account with you, and which he cannot withhold—this relieves my mind on that score.

I am so far removed from all intelligence that I know not what passes in your part of the World. I hope the return of the Spring Vessels will let us know that you & your worthy Rib & Children are well, & that you all passed your Winter happily. We have had you all Burnt, swallowed by Earthquake, Attacked & taken by the Americans, &c &c but I have no fears, doubts or difficulties in believing it all false and that you are all alive and well as my most sanguine wishes could make you.

³ Thomas Duggan was long an officer of the British Indian Department in the Northwest—during his later years in the capacity of Indian storekeeper at St. Joseph Island, where he died, December 17, 1803. Prior to this time there had been much complaint over the conduct of his office, and by him of ill health and of hard treatment by the government. In a letter of May, 1801, he stated that he had been "at least thirty years in Government Service" and the lowest employment he had had was that of assistant to the barrack-master at Quebec in 1766. and in addition to much private work he drew a plan of Detroit in 1796, and a decade later was employed to survey and lay out the town after the fire of 1805. In this connection he subsequently complained that his original plan was mangled by Judge Woodward who "obliged subsequent Surveyors to perform his whimsical schemes notwithstanding remonstrances. The Plan in its original form drew the attention of scientific persons, and from its novelty it is to be regretted it was not continued." Smith was long engaged in merchandising and one of his ms. account books is preserved in the Burton Hist. Coll. He was a man of considerable education, familiar with both French and English, and in the summer of 1788 was appointed by Lord Dorchester, clerk of the Court of Common Pleas, then newly instituted at Detroit. He was also, at this time, deputy surveyor and notary. He was intensely loyal to Great Britain, and in 1796 elected to remain a British subject and removed to Petite Côte on the south bank of Detroit River a short distance below Sandwich. Here he died, March 3, 1833, aged seventy-nine years. He married Angélique Charlotte Crête, daughter of Jean Baptiste Crête and Mary Joseph Aymond, who came from Lower Canada to Detroit in 1772 and located on a farm at the Grand Marais in Grosse Pointe. Many of their descendants are numbered among the present-day residents of Detroit. Information adapted from Denissen, op. cit.; *Mich. Pio. Translation

In the year one thousand seven hundred eighty-seven, on the fourth day of May, at nine o'clock in the morning, in response to the request of Hugh Heward,⁵ as given on the next page, solicited and commissioned with power to seize the effects of Louis Lorimier, and also considering our decree of the same day, we, Don Antonio de Oro,⁶ captain of the regular Louisiana militia, civil and military commandant

⁶ This document establishes for Antonio de Oro an importance unsuspected hitherto by historians of Spanish Louisiana. The commandant of Ste. Genevieve from 1779 to 1784 was Don Sylvio Francisco de Cartabona, a lieutenant in the Spanish army, whose full name was Don Sylvio Francisco de Cartabona de Oro. The name "de Oro" puzzled Houck (op. cit., I, 346-47), who states that in 1772 there was in St. Louis a merchant and also officer of the garrison, named Antonio X. Joseph de Oro, who may have been related to Don Sylvio Francisco. He adds that Antonio "lived in St. Louis 13 years, rose to the rank of Captain and died in Ste. Genevieve in August, 1787."

A piquant and interesting characterization of the commandant of Ste. Genevieve, written by Father Pierre Gibault, June 6, 1786, is printed in The Kaskaskia Records, 540-41. Prof. Alvord, the editor, was much perplexed over the identity of the commandant whom Gibault thus describes. The present document renders it highly probable that he was none other than Don Antonio de Oro.

According to Frederic L. Billon, Annals of St. Louis . . . under the French and Spanish Dominations (St. Louis, 1886), 246-47, de Oro was ordered from St. Louis to Ste.

of the post of Ste. Genevieve of the Illinois, accompanied by Pedro Apparicio and François Leclerc,⁷ as witnesses and assistants, in the absence of a notary, have therefore repaired to the dwelling of François Vallé,⁸ sub-lieutenant of militia at the said post, where were disposed the merchandise and effects of the said Louis Lorimier, and having so repaired, we proceeded to take an inventory and exact description of the different goods and effects belonging to the said Louis Lorimier, brought to the post in two wagons in the charge of Louis Largeau, and another wagon in charge of Pierre Jaffray, all of which goods and effects have been represented to us under oath by the said Louis Largeau as given into our hands with nothing omitted or reserved. These [goods and effects] have been appraised and estimated by François Vallé, Jean Bte. Pratte,⁹ Louis Delorier and John Dodge,¹⁰ appraisers named by our decree, who promised on Genevieve in 1774, and continued there until his death in August, 1787. Billon prints the inventory of his effects, taken subsequent to his death, and signed, among others, by Dorothy de Oro and François Leclerc.

7 According to Houck, op. cit., I, 350, François Leclerc, in 1776, married Mary Louise, daughter of Don Francisco Vallé. The father was a descendant of Pierre La Vallée who migrated from near Rouen, Normandy, to Beauport, Canada, in 1645. His grandson, Francisco Vallé, migrated from Canada to Kaskaskia, and from the latter place (subsequent to Clark's invasion of the Illinois) to Ste. Genevieve, where he died in 1783. The Vallé family was one of the foremost in the Illinois country. A son of the founder, Don Francisco Jr., was commandant of Ste. Genevieve from 1796 until his death in 1804, and was succeeded by his brother, Jean Baptiste Vallé, the latter receiving his appointment from Governor William Henry Harrison of Indiana Territory. See Houck, op. cit., I, 349-50. Antonio de Oro died in August, 1787. Leclerc was one of the witnesses who signed the inventory of his effects. See Billon, op. cit., 247.

8 The member of the Vallé family here mentioned was probably Francisco Vallé Jr., son of the founder of the family in the Illinois. He was commandant of Ste. Genevieve from 1796 until his death in 1804. One of his daughters married Robert T. Brown, a member of the Missouri constitutional convention of 1820; another married Dr. Walter Fenwick, who was killed in a duel by T. T. Crittenden; another, Joseph Pratte; and the fourth, Captain Wilkinson.

9 Jean Baptiste Pratte was living in the old village of Ste. Genevieve in 1772, and in 1799 he claimed to have lived in the country for fifty years. The family came to Ste. Genevieve from Fort Chartres. Pratte was a man of wealth and of influence, at least locally. In 1808 he was one of the trustees of Ste. Genevieve Academy, of which Mann Butler, subsequently notable as the historian of Kentucky, was teacher. Prior to 1803 he owned forty-five slaves and twelve houses and outbuildings. In 1797 he claimed a large grant of land on the Saline River, where he cleared a portion of the tract, erected buildings, and had a large herd of stock. See Houck, op. cit., I, 340, 352-54; III, 67.

10 John Dodge was born in Connecticut, July 12, 1751. Before his nineteenth year he found his way to the Ohio country, and at or prior to the opening of the Revolution, to Detroit. Here he purchased a house, engaged in trade, and endured long imprisonment at the hands of Governor Hamilton, supposedly by reason of his sympathy for the colonial cause. In 1778 he was sent down to Quebec, whence he succeeded in escaping to the American side. In 1779 was published at Philadelphia a narrative of his captivity at Detroit and elsewhere which attracted wide attention, and the charges made in it against Governor Hamilton were the basis for the harsh treatment of the latter by the Virginia authorities while he underwent imprisonment at Williamsburg. Dodge subsequently made his way to the Illinois country, where the remoteness from civilization and the unsettled conditions following the war afforded a fertile field for the exercise of his peculiar talents. After a stormy career here, he sought refuge on the Spanish side of the river in 1787; he died in the vicinity of Ste. Genevieve prior to the year 1800. His captivity narrative was reprinted at Cedar Rapids in 1909, under the editorship of C. M. Burton. See, also, C. W. Alvord, The Illinois Country, 1673-1818 (Springfield, 1920), passim.

General Orders for the Militia of Detroit District

His Excellency, Lord Dorchester, has thought proper to issue directions that the militia of this district be formed into a regiment conforming in every respect to the military regulations of this Province; said regiment to consist of a lieutenant colonel, a major, and each company to have a captain, two lieutenants, and an ensign. Moreover since it is the pleasure of His Excellency to appoint Duperon Baby, Esq.,¹¹ the lieutenant colonel in command, and Captain McGregor,¹² the major of this regiment, it is further ¹¹ The founder of the Baby family in America was Jacques Baby, who was born in the diocese of Agens, in 1633. He enlisted in the army, joining the famous regiment of Carignan, which was sent by Louis XIV to Canada to defend that province against the Iroquois. In 1670 he married Jane Dandonneau, who was born at Three Rivers, July 29, 1655. They had twelve children born in the years 1671-88; the last was Raymond, born posthumously, Dec. 16, 1688, and from him all the later Baby generations trace their descent.

Jacques Baby had engaged in the Indian trade, and Raymond followed the same career. He was in Detroit as early as 1716, when he witnessed the baptism of two savages. He married at Montreal, June 9, 1721, Teresa Lecompte dit Dupré, and to them eleven children were born. Jacques Baby dit Duperon, our present subject, was born Jan. 4, 1731. He grew up habituated to the forest, and in the Seven Years' War, together with three of his brothers, he distinguished himself as a leader of Indians in forays along the upper Ohio frontier. On one or more occasions during the course of the war he was sent to Detroit, and he is supposed to have been the one who acted as spokesman for the French inhabitants in negotiating the surrender in 1760. However this may be, it is certain that he settled here at the close of the war, and until his death in the summer of 1789 he was one of the most influential of the French residents of Detroit. On Nov. 23, 1760, he married Susanne Réaume, daughter of Pierre Réaume and Susanne Hubert dit La Croix. In 1762 they were living in Faubourg Ste. Rosalie (modern Sandwich), although in later years they seem to have lived in the town of Detroit. They had twenty-two children, about half of whom died in childhood. Of those who grew to maturity, one daughter married Captain William Caldwell; another married Captain Thomas Allison of the regular army; and another married Lieutenant Allan Bellingham. One son studied medicine at the University of Edinburgh and three became officers in the British army, one of whom attained the rank of major general. Another son, Jacques, is noted below. See Casgrain, op. cit., and mss. in Burton Hist. Coll.

¹² Gregor McGregor was born in 1738 and as early as 1774 was engaged in trade at Detroit. During the Revolution he was in the service of the Indian Department with the rank of captain, this connection being terminated by order of General ordered that all the officers and other militiamen shall recognize and obey them as such.

The town company being too large, it is to be divided into two companies, Mr. John Askin to be the captain of one; Messrs. Jacques Baby¹³ and George Meldrum¹⁴ the lieutenants, and Messrs. John Martin Sr., and Angus Mackintosh,¹⁵ the ensigns, of the two companies.

Haldimand, June 21, 1784. In July, 1788, he was appointed by Lord Dorchester sheriff for the District of Hesse, and thus became the first to hold this office at Detroit. About the same time he was appointed Superintendent of Inland Navigation, and the present document shows that he was serving as major of militia at Detroit, of which he seems to have been, in 1791, in chief command. On the American occupation of Detroit McGregor removed to the south side of the river and established his home at Petite Côte. Here he died, Nov. 24, 1810.

He married at Detroit, Aug. 12, 1776, Regina Susanne Robert, daughter of Anthony Robert and Mary Louisa Becquemont. Of their nine children, James, the eldest, married Margaret Chabert. Ann became the second wife of Dr. Robert Richardson, following the death of Madelaine Askin, his first wife. Susanne married William Duff. McGregor had a farm at Grosse Pointe, which he continued to own and to operate by tenants as late as the close of 1806. Information adapted from Denissen, op. cit., and mss. in Burton Hist. Coll., passim.

¹⁴ George Meldrum, born about 1737, engaged in trade at Detroit as early as 1768. In 1772 he purchased a lot from George Knaggs and in 1774 was compelled to apologize to Justice Dejean for some offense committed against the dignity of the latter. For many years thereafter he was prominent in trade and as a citizen at Detroit. In 1788 Lord Dorchester appointed him one of the commissioners of the then newly created District of Hesse. In 1796 he signified his intention of remaining a British subject, but he did not do so, for he continued to live in Detroit until his death, April 9, 1817. For many years he was a member of the firm of Meldrum and Park. He married Mary Catherine Angélique Chapoton about the year 1782. She was buried in Ste. Anne's churchyard, March 4, 1815. They had several sons and daughters. George Meldrum was the owner of considerable real estate in Detroit, one piece being the tract known as the Meldrum farm, or Private Claim 18. See Proc. of Land Board of Detroit, 155-57.

Intosh's coming to Canada and Detroit in early manhood. In 1788 he married Mary Archange Baudry dit Desbutes dit St. Martin, daughter of Jacques Baudry dit Desbutes dit St. Martin and Mary Ann Navarre. On the American occupation of Detroit McIntosh removed to the south side of the river, where he built a mansion called Moy House, which was still standing a few years since. He prospered in trade, and it has frequently been stated that he was local factor of the Hudson's Bay Company, but his connection was, in fact, with the North West Company. His wife died at Moy House, July 13, 1827, and is buried in Assumption churchyard at Sandwich. In 1831 McIntosh returned to Scotland to enter into belated inheritance of Moy Hall, the ancestral home, taking with him his sons. There he died, Jan. 25, 1833. His eldest child, Ann, born at Detroit in 1789, married here in 1811 Henry Jackson Hunt, who subsequently became the second mayor of Detroit. See Denissen, op. cit., and sketch in Burton Hist. Coll. Leaflet, III, No. 3, 38-39.

Agreement entered into at Detroit, September 13, 1787, between the Miamis Company and Gabriel Hunot, trader.

In consideration of what follows, Mr. Gabriel Hunot has engaged with the said company to trade with the Indians from the date of these presents until July 1, 1788; to work exclusively in the interests of the company at the River Huron and its dependencies; to be responsible for the care of all merchandise, peltries, and provisions both in transport and at the trading places, which will be shipped to him and will be in his charge as the property of the said company; to be zealous for their interest, to avoid all that would tend to their loss, and to warn them of impending losses should he have knowledge of such; briefly, this contract binds him to do his duty as a good trader, to conform to the orders of the company or its representative in all things lawful and honest, to engage in no private enterprise and not to absent himself from the service of the company during the time specified in this agreement, under penalty of forfeit of salary and all the additional favors herein mentioned; all this for and in consideration of the sum of seven hundred and fifty livres, old Quebec currency, together with his board and lodging as furnished in that locality; also, as the said Gabriel Hunot owes a certain amount on his former equipment, in order to give him the means of paying this sum, the company stipulates further, that in case the peltry returns of the said Gabriel Hunot, with the good merchandise only that will be left unsold, if these on July 1, 1788, amount to a greater sum than the merchandise and other things that were advanced to him for trading, together with any money given to him, the wages of his men, and briefly, all other expenses which affect the company through his action, then the profit or surplus will be applied on his old debt to the company for former equipment, and the said Gabriel Hunot will himself know whether he is making anything or not by the itemized accounts of all things sent to him by the company for purposes of trade in their behalf, with the expenses, in this way conditions will be the same as if the company had equipped him.

INSTRUCTIONS for Gabriel Hunot, trader for the Miamis Company at the River Huron, September 13, 1787. That is to say:

Mr. Hunot having now all that the company considers necessary for trade, will set out as soon as possible and on the way will have a care that the merchandise is not only protected from rain and other damage, but he will see that it is unloaded at night in any place he thinks may involve risk, or if not unloaded he should have the men sleep in the boat to avoid loss by theft or from being blown away by the wind.

Arrived at the place of trade, it will be necessary to be plain to the Indians that goods are scarce and that what he has brought is all that will be sent this year to that place. This will prevent their asking for credit, and in any case he will grant the least possible and not to exceed the value of one hundred beavers, and that only for ammunition, axes, traps, and such like, so to speak, and for these credits he must take something as security.

Your prices for trade are good. The value of 26 shillings for a cover which cost you 11 is a nice profit, and the same with other articles. You cannot fail to do well. Bad peltries we have no occasion to speak to you about as you never brought in any but good, and you are right in this for we will not receive bad skins at all at any price.

You will profit by any opportunity to write to us, telling us the quantity of peltries you have on hand and your expectations respecting trade. Try not to weaken your assortment in any particular as we cannot furnish you nor anyone with the articles that may be lacking in an assortment of goods. Twice a year is all that we can do.

Be very careful of fire, for you know what great losses have resulted from a slight negligence, not that we fear for you personally but the men are often careless when the master's eye is not over them.

Adhémar, wishing to make payments to his creditors in a way that will not cause jealousy of feeling among any of them, and with the desire of hearing their sentiments in this respect, they have assembled for that purpose and mutually agreed that Mr. Adémar may assign his house in the fort at Detroit to Mr. William Macomb, and to Mr Fraser,¹⁶ attorney for Mr. Samuel Judah;¹⁷ that the books and ¹⁶ James Fraser was in Detroit in 1787 and for many years thereafter. He was engaged in trade and seems also to have essayed at times the rôle of attorney. Entries in the Prerogative Court Records of the District of Hesse indicate that he was a man of considerable local prominence. His integrity was several times called in question, whether justly or no we have no means of determining. A case in point concerns the tangled affairs of Thomas Williams and Company (the "company" being John Casety). After the decease of the two principals in the company, Alexander Henry of Montreal, acting on behalf of the principal creditors, secured his own appointment as administrator of the property, and appointed Fraser his attorney to represent him on the ground. Fraser subsequently procured from Judge Powell the appointment of curator of the estate of John Casety with intent, according to Henry, to defraud the other creditors.

In 1796 Fraser formally signified his intention of remaining a British subject, but it would seem from documents in the Burton Hist. Coll. that he continued to reside at Detroit. Some years later his wife became deranged, and having attempted to burn the house of one of the McIntoshes was compelled to leave Detroit. Fraser divorced her and was required, in this connection, to make periodical payments to James Henry on her behalf, which he did over a considerable period of years. Information adapted from mss. in Burton Hist. Coll.

¹⁷ Samuel Judah came from London to Canada in 1760 with the English army. He settled at Three Rivers and subsequently at Montreal. He was a man of extensive means and was largely interested in the fur trade. Prior to the Revolution he removed to New York City. He favored the colonists in the Revolution and furnished money for the cause which was never repaid, in consequence of which he was ruined financially. He died in 1789. On Aug. 26 of this year Judge Powell at Detroit appointed James Fraser curator of Judah's property. See Prerogative Court Records, District of Hesse, 1789-91, photostat copy in Burton Hist. Coll. Since Judah lived and died in New York it may be presumed that this appointment had application only to his property and business affairs in the upper country. A grandson of Judah, also named Samuel, located at Vincennes in 1819 and died there in 1869. He was a graduate of Rutgers College and a lawyer by profession. He was one of the leading lawyers of Indiana in his time, and also took an active part in state politics, being chairman of the first Whig convention of the state, and speaker of the House of Representatives. He had three sons, one of whom, Noble B. Judah, was long a prominent attorney of Chicago. The other brothers, John M. Judah and Samuel B. Judah, reside respectively at Indianapolis and Vincennes. From information supplied by the latter (letter of June 8, 1925) the present note has been chiefly compiled.

¹⁸ Alexander McKee was a native of Pennsylvania who engaged in the Indian trade and in 1772 was appointed deputy agent of Indian Affairs at Fort Pitt. When the Revolution came on McKee sympathized with the British government. In 1777 he was imprisoned by General Hand. Being released on parole, he fled to Detroit in the spring of 1778, in company with Simon Girty and Matthew Elliot. In the same year he was appointed captain in the British Indian Department, and before long was given the rank of deputy agent, and subsequently became superintendent of Indian Affairs at Detroit. In 1789 he was made a member of the Land Board of the District of Hesse. McKee was an inveterate foe of the Americans and had much to do with inciting the Indians to war against them. The Battle of Fallen Timbers in August, 1794, was fought in the immediate vicinity of his trading establishment on the Maumee, and at its conclusion Wayne proceeded to raze his property. The day before the battle McKee, intending to participate in it, made his will. A copy of this will is now in the Burton Hist. Coll. McKee removed to River Thames upon the American occupation of Detroit, and died there of lockjaw on January 13, 1799. 19 James Abbott was one of the early English merchants of Detroit. In 1778 Governor Hamilton confiscated his goods for a violation of orders with respect to the conduct of the Indian trade. Two years later Abbott was the recipient of extensive grants of land fronting the Detroit River and Lake St. Clair made by the Potawatomi and Chippewa tribes. He died prior to July 25, 1800, leaving to his widow and offspring much property. Abbott was the father of six children, born between the years 1770 and 1777. Three of them were sons—Robert, James, and Samuel—and all were prominent men in their generation. The marriage connections established by all six children served further to enhance the family influence. Mary Abbott married William Hands, who became sheriff and registrar of Essex, Kent, and Lambton; Frances and Elizabeth married, respectively, François and James Baby of Detroit and (subsequently) Sandwich; Robert Abbott married Elizabeth, daughter of Peter Audrain; James married Sarah Whistler, daughter of Captain John Whistler and sister of Colonel William Whistler of the U. S. army; Samuel married a Miss St. Croix of St. Louis and spent most of his life at Mackinac. See Mich. Pio. Colls., passim, and genealogical notes on the Abbott family compiled by C. M. Burton, ms. in Burton Hist. Coll.

20 William Harffy was a frequent correspondent of John Askin and many of his letters are preserved among the Askin Papers. He was sent to Detroit from Lower Canada as hospital mate in the spring of 1781. In 1786 he succeeded Dr. George Anthon as surgeon of the garrison. He was subsequently garrison surgeon at Amherstburg, where he died shortly prior to June 2, 1802. He was a whimsical, lovable soul, impractical in temperament and delightful in conversation. See Mich. Pio. Colls., XIX, 620, XX, 686, and Askin Papers in Burton Hist. Coll., passim.

21 John Dodemead was one of the earliest English residents of Detroit, having come here about the time the British took possession of the place. On December 1, 1780, he married Jane Murray and to them ten children were born. At the time of the fire in 1805, Dodemead was one of the most prosperous citizens of Detroit, but he sustained heavy losses in the fire, from which he never recovered. He shortly afterward built a hotel at the intersection of modern Shelby Street and Jefferson Avenue, which he conducted until his death in 1812, and which his wife continued to run thereafter. If family tradition be authentic, the flag of truce run up by General Hull in 1812, was a tablecloth snatched from Mrs. Dodemead's establishment. Dodemead held various public offices in the earlier years of the American régime. One of his daughters married Charles Jouett, early Indian agent at Chicago; another married Captain Samuel Dyson of the U. S. army, who at one time commanded the garrison at Detroit; the youngest daughter became the wife of Jacob Varnum, U. S. factor at Sandusky and (subsequently) Chicago. The five sons of Dodemead all died without issue. Information adapted from Proc. of the Land Board of Detroit, 187-89, and mss. in Burton Hist. Coll.

22 Thomas McCrae was a tailor by trade. His name appears on the census roll of Detroit in 1779 and again in 1782. Certain accounts of his published in Vol. VIII of the Mich. Pio. Colls., indicate that he continued to live here for a number of years. In 1791 he is listed among the loyalists at Detroit making application for a grant of land. Apparently he removed to the Canadian shore, for in 1813 his name appears as one of the signers of a memorial to Sir George Prevost urging reasons for the retention of a large garrison of regular troops at Amherstburg. See Mich. Pio. Colls., XV, 252 and XXIV, 178.

23 William Scott is listed in the Detroit census of 1782 as a married man with a considerable domestic establishment. In 1791 his name occurs in the list of loyalists at Detroit applying for grants of land, with the description of "Sergeant in Detroit Volunteers," and the further characterization of "now a tavern keeper in Detroit." Along with other discharged loyalists he was granted a lot of land at New Settlement on Lake Erie by the Land Board of the District of Hesse. See Mich. Pio. Colls., passim and Essex Hist. Soc., Papers and Addresses, III, 71.

JOHN ASKIN PAPERS

24 One James Donaldson, a sergeant in the Eighth Regiment, was stationed at Mackinac in the years 1780-82. Mich. Pio. Colls., X, 459, 637 and XXIV, 177. In 1795 Askin sold his negro slave, Pompey, to "James Donaldson" of Detroit, and "James Donaldson" was one of those Detroiters who, on the advent of the Americans, announced their intention to remain British subjects. Ibid., I, 417 and VIII, 411. Although positive evidence is wanting, we surmise that the individual mentioned in these several documents was identical with the signer of the church subscription here noted. When Mary Moore and Martha Evans, prisoners among the Indians, were brought into Detroit and sold by their captors in 1788, the latter found a refuge and kind treatment in the family of James Donaldson. See Burton Hist. Coll. Leaflet, Vol. V, 72. A claim preferred by Donaldson against the estate of John Askwith in 1795 indicates that at that date he was an innkeeper. He died prior to Sept. 1, 1802, when his estate was in process of administration. Numerous descendants still live in Detroit.

25 Daniel McKillip was a sergeant in Butler's Rangers during the Revolution. At or prior to its close he came to Detroit where he engaged in business, being for a time in partnership with George Jacob. Another loyalist who found refuge at Detroit during the Revolution was John Little of western Pennsylvania. As soon as peace was declared he returned to Pittsburgh for his family, bringing them to Detroit about the year 1784. Little had a daughter, Eleanor, who had been taken captive by the Seneca Indians during one of their raids and had spent several years of her childhood among them. Some years after coming to Detroit, she became the wife of McKillip, who at some time prior to 1791 located at New Settlement. Here he was living in 1794 when, in response to the call of the British authorities, he led a company of Essex County militia to the Maumee to assist the British regular force from Detroit in opposing the advance of General Wayne. Although the British officially held aloof from the contest between Wayne and the Indians, many of the militia, led by Captain Caldwell, fought in the Indian ranks in the Battle of Fallen Timbers and several of them, McKillip among the number, were slain by the victorious Americans. Mrs. McKillip subsequently married John Kinzie for whom see post, 306. Besides his widow, McKillip left an infant daughter, Margaret, who in 1810 married Lieut. Linai T. Helm of the U. S. army. In 1829 she divorced him and subsequently married Dr. Lucius Abbott of Detroit. See Mich. Pio. Colls., passim; M. M. Quaife, Chicago and the Old Northwest, 1673-1835, passim; C. M. Burton, Little genealogy, ms. in Burton Hist. Coll.; Life and Letters of Richard Cartwright (Toronto, 1876), 63; Correspondence of Lieut. John Graves Simcoe . . . (Toronto, 1923-26), II, 227, 414. (This will be cited henceforth as Simcoe Papers.)

26 Martin Theophilus Myers later removed to Malden, where he was living as late as 1800, at which time his wife was acting as a servant to Doctor Harffy. See Askin Papers (mss.), passim.

27 Alexander Harrow was born at Newburgh, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, in 1755. The opening of the Revolution found him in Canada where, being familiar with shipping from youth, he entered the naval department and served as lieutenant of a company of seamen in the defense of Quebec during the winter of 1775-76. In the spring of 1777 he came to the upper lakes as lieutenant in the naval service, returning to Quebec in the autumn. On July 7, 1779, he was made lieutenant and commander in the naval establishment of the upper lakes, in which he served for many years, being commander for a number of years of the sloop Welcome. The log book of the Welcome, kept by him for several of these years, is now preserved in the Burton Hist. Coll. In August, 1794, Harrow witnessed, as an observer, the Battle of Fallen Timbers, having charge with a group of his sailors, of two cannon in the British Fort Miamis, near which the battle was fought. Shortly after this Harrow acquired an extensive tract of land on the American shore of St. Clair River, having a frontage of two and one-half miles and a depth almost three times as great. Here he settled and proceeded to develop an estate. Although the American government subsequently refused to validate his title to much of this land, he retained a portion of it and lived on it until his death in January, 1811. Some of his descendants still reside on it.

28 One Alexander McKenzie was an employee of the British Indian Department in the Northwest in 1795 and subsequent years. See Mich. Pio. Colls., passim. In 1791 Alexander McKenzie, "Merchant," was occupant of a house in Detroit and on the roll of Askin's militia company, and in 1795 the same individual, apparently, was still a merchant here. See Askin Papers, passim.

29 Peter Cumming is listed by Governor Hay among the loyalists at Detroit in 1784. See Mich. Pio. Colls., XIII, 77.

30 John Kinzie was the son of the wife of William Forsyth of Detroit by a prior marriage. He has acquired posthumous reputé as the "father" of modern Chicago, and much has been written about him. Despite this, the facts concerning his earlier years are obscure. He is said, by family descendants, to have been born at Quebec in 1763, and to have spent a portion of his boyhood in New York City. However this may be, he spent the years of his later youth at Detroit, probably because of his mother's marriage to Forsyth. He early engaged in the Indian trade, and this calling he followed practically to the end of life. This necessitated his absence from Detroit, but he maintained property and business connections here at least until after the War of 1812. As a trader he was established at different times at Sandusky, Fort Wayne, on the site of Defiance, Ohio, at Parc au Vache near Niles, Michigan, and at Chicago. Until 1796 his affiliations were wholly British. During his years at Parc au Vache and Chicago, where he located in 1804, however, economic and other interests gradually inclined him to the American side until, by the outbreak of the War of 1812, he seems to have regarded himself as a full-fledged American. Such a transformation was not unusual on the northwestern frontier in this period, and would call for no notice here but for the industry which spokesmen of his family have displayed in misrepresenting the facts concerning it. Kinzie was a shrewd and enterprising trader, and he accumulated considerable wealth, but most of his property was lost in the War of 1812 and from this blow he never recovered. From 1804 until his death in 1828 he lived at Chicago, saving the years 1812 to 1816 when, with no garrison at Chicago, his family found refuge at Detroit. In 1798 Kinzie married Eleanor McKillip, for whom see ante, 305. To them were born several children, one of whom (John H. Kinzie) married Juliette A. McGill, author of Wau Bun, a delightful semi-historical family narrative of life in the early Northwest. One daughter became the wife of Major General David Hunter of the U. S. army, while another married Alexander Wolcott, who was for a decade Indian agent at Chicago. Subsequent to his death in 1830, she married George C. Bates, a prominent lawyer of Detroit.

31 According to Denissen, William Groesbeck came from Albany to Detroit in 1788, and in 1792 married Therese Beaufait, daughter of Louis Beaufait and Mary Therese Marsac. Other evidence seems to indicate that Groesbeck was in Detroit at a date considerably earlier than this. The census of 1779 lists Groesbeck and Teller, and there are other indications that either William or another of the same name was trading at Detroit in this period. When Robert Rogers was serving as Governor of Mackinac and its dependencies (1766-67), one Groesbeck was accused of complicity in his reputed illegal designs. See Mich. Pio. Colls., X, 225. The fact that Rogers had been engaged in business at Albany, and the further fact that William Groesbeck is known to have come from that place, seem to indicate a relationship between him and the one of the same name who was Rogers' associate in 1767.

32 For information concerning Robert Stevens' relatives see post, 411-12. His father, therein mentioned, lived at Glasgow, where he died in April, 1793, leaving several children. A long letter from the executors of the estate to Robert is preserved among the Askin Papers in the Dominion Archives in Ottawa. In it the name is repeatedly spelled without the final "s." Signatures of Robert, preserved in the Burton Hist. Coll., however, disclose that he spelled his name with the final "s." In 1793 Stevens was at the Maumee Rapids, apparently assisting in some capacity in the operations of the British Indian Department in that quarter. See post, 481. Stevens was living in April, 1798, as indicated by an entry in an account of Askin's of that date; an undated memorandum in the Burton Hist. Coll., which probably belongs to the early nineteenth century, pertains to proof of the death and handwriting of the "late Robert Stevens."

33 William Forsyth is said to have been a native of Aberdeen, Scotland, who came to Canada as a British officer in 1760. He subsequently married a widow, Mrs. McKenzie, and located in Detroit, where he lived until his death. For many years he kept a tavern here. Forsyth had six sons, several of whom achieved considerable prominence. There is much confusion, in the various family accounts, concerning Forsyth's career, but from legal records it is certain that he was in Detroit as early as 1778 and was living here as late as Feb. 28, 1794. His tavern was sold by his sons in September, 1796, to George Sharp, who in 1798 sold it to John Kinzie, their half-brother.

Mrs. Ann Forsyth had been twice married before her union with Forsyth: first, to William Haliburton, a chaplain in the British army, and second to John McKenzie. A daughter by the first marriage, Alice Haliburton, born Jan. 22, 1758, married Sampson Fleming at Detroit. They moved to New York after the Revolution, where Mrs. Fleming married (second) Nicholas Low. The child of Mrs. Forsyth's second marriage was a son, John, who early in his career shortened his name to the form Kenzie or Kinzie; for his career see ante, 306. Information adapted from genealogical notes on the Forsyth, Kinzie, and Little families compiled by C. M. Burton, ms. in Burton Hist. Coll.

34 James Allan was a member of the British naval establishment at Detroit in 1783. Ten years later he petitioned for a grant of land on the east side of La Pêche River. It was granted, and in 1799 Allan, then at Amherstburg, proposed to transfer 12,000 acres on Peach River to William Robertson, in payment of debts due the latter. He was living in Upper Canada as a British subject as late as 1815, when his evidence was quoted by the British authorities in a dispute over the retention by the United States of Bois Blanc Island. See Mich. Pio. Colls., passim; letter of Allan to Robertson, Sept. 2, 1799, in Burton Hist. Coll.

35 George Jacob was a partner in trade of Daniel McKillip. Jacob remained a British subject and during the War of 1812 was captain of a dragoon company of Kent County militia. About the year 1788 he married Mary Archange Chêne dit Labutte. They had several children born and baptized at Sandwich in the years 1789-99, and a daughter, Felicity, baptized at the River Thames, Feb. 6, 1801. She later became the wife of Alexander McKee, son of Thomas McKee and Therese Askin. George Jacob died Dec. 24, 1833, aged seventy-one years, and was buried in St. John's churchyard, Sandwich. See Denissen, op. cit., Mich. Pio. Colls., passim. and burial inscriptions in St. John's churchyard.

36 James May was a native of Birmingham, England, who at the age of twenty-two came to Detroit in 1778. He was a man of energy and ability, and held various positions of public trust. He was the first chief justice of the Court of Common Pleas, justice of the peace, marshal of Michigan Territory, and colonel of territorial militia. He married (first) Rose St. Cosme, daughter of Pierre Laurence St. Cosme and Catherine Lootman dit Barrois. She was buried at Detroit, July 18, 1797, and May married (second) Margaret Descomps dit Labadie. Three daughters were born of the first union and ten sons and daughters of the second. James May died at Detroit, Jan. 19, 1829. See Denissen, op. cit., and sketch in Proc. of Land Board of Detroit, 205.

37 Alexander Saunders was engaged in trade at Mackinac as early as 1780 when he signed a petition to General Haldimand praying for equal treatment in the matter of shipping privileges on the lakes. See Mich. Pio. Colls., XX, 210.

38 Henry Ford was a commander in the British naval establishment on the upper lakes in the post-Revolutionary period. On May 20, 1793, he sold to David Cowan a tract of land, four acres by fifty, on the south side of Detroit River opposite Bois Blanc Island for the sum of $100. Information adapted from Mich. Pio. Colls., XII,

25 and XXIV, 6, and from ms. deed in possession of J. D. Anderson of Detroit, a descendant of Cowan.

39 Thomas Reynolds was assistant commissary at Detroit from about the year 1780 until the end of the British régime, after which he served in the same capacity for the garrison at Amherstburg. Many documents pertaining to him are printed in the Mich. Pio. Colls., and many are found among the Askin Papers.

40 Robert Gouie, after living some years in Detroit, removed to Sandwich. He was engaged in the Indian trade. He belonged to Major Baby's militia company in 1805, and to Captain Pierre Labutte's company in 1812. See sketch in Proc. of the Land Board of Detroit, 222. In a document of 1795 Gouie is described as a "Taylor." See post, 596.

41 John Sparkman was barrack master at Detroit from 1784 or earlier to the end of the British period, and thereafter barrack master at Amherstburg at least until 1807. He was a widower with two sons, both of whom died young. He married (second) Suzanna Stedman, a niece of John Stedman of Niagara, and five children were born to them. Condensed from Mich. Pio. Colls., passim, and information supplied by Mrs. Shirley Beecher Ball of Dorset, Ontario.

42 James McIntosh was a brother of Angus McIntosh, for whom see ante, 293, and of William McIntosh. He acted as attorney for William Macomb in 1794 in connection with the transfer of title to Hog Island (modern Belle Isle), and in the contemporary document he is characterized as "James McIntosh gentleman." See Mich. Pio. Colls., II, 588. On the American occupation of Detroit he signified his intention of remaining a British subject. Ibid., VIII, 410.

43 William Hands was born at Bethnal Green near London, Aug. 10, 1756. He came to America and was engaged in trade at Detroit as early as 1781. At the close of the British régime he signified his intention of remaining a British subject, and in 1799 built a house at Sandwich which was still in use a few years since. He held many local offices at Sandwich, being sheriff, treasurer, postmaster, customs officer, and register of Surrogate Court for the Western District. Most of these offices were held simultaneously. He married Mary Abbott of Detroit, daughter of James Abbott Sr. He died at Sandwich, Feb. 20, 1836. Mary Abbott died at Sandwich, Dec. 22, 1860. Information adapted from mss. in Burton Hist. Coll. and burial inscriptions in Hands's family plot in St. John's churchyard, Sandwich.

44 Apparently there were two persons bearing this name, and we are unable to distinguish them in the contemporary documents. On February 4, 1779, Alexander Macomb wrote from Detroit to Governor Henry Hamilton at Vincennes enclosing a letter received by "a young lad here named George Forsyth, nephew to Captain George Phyn." Ill. Hist. Colls., VIII, 107. Probably this was not the same George Forsyth who, in 1781 and 1785, signed petitions to government officials as a merchant of Detroit. See Mich. Pio. Colls., X, 456, and XI, 461. The latter, apparently, later located at Niagara where he died Sept. 15, 1806. His tombstone inscription, which may still be seen, gives his age as fifty-two, and describes him as long a resident of Niagara as merchant and magistrate, and "beloved for his mild manner and great worth"; Niagara Hist. Soc., Pubs., No. 19, p. 14. On Aug. 6, 1804, Alexander Grant wrote to John Askin that George Forsyth had married at Robert Hamilton's home Miss Tenbrook. Ms. in Burton Hist. Coll.

45 Simon Girty was born in Pennsylvania in 1741. At the age of fifteen he was captured by the Seneca and lived among them as a prisoner for three years. He subsequently acted as an interpreter, and in this capacity served in Lord Dunmore's campaign. Loyalist in his sympathies, Girty in the spring of 1778 accompanied Alexander McKee and Matthew Elliot on their flight from Pittsburgh to Detroit. Girty, like Elliot and McKee, became a notable leader of the Indians in the Northwest in their warfare with the Americans. For some reason Simon Girty was regarded by the Americans with greater detestation than any other of their foes, and he seems to have returned their feeling in full measure. In the summer of 1784, Girty married Catherine Malott, who had been living for several years as a captive of the Delaware tribe in Ohio, and established a home a short distance below Amherstburg. For a decade longer he continued to lead, or encourage, the western Indians in their warfare with the Americans, but this phase of his career was definitely closed by Wayne's victory at Fallen Timbers and the peace which followed it. Save for a considerable period of exile during the War of 1812, when the Americans were in control of Amherstburg, Girty continued to reside here until his death, Feb. 18, 1818. For an exhaustive account of his career see Consul W. Butterfield, History of the Girtys . . . (Cincinnati, 1890).

46 John Little was a native of Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, to which place his father had migrated from Ireland about the year 1730. About the opening of the Revolution, John Little removed to the vicinity of Pittsburgh. His loyalist activities in that struggle caused him later to seek refuge at Detroit. On receipt of news of peace at that place Little returned to Pittsburgh for his family, where, notwithstanding a letter of "protection" from the commandant at Detroit which he had taken the precaution to procure, he was seized by General Irvine and threatened with hanging. Released, he brought his family to Detroit, where he procured a farm on Lake St. Clair in the Grosse Pointe region, and lived until the end of his life, although both in 1795 and in 1797 he formally avowed his intention of remaining a British subject. He was buried Aug. 24, 1817. One of his daughters, Eleanor Little, married (first) Daniel McKillip and (second) John Kinzie, whose careers are noted elsewhere in this volume. Information adapted from notes by C. M. Burton on the Little, Forsyth, and Kinzie families, ms. in Burton Hist. Coll.

47 Jacob Harsen (Harson) was living in Detroit as early as 1779 and as late as 1797. He subsequently settled on Harsen's Island in the St. Clair River. He reared a family of five sons and two daughters; one son was later sheriff of St. Clair County. See Mich. Pio. Colls., passim, and William L. Jenks, St. Clair County Michigan (Chicago, 1912), passim.

48 Gerrit Graverat came from Albany to Detroit some time prior to July, 1773. Here he engaged in trade in partnership with John Visger and subsequently with Visger and Colin Andrews under the firm name of Andrews, Graverat, and Visger. A somewhat notable case of debt collection against Graverat in 1783 is described by C. M. Burton, City of Detroit, Michigan, 1701-1922, II, 957-58. Information adapted from Mich. Pio. Colls., passim, and manuscripts in Burton Hist. Coll., passim.

FROM REV. GEORGE MITCHELL TO CHURCH VESTRYMEN,
DEC. 8, 1787

To William McComb Esq^r and Mess^{rs} John Askin James Abbot and George Meldrum.

Gentlemen At a meeting of the Inhabitants of this Place held at the Council House upon the 1st day of June last, by the Subscription Paper which I proposed, and which was then read, I mentioned your Names as the Gentlemen whom I wished to act as Vestrymen, and superintend the Business of the Congregation. We have not been able to bring Church Matters to that Order and regularity which I could have wished. Various Causes have no doubt contributed to prevent it. The necessary Avocations of Business both public and private, the Uncertainty which still remains respecting this Post, and other Circumstances render the Situation of a resident Clergyman here very precarious and his Subsistence uncertain. If any thing has been wanting on my Part, it is from you that I should receive Information. I conceive that the taking Subscriptions and collecting money does not properly fall to my Part, but should rather be done by some one appointed by you, or whatever method you should think most advisable. I have taken the Liberty to inclose you the Subscription List for last year, and the Ballances due as nearly as I can make them out at present.

There are several of the English Inhabitants about the Fort who I believe would have subscribed but have never been applied to, whether you think proper to make any Application still to such, I submit to your Judgment. I am as you may conceive involved in some small debts particularly to M^r Robertson to whom I have been under particular Obligations, and to Serg^t Brown for Provisions, and a few others which I could wish to be able to discharge nearly as soon as possible.

As to any future Subscription, I propose none at present more than for Six months, as I propose to go down to Montreal, and from thence to Quebec, about the beginning of June next, or about the time that the first Shipping may be expected from England. An Appointment from the Society, if the application has been forwarded & delivered, I have no doubt will take Place. That together with some appointment for the Garrison if it could be obtained, with some Subscription from the Inhabitants, might be very sufficient for the Support of a Clergyman to reside at this Place. Otherwise I do not see that the Inhabitants alone can support one without distressing themselves. I have likewise inclosed my Proposals for Six months in which you may do as you think proper. I have the Honour to be with Respect

Gentlemen As I wish to lease [leave] this Place now as soon as possible, I must take the liberty to trouble you again to try what can be done in the way of Collection. A few Ballances still remain upon the Original List herewith Sent, and it is probable that some of them even now, may not have Cash. If I can get Credit with any of the Gentlemen with whom I have dealings in Town M^r Robertson, M^r Meldrum, or M^r Shepherd, it will answer my Purpose in that way as well as Money towards discharging my debts. I suppose most of the Original Subscribers will continue the same in proportion for the last half year as at first, but some are gone, and some others in no great way of making Money, who probably cannot afford it. But there are a considerable number of English Inhabitants who have never yet as far as I know, been applied to, some of whose names I have annexed, and from these something might be expected.

BURTON HISTORICAL RECORDS

There are several of the Inhabitants with whom I have small Acco^{ts} for necessities of which I have not the particulars, with any one who mentions this Circumstance I will settle myself. There should be some Allowance for the money I have advanced to the Drumers & I will discount that to the Band. I wish to be ready to go at farthest by the beginning of June ag^t which time the present half year will be fully expired, and your Endeavours to enable me to discharge my Acco^{ts} in Town and to raise some overplus for my Journey will much Oblige

FROM REV. GEORGE MITCHELL TO WILLIAM MACOMB

Quebec July 31st 1788

Dear Sir I take the Liberty to acquaint you from this Place that before I can get my business done regularly I must either go to London or Hallifax to wait upon the Bishop there, and probably to both. I had an Introduction to Head Quarters from Sir John Johnson⁴⁹ who seemed to be disposed to serve me, and assisted me with a little money. I had likewise an Introduction to Maj Beckwith⁵⁰ his Lord-

⁵⁰ George Beckwith, born in 1753, served throughout the Revolution as lieutenant, captain, and major in the Thirty-seventh Regiment. From 1787 to 1791, he was sent to the United States by Lord Dorchester on frequent missions of a diplomatic character, and resided many months at Philadelphia. He was adjutant general to ships principal Aidducamp, but unfortunately he had left this to proceed with his Lordship to the Upper Country I believe as far as Niagara before I arrived, of course I had to send by [my] Papers by Major Mathews who you know had not formerly been my Friend, whether he was, or was not at this time I do not know, however he informed me that he read my Papers to his Lordship, and that his Lordship was sorry he had not time then to have some Conversation with myself, there being so many Gentlemen attending about business, that could not be deferred, which I believe was really the Case, it being the last day of his Lordships stay at this Place. I do not expect to stay here untill he returns but shall leave my business with his Secretary M^r Motts⁵¹ who I have reason to believe, at least I have his Promise that he will do what he can, when his Lordship returns, and what Recumendations he thinks proper to give will be forwarded to London.

I wrote you before that I had seen M^r Alexander Ellis [Ellice] at Montreal who took no more trouble about the Packet sent to his House last summer than to send it by a Porter to S^t James Square where the Bishop of London lives, and never enquired more about the matter. It was very unfriendly indeed, I think he might have done more for the Inhabitants of Detroit as he has had considerable Connections there, if he would not upon my Account. If you have received my Letter I wrote you from Montreal you will see, he even refused paying the Subscription of his Brother James Ellis untill he should hear from Detroit. I went to see Doct^r Toosey⁵² yesterday and mentioned the Matter to the army in America from 1791 to 1794; promoted a major general in 1798, and lieutenant general in 1805. At different times he served as governor of St. Vincent, Barbadoes, and Bermuda. He led the expedition which conquered Martinique in 1809 and Guadaloupe in 1810. From 1816 to 1820 he served as commander-in-chief in Ireland. He died in 1823. See Ford, British Officers in the American Revolution and sketch in Simcoe Papers, I, 94.

⁵² The story of the beginnings of the Protestant Episcopal Church at Detroit has him, who is of Opinion that altho' it was Subscribed to him, and while he was there, it was not to him as a Man but as a Clergyman of the Place, and as he did not return and I did the duty was a debt of Honor which ought to be paid to me, altho not perhaps recoverable by Compulsion. If I remember right yourself and M^r Askin were of the same Opinion. If you will be kind enough to take the trouble I believe M^r Askin has the Original Paper, you can look at the Preamble which is short but I do not perfectly remember it, and can easily know if it was meant to Doct^r Toosey only, or to any other Clergyman who might do the duty. You know that I had been expected there before Doct^r Toosey came, and a few lines from yourself & M^r Askin or either, will easily settle the business, it may be directed to M^r Ellis or Tho^s Forsyth but Inclosed to M^r David Ross Attorney at Montreal whom I spoke to, not as a Lawyer but a Friend.

If I should live to get to London and take up the Application of last year, to the Bishop or the Society I am told it will be of service to have some thing of the Nature of the inclosed in Case it should be lost, or even to strengthen it, a few Names will be sufficient, and I will beg of you to take the trouble, it may come inclosed to me to be left at the Quebec Coffee house London and the sooner after this comes to hand the better. If I shall succeed in the Application I shall return in the Spring by the way of New York.

not, as yet, been written. The first clergyman at Detroit of whom we have found mention was Rev. Philip Toosey, who was here prior to George Mitchell in 1787. These early priests were apparently sent, and in large part supported by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts. Prior to 1793 the church in all Canada was under the jurisdiction of the Bishop of Nova Scotia. In that year the Bishop paid a visit to the "western" portion of his domain, coming as far west as Montreal. He set various things in order, and among other matters appointed Rev. Philip Toosey to minister to the people at Quebec. Probably this appointment merely gave legal confirmation to an existing fact, for it seems evident from Mitchell's letter that Toosey was at Quebec before this time. As one result of the Bishop's tour in 1789, representations were made to the British authorities which led to the division, four years later, of his vast jurisdiction and the establishment of the Bishopric of Quebec. Toosey died shortly before Oct. 4, 1797. See Adam Shortt and Arthur G. Doughty (eds.), Canada and its Provinces (Toronto, 1914), XI, passim; also, for specific references to Toosey see Ontario Bureau of Archives, Thirteenth Report, 166.

Translation

In the year one thousand seven hundred and eighty-eight, the twenty-fifth of the month of August, before the notary undersigned appeared Mr. Joseph Serré called St. John,⁵³ master tailor of Detroit, who, in his own name and in the names of the Tremblay heirs, has declared, and by these presents does declare, that the adjudicature announced after parish mass the twenty-fourth of this current month at the instance of Jonathan Schieffelin⁵⁴ with respect to the

⁵⁴ Jonathan Schieffelin was a relative of Jacob Schieffelin, who served as secretary to Governor Henry Hamilton and held the rank of lieutenant in the British service. Jacob was at Detroit as late as 1783 when he endeavored to anticipate William Caldwell and his associates in procuring a large tract of land at the mouth of the Detroit River where Amherstburg was soon after founded. He subsequently engaged in business in Montreal, and in 1794 in New York, where both his firm and his descendants were long prominent.

Both Jacob and Jonathan Schieffelin were active on the British side in the Revolution. Jonathan served as lieutenant in Louis Chabert de Joncaire's company of Detroiters which went on Captain Henry Bird's invasion of Kentucky in 1780, and Alexander McKee formally certified on May 8, 1787, that throughout the late war Schieffelin had served on the several expeditions sent from Detroit against the Americans, as well as in the defense of the place against hostile attack. In 1793 Schieffelin was petitioning Governor Simcoe for half-pay in recognition of his military service, and upon the American occupation he formally signified his intention to remain a British subject. Instead, he remained in Detroit and was soon prominent in the official councils of the new American régime. A letter written by him in 1799 reflects a tone of deep loyalty to the new government and discloses that he had won the friendship of General Wilkinson and was serving in an important capacity in the Indian Department. He was elected to the Assembly of Northwest Territory which met at Chillicothe in November, 1801, and in May, 1803, on returning from the legislative session, was voted the "freedom of the Corporation" of Detroit for services rendered. A letter dated at New York, August 17, 1804, preserved in the Burton Hist. Coll., shows that Schieffelin had then been absent from Detroit for some time, and that he no longer regarded it as his place of residence. He continued to reside in New York the remainder of his life. Schieffelin was one of the group of associates of John Askin and others which, in 1795, entered upon an enterprise looking to securing from Congress a grant of some 20,000,000 acres of land, comprising, roughly, most of the present lower peninsula of Michigan. Members of Congress were offered large bribes by the eastern agents of the group, who undertook to pilot the grant through Congress, but upon exposure by a South Carolina member of the House, the scheme was defeated. Schieffelin was living as late as the summer of 1827. See Mich. Pio. Colls., passim; C. M. Burton (ed.), Journal of the Board of Trustees 1802-1805 (Detroit, 1922), passim; C. M. ⁵⁵ The Champagnes (Champaignes) of Detroit were descendants of Pierre Huyet of the province of Champagne, France. His son, Etienne Huyet, born at Charleville in Champagne, learned the shoemaking trade and migrated to Canada, where on June 8, 1718, he married at Montreal Barbara Fortier dit La Fortune, daughter of Stephen Fortier and Margaret Lauson. Their son, Pierre Huyet dit Champagne, was born at L'Ange Gardien, June 22, 1733. On June 9, 1760, he married at Detroit Regina Christina Tremblay, daughter of Augustin Tremblay and Mary Judith La Forest. The couple lived on a farm at Fox Creek in Grosse Pointe, where all but two of their twelve children were born. Pierre Huyet was buried at Detroit, Oct. 30, 1805. See Denissen, op. cit.

⁵⁶ The Grand Marais of Detroit in the French period was that portion of the settlement lying opposite the upper end of Belle Isle, where the river makes its exit from Lake St. Clair.

sequently sold to George McDougall and George Meldrum, who improved the property by building two mills and several houses on it. In 1798 Pepin leased from Todd and McGill a mill in this vicinity, which he held for several years, making little or no payments on the annual rental. The debt was finally compounded for a small sum about the close of 1804.

Pepin seems to have enjoyed intimate relations with the Indians, and in 1795 he labored effectively to induce them to attend the Greenville negotiations, encountering in this connection the vigorous opposition of Rev. Edmund Burke, whom he characterized in terms of exceeding pungency. Mich. Pio. Colls., XII, 169-70. In association with Romaine de Chambre and Gabriel Godfroy, Pepin obtained a grant of 2500 acres of land on Huron River where now is the city of Ypsilanti, where they had conducted a trading post. Misfortune, however, dogged Pepin's footsteps. In December, 1814, Father Gabriel Richard appealed to the commandant at Detroit on behalf of "the most distressed person existing in this territory, Francis Pepin." Richard described him as afflicted with palsy and scarcely able to "utter a few broken words," and begged that the grant of rations formerly supplied him be restored. On Feb. 19, 1816, he was buried at Detroit, "aged about fifty-five years." Information adapted from Mich. Pio. Colls., passim, and mss. in Burton Hist. Coll., passim.

59 The American founder of the Detroit line of Nadeau was Joseph Osanny Nadeau, born in France in 1637, who came to Canada, married Margaret Abraham, and was buried at Ste. Famille, Isle of Orleans, Feb. 12, 1677. He left a son, Jean Baptiste, born in 1670, and he, in turn, a son of the same name, born Sept. 21, 1700. The latter married Margaret Carbonneau and died in 1722, leaving a posthumous son, also named Jean Baptiste, who was born at Berthier, Dec. 22, 1722. He married Martha Fournier in 1745, and to them three sons were born, Joseph, Martin, and Anthony. All came west to Detroit, and ultimately located at St. Antoine, Raisin River. Martin Nadeau, subject of the present sketch, married at Sandwich, Aug. 14, 1786, Mary Réaume, daughter of Jean Baptiste Réaume and Agatha Lootman dit Barrois. In 1790 they settled at Raisin River, where Martin Nadeau was buried March 15, 1842. They had fourteen children, the first two and the last of whom were born at Detroit, the others at Raisin River. Mr. John Askin,

Sir: I write you now in the name and on the behalf of Mr Joseph Ducharme to tell you of the sad death of Antoine Renaud, his brother-in-law, killed by the Kickapoo the 24th of May last about seven miles below this village as he was returning from his winter quarters. The said Mr. Ducharme having been appointed and acknowledged administrator of the estate of the said deceased Renaud, and being informed, although indirectly, that a considerable sum is owing to you by the said Renaud, and that in consequence you could present a claim against the estate, which in truth, is very little (it consists of two mulatto boys, slaves, about eighteen years of age, and scarcely anything else) he intends making inquiry at the Illinois where Mr. Renaud has made his home for several years.⁶⁰ I believe, from what I have heard, that nothing much may be expected from that quarter. Mr. Ducharme thinks you might write to someone there, if you cannot go yourself, or send a clerk within the next six months the time granted and fixed for settling the said estate and for all claims to be entered.

Mrs. Ducharme, sister of the said deceased Renaud, will inform you by another letter concerning her brother's interest in the estate of their deceased father and mother of Canada, of which she says that he has collected nothing. Meanwhile, you might inquire yourself at Montreal, his birthplace.

I would like to oblige you and therefore offer my services. If you think there is anything I can do for you here, you will find me ready at any time to give you every assurance of the profound regard,

Sir, of your very humble and very obedient Servant

Antoine Gamelin⁶¹

Notary Public and Recorder

⁶⁰ The Kaskaskia Records disclose that in 1779 Renaud was a resident of Kaskaskia. August 31 of that year he contributed 500 pounds of flour for the support of the "Troops Belonging to the State of Virginia." In December following he signed a protest addressed to the magistrates against the "brigandage and tyranny" of the same soldiers; and in May, 1782, he signed a memorial on the maintenance of order. A different picture of Renaud's estate than the one presented in this document, is given in a letter of William McIntosh to Askin, June 15, 1801. It describes the two slaves as valuable, and as having been sold, one to Francis Vigo and one to Colonel Hamtramck, much below their value. It states, also, that Renaud died possessed of a considerable quantity of peltries and 400 acres of land.

Dear Askin Your very much esteemed favour of the 28th March I received the 19th April, Which was much latter than we expected, Owing to Our express being so long detained at your Post for the letters from below.

I must beg leave to offer my most sincere thanks to you & all your good fameily for their attention & kind sentiments, on hearing of the reëstablishment of my health. I do most sincerely assure you & them all, that I am very proud of their friendship, because I am convinced it is sincere, And should be exceeding happy to have it in my Power to convince them, that their friendship & civilities is not thrown a way on an ungrateful Person.

I am sorry to find there is such a General scarcity of Provisions at all the Posts, especially at yours, as it will affect this place very much when the crowd comes in. For at present there is neither a bushel of corn nor an hundred weight of flour to be had at this place at any price; the crop of Indian Corn having failed among the Indians last year as well as in other Places. The Garrison Baker (the only one in the place) has now liberty from the commanding Officer to sell his bread at 4/ a loaf. This scarcity of Provisions has induced me to purchase from the troops about 15 hundred weight of Salt Pork, which I expect to turn into Skins or money in the course of this summer.

The Winter here has been very severe & long, the Ise only begun to give way the 25th April. The Garrison &c has been very healthy.

I have lately joined with M^r John Barthe in a small Adventure to Lake Superior, the conditions are. I to furnish

He left this the 18th Ult^o On my arrival there [here] last fall, I reduced the price of Rum from 32/ to 24/, and have lately sold it at 20/, but hitherto there has been little or no demand for it. With respect to my transactions since I have been here in the way of business; the whole May amount to about £800 York. Though but little, it is more than I expected to do in such a poor pitiful place as this is in Winter.

Yesterday I received your favour of the fifth instand, By which I am glad to hear that you and famely are well. We have had no trade here this Spring. The Indians to the West being all at war with one an Other. M^r Barthe returned here Yesterday & has done Nothing, as there was so many Other traders there before him. As the Troops are ordered on board I have not time [to] Say any thing mor, Only my best wishes waits on you & famely. And am ⁶² Robert Nichol is supposed to have been born in Dumfriesshire, Scotland, about the year 1774. He probably first came to Detroit in the autumn of 1795, when he entered upon a three-year term of employment as clerk to John Askin. The articles of indenture describe him as a "gentleman." He later engaged in trade at Queenston and in time achieved local prominence. He served in the War of 1812, being present at the capture of Detroit and there saving, it is said, Daniel Dobbin from being executed by Brock for supposed violation of his parole. He became lieutenant colonel of the Second Norfolk Militia, and subsequently quartermaster general of militia. For his services he was presented with a sword of honor by the legislature of Upper Canada. He married Therese Wright, only surviving child of Dr. Thomas Wright and Therese Grant, and a granddaughter of Commodore Alexander Grant. He was accidentally killed in 1824, by falling over a precipice near Queenston. See Askin Papers, passim; Major Alpin's Ancestors and Descendants (Aberdeen, 1904), 15-16; Officers of the British Forces in Canada During the War of 1812; Burton, City of Detroit, Michigan, 1701-1922, I, 709. An extensive biography of Nichol's public career is in Ontario Hist. Soc., Papers and Records, XIX.

Jean Baptiste Romain dit Sanscrainte, son of Jean Romain and Mary Joseph Leblanc, was born at Montreal, May 16, 1723, and married there, Feb. 25, 1754, Susanne Amable Deneau, daughter of Andrew Deneau and Frances Boyer.

Their son, also named Jean Baptiste, born in 1754, married at Detroit, Oct. 13, 1778, Margaret Solo, daughter of Claude Solo and Margaret Descomps dit Labadie. They reared a large family. Margaret Solo was buried at Detroit, March 19, 1793. See Denissen, op. cit.

DIVISION OF DEBTS OF THE MIAMIS COMPANY⁶⁵

At a meeting of the Members of the Miamis Company held this day at the Store of John Askin, respecting a final division of the debts due to them it was agreed upon by all parties as follows; Viz^t

John Askin for his proportion of divided debts, agreed to accept of whatever might be due to the said Company by Dagneaux Dequindre,⁶⁶ Baptist Reaume, and Charles

The sons here alluded to were Philip Thomas de Joncaire de Chabert, born at Montreal, Jan. 9, 1707, and Daniel de Joncaire de Chabert, born at Repentigny, Jan. 6, 1716. The elder succeeded to his father's position of influence over the Iroquois, and the younger, for twenty years prior to the downfall of New France, ably assisted him in this rôle. Going to France on the surrender of Canada, Daniel de Joncaire de Chabert was imprisoned in the Bastille in 1761 on charges of peculations committed in Canada. Released after two years, he returned to Canada and embarked on the western fur trade with headquarters at Detroit; but the British authorities were suspicious of his loyalty, and of his influence over the natives, and their restrictions, combined with other factors, prevented him from retrieving his shattered fortunes. He was buried at Detroit, July 5, 1771. Aside from his Seneca wife and family among the Iroquois, Chabert had married at Montreal, Jan. 19, 1751, Margaret Elizabeth Ursula Rocbert de la Morandière, who died at Detroit in January, 1773. They had several children who married at Detroit and became progenitors of a far-flung family line. See Denissen, op. cit.; Severance, op. cit.; and Burton Hist. Coll. Leaflet, VI, 1-16.

⁷⁵ William McIntosh was a brother of James McIntosh and of Angus McIntosh, for whom see ante, 293 and 308. He was an attorney and about the year 1800 located at Vincennes, where he did considerable legal business for John Askin. Letters in the Sibley Papers, preserved in the Burton Hist. Coll., disclose that he was living at Vincennes as late as 1816 and that in 1823 he had been for some time residing at Grand Rapids near Palmyra, Illinois. In 1811 he was sued for slander by Governor Harrison, for criticisms uttered of the latter's Indian policy, and condemned to pay $4,000 damages. Harrison's most recent biographer, however, does not regard the verdict as necessarily indicative of the merits of the criticism. See Dorothy B.

the Company's books, & in the proportion of Five Hundred pounds of Frances Viego's, to the whole of same, as in the preceding Article. And John Askin agrees to give the Company Fifty Pounds New York Currency, for the debt due by Joseph Gibbeau to the Company, which is to become his property; the said John Askin, obliging himself to prevent the said Joseph Gilbeau going to Sandusky, as much as in his power; And the Company oblige themselves to bring nothing against said Gilbeau, on account of his former conduct, unless they have reason to think he is going to Sandusky, in which case they are at liberty to pursue such Steps, as they think will prevent him going thither.

All other debts due to the Company, exclusive of those before Enumerated to be put into the hands of John Askin to be collected without unnecessary delay, for the general behoof of the Company; for which, a Commission of five per Centum is to be allowed on the sums collected, and the remainder, divided amongst the Members, in proportion to their shares in the Company. And it is agreed upon also, by all the parties, that the collection of said Frances Viego's Debt, shall be allotted to James Abbott, with power to compound for same at his discretion. And in consideration thereof, he agrees, & obliges himself to provid the Neat proceeds of whatever he may recover from said Frances Viego, between the Company, Angus Mackintosh, and himself, upon the following rates, viz: Nineteen hundred pounds for the Company's, Five hundred pounds, for Angus Mackintosh, & Twenty-three Hundred pounds for James Abbotts, Making in all, Four Thousand & Seven Hundred pounds, in all, as before mentioned.

The Company, & Angus Mackintosh, oblige themselves to bear a proportional part of the expences incurred in recovering, and Realizing the property that may be received from said Viego, according to the same rata as before. And in case any dispute should arise as to the reasonableness, or quantum of such expences, the same to be left to the decision of indifferent persons mutually chosen. And the said Company and Angus Mackintosh, agree to allow the said James Abbott, as a Commission for his personal trouble in recovering; five per Centum, upon the Neat sum actually realized at Detroit. The Company's proportion of what is thus realized to be divided amongst all its Members, in proportion to the shares they hold therein. Each Member of the Company, hereby obliges himself to execute without evasion or unnecessary delay, such assignments & Letters of Attorney irrevocable, as may be necessary to Vest a legal title in the person to whom each Debt is allotted and a relinquishment of all claims upon them by every other Member of the Company, as to their demands as Members, without injuring their private claims. And for the faithful performance of all and every the matters & things herein mentioned, and agreed upon, each Member binds himself to the whole, in the sum of, One Thousand Pounds, Quebec Currency, to be paid by the parties failing, to the Parties performing, or willing to perform.

This done and executed at Detroit, in the District of Hesse,⁷⁶ and Province of Quebec, this Ninth day of September, in the Year of Our Lord, One Thousand, seven hundred & Eighty Nine; & in the Twenty Ninth Year of his Majestys Reign.

four districts, to be known as Lunenburg, Mecklenburg, Nassau, and Hesse. The District of Hesse was the westernmost of the four, having Detroit as the seat of government and the principal town. This arrangement ended only with the American occupation in 1796, when Detroit became, from the governmental point of view, a part of the Northwest Territory. The first legislature of Upper Canada, in 1792, renamed the districts created by Lord Dorchester as follows: the Eastern; the Middle; the Home; and the Western District.

⁷⁷ George Ironside, born in 1760 and educated at King's College, Aberdeen, was a prominent trader of the Maumee Valley in the period subsequent to the Revolution. In 1789 he had an establishment at Miamitown, which was destroyed at the time of Harmar's invasion the following year. During the next few years he was established at the Glaize (modern Defiance, Ohio), which was destroyed in turn by General Wayne in 1794. At this place Ironside had an Indian wife, whose mother was the owner of Oliver Spencer during his captivity. Apparently, Ironside withdrew to Detroit after Wayne's campaign, and from here to Amherstburg upon the British evacuation of Detroit. At Amherstburg he was appointed clerk and storekeeper in the Indian Department. He died here in 1830. See Mich. Pio. Colls., passim; Henry Hay's Journal; and *The Indian Captivity of O. M. HUGH HEWARD'S JOURNAL FROM DETROIT
TO THE ILLINOIS: 1790

JOURNAL FROM DETROIT TO THE ILLINOIS

Journal of a Voyage made by M^r Hugh Heward to the Illinois Country

Detroit March 24th 1790 took my Departure for the Illinois.¹ had much Trouble as Customary in getting the Engagee's off in which Hurry we left a Keg of pork behind 'till we got to the petite Cote, return'd with one of the Cannots to Babys Mill & then with Duarier walk'd up opposite the Fort & borrow'd a Cannot to cross—had just Time to get the Keg & get out at the Gate at 9 oClock cross'd & return'd the Cannot & from thence carried the Keg of pork each his Turn to our Cannot at M^r Baby's Mill, Slept there & next morning the 25th very wet & disagreeable we from there joined our other Cannot at Labourses Mill the Weather so bad we unloaded & I there hired Joseph La Mirand² another Engagé at 40/p Month about mid Day

² Joseph Lamirande, founder of the Detroit and River Raisin line of this name, was born in the district of Three Rivers, Canada, in 1767. Probably he came west in early manhood in the capacity of fur-trade engagé. On May 18, 1795, he married at Detroit Mary Angelica Saliot, who was born at Sandwich, Aug. 8, 1780. They had

3 Adam Brown's village was on Brownstown Creek, about a mile southwest of present-day Gibraltar. From him the modern Brownstown receives its name. Brown was a native of Virginia who, in boyhood, was carried into captivity by Indians, apparently about the year 1750. He was brought to Detroit and adopted by a Wyandot squaw belonging to the Deer clan, who reared him as her son. About the year 1763, he married a woman of mixed French and Wyandot blood belonging to the Big Turtle clan. He became a village chief and his town was for a generation a well-known stopping-place for travelers between Detroit and the Maumee region. In the War of 1812, Brown's band supported the British cause and the Battle of Brownstown, Aug. 5, 1812, was fought at or very close to his village. Upon the triumph of the American arms around Detroit, Brown withdrew to the British side of the river, where he resided until his death, about the year 1822. Some of his descendants remained in Canada, where their offspring are still to be found; others migrated to Kansas and (subsequently) to Oklahoma with the American band of Wyandot, and descendants of Brown still live in the last-named state. One account, written long after the event, credits Brown with participating in the attack upon the schooner Huron (misnamed by Parkman the Gladwin) off Turkey Island on the night of Sept. 4, 1763. When the white men were on the point of being overcome, the mate called to his men to blow up the ship; Brown understanding English, instantly warned his associates of the purport of the command, who promptly fled overboard, thus ending the desperate conflict. On this battle compare Parkman, Conspiracy of Pontiac (Boston, 1880), I, 318-20 and Mich. Pio. Colls., VIII, 366. Biographical information about Adam Brown has been derived from letters of his great-grandson, B. N. O. Walker of Miami, Oklahoma, written in January and February, 1925.

She was buried here on March 19, 1793. They had several children born at Detroit, most of whom subsequently became residents of River Raisin settlement. Sanscrainte was bitterly accused by the British authorities of pro-American activities prior and subsequent to Wayne's campaign of 1794. See Denissen, op. cit., and *Mich. Pio. ⁶ William Robertson, of Detroit, for whom see ante, 208.

Indian. I went up as far as where the Squas from the River Huron had passed where the Mark was to be made but saw no Indian. this Branch is a strong deep Current but narrow the Course nearly South by West & the Country barren as before.

Tuesday Ap^l 6th 1790 Went forward to look out for the Portage on foot & found in nearly a south West Course up this Branch where it divides into Small Lakes & took that which runs South by West & followed it 'till it wasted in Marshes from thence Returned very fatigued having Walked very hard & met the Cannots where the Branch divides in Lakes distance about 15 Miles from where we had come in the Day. I caused them to encamp 'till the Indian might come or we could find the portage & with Morras sett off in quest of the Indian or some person to guide us & arrived nearly at the place we had marked for the Indian in hopes to find out their Camp. Night & obliged to sleep under a Tree a hard Frost & cold sleeping

Wednesday Ap^l 7th 1790. Set off[f] to find some Indian Camp & found a large Road to Nore West hoping it to lead to some Villiage but found it after leading North about 8 Miles it took a Course due West & seemed an old deep & beaten path 'till we came to a small River the Current running West. I had many Opinions that this must be the Grand River from the Current run^s contrary to all the rest pursued our Road about 8 Miles farther still run^s due West & seeing no fresh Trace we concluded it [to be] the S^t Josephs Road from Detroit & return'd to where we had cross'd the River run'g West cross'd it again & then took our Course due South to find our Cannots, & fell on a branch from the same division of Lakes run^s from West & by it joined our Cannots. determined from this to pass up this Branch as it seemed to approach the River run^s West, but to make the Matter more Sure not to leave the portage behind us I took Duarrier (after eating a little) & went to explore the Middle Branch formed from those Small Lakes run^s West by South & in about 8 Miles found it become very small & Night com^s on returned to the Cannots determ^e to take the Branch run^e West in the Morn^e. Went to Sleep being very Weary & having in the Day fatigued two good Walkers & myself never remember to have walked more in one Day.

Thursday Ap^l 8th 1790. Put into the Creek run^e Nore West & I went by Land to look out for a Portage found a Villiage West Nore West on a Lake up this Creek but here the Run of Water ended went further into the Country West nore West & found Many Round Lakes & high Mountains but no running Water return'd very Weary & found the Cannots where we had passed the Day before & finding no End to these Researches determined to return to the Villiage of the River Huron to find an Indian to conduct us.

Friday Ap^l 9th 1790 Sett off with Duarier for the River Huron & arrived at Night sleep'd at Thébeaults & Sanscraint tho' Drunk would still insist that the left hand Branch was right, him & Thébeault fought & Sanscraint shew'd every Desire to springe upon & excize us from what he now shew'd there is Reason to believe he put us into the wrong Branch designedly. Thebeault for 20/ offer'd to conduct us next Day to where we could get an Indian in the Sugar Ground but the Dispute between him & Sanscraint disappointed it as Sanscraint for himself & Ribergean for Thebault went for Detroit with Complaints.

Saturday Ap^l 10th 90 Got an old Indian to conduct us to the Sugar Ground & sett off with each $\frac{1}{2}$ a B^l of Corn on our Backs bought of Thebeault for 12ⁿ & order'd payment on M^r Robertson. Arrived at the Sugar Ground & engaged an Indian to go with us next day paid the old Indian 25 Broaches for guid^e us & stay'd all Night.

Sunday Ap^l 11th 1790 Set off with the Indian our Guide & arrived at the Cannots about 2 oClock. the Indian on pass^e the Branch we had mounted up told us it was the wrong Branch & [we] would have to go down again to take the other at the Forks. having the Corn we now brought to hull & good ashes ready employed the Men to do it this afternoon ready to start Tomorrow Morning.

Monday Ap^l 12th 1790. Went with the Indian from our Encampment down again to take the Fork leading Nore West & arrived about Mid Day. proceeded up the Branch which turns nore North East^s about four Leagues the Current very strong & nearly as wide & deep as the other part of the River from Sanscraints Villiage & on a Gravelly Bottom to a Cabbin where it divides into two Lakes⁹ the River at this place about 20 yd^s Wide & between 4 & 5 foot Water here one of those Lakes points Nore East & the other nore West the last we passed to West nore West which after a Traverse of about a League brought [us] again into a small Serpentine River run^s from the same Direction about 6 Yd^s Wide & about 3½ foot Water to the banks but being overflowed we had 4 or 5 feet Water. the lake unpassed is about a League each way & seemingly deep where we could see the Bottom it was a fine Gravel & Sand as also the River to about 2 Leagues up where we encamped late

Tuesday Ap^l 13th 1790. Set off the[n] on our Rout West nore West & in about ½ a Mile it turned nearly North & in a Stream Serpentine the Banks in about every Mile varying West Nore West & to North for about 4 Leagues the stream here about 4 Y^d^s wide & about 3 feet Water when in the Banks we arrived at another Lake about ½ a Mile long & ¼ Mile Wide point^s Nore West & South East pass'd by the Nore West point from this into Another Sm[all] Lake having a Small Lake to the Left hand or West Side, the Lake of our Rout run^s North & South & our Course due North this Lake but Small abo^t 250 Yd^s Wide & our Course then run^s in the Manner of a Small Lake Nore Nore West, leaving a Round Lake of about 2 miles round to the North or Right hand after the point of this Lake passed on the north Side of another spreading Lake full of long Grass & Mush Rat Houses at the Nore West End of which the Serpentine Run took nearly South & doubled around [a] point with Trees & passed still in the Manner of a Small Lake to the South from our first Lake to day to here about 6 Miles from here about $\frac{3}{4}$ of a Mile & the Course turns West Nore West Continued nearly this Course with Many Turnings but where the Stream would not be miss'd about 6 Miles to where the Run enter'd into another Lake at West. this Lake runs South East & Nore West about 200 Yd^s Wide of our Course taking the Turn to the South East. The Indian here informed me that the Carrying place was direct pointing from the Mouth of this Run which is West by South. We continued this Course 'till within abo^t $\frac{1}{4}$ Mile of a Bay at East & then took a turn up the Run which pointed Nore West being late & likely for a bad Night we encamped

⁹ Modern Big Portage and Base lakes, near the northern boundary of Washtenaw County. The main channel of the Huron flows through Base Lake, the more easterly of the two. Heward passed through Big Portage Lake and up Portage River (also called Hell Creek) into the southeastern corner of Ingham County, as described in the remainder of the entry for April 12 and in that for April 13.

Wednesday Ap^l 14th 1790. A rainy Night & wet Morning made it late before we started in about a Mile & half farther up the Run came to the portage¹⁰ which points nearly South or South by West I have gone across the portage & it seems about 2 Leagues finding it far & the provision short resolved to return to Thebeaults to get Corn sett off[f] with the Savage after paying him Duarriers Gun & a white Shirt & a little powder & shot for conducting us there & left the Men all the provisions & to pass the portage 'till my return. in about two Leagues East South East from the portage we fell into a Road where I knew & had been on foot to search for the portage while our Cannots were working in the wrong Fork from thence by the same Direction we arrived where the Cannots were when we got a Guide & return'd down to the Forks & near there we camped a Wet Night

Thursday Ap^l 15th 1790 Rose early at Day break & set off. We cross'd the Wrong Fork (so named from our going

Friday Ap^l 16th 1790 Rose at Daybreak & with M^r Godfroy went to find the Indian that he might not drink, found he had been drinking in the Night & seemed uncertain but still said he would go & sent to hunt his Horses in the Interim went to Sans Craints to get the Loading they were sending all their Corn to Detroit in a Batteau & M^r Thebeault said they could only spare me 2 Bushels I replied that as they were sending their Corn to Detroit I could relieve them of a Quantity thereof if the corn was better than payment & would save them the Risque & Carriage to Detroit & requested as I was to have two Horses to have six Bushels they could not deny this & said I could have it but sett all their Invention to work to make me pay high enough demanding 12ⁿ for Corn 4/ for Grease & 2/ for Sugar saying M^r Thebeault wanted all his corn & when here had said it was too little for the Bushel they had let me have. I desired them to refer the prices of all to M^r Jo^s Thebeault¹² & I would desire M^r Robertson to pay

11. On the Godfroy family see ante, 63. Probably the trader who befriended Heward was Gabriel, eldest son of Jacques Godfroy and Louisa Clotilda Chapoton, who was born at Detroit, Nov. 10, 1758. He was thrice married: first, to Mary Catherine Couture, Jan. 8, 1781; second, to Mary Therese Bondy, Feb. 14, 1795; and third, to Monica Campau, Jan. 14, 1817. He was the father of fifteen children, born of the first two unions. He was a trader and a man of force and influence in his day. He had a trading post on the site of Ypsilanti prior to 1796, and two of the four private claims at this point recognized by the American government in the period 1806-10, were awarded to Godfroy and to his children. He was buried at Detroit, Sept. 2, 1833. Information adapted from Denissen, op. cit.; Am. State Papers, Pub. Lands, I, 536; and Mich. Pio. Colls., passim.

Morras spilt a Quart of Corn & I protested to make them suffer for every thing mispent Camped.

Tuesday Ap^l 20th 1790 Snowed the whole Day & remained camped hulling Corn & C. Unloaded the Cannots at Night very stormy & a great fall of Snow.

Wednesday Ap^l 21st 1790 Snowed & rained all Night & to abo^t Eleven oClock & we loaded & set off. Discover'd that they had given on the Portage in my Absence about 4 lb powder & 2lb Tobacco. Went down the channel a current serpentine border'd by a small Lake on each Side Course to West & passed a Small Lake to South 'till about 1 oClock & came to a bluf point at the entrance of Another Lake on the North point at this place there entered another Run from North out of a Bay surrounded with pine & I went round to see its Course which came from due North a passable Current about 30 feet wide & both enter'd into this next Lake passed the Lake with a Current near the Middle a Course West & entered another & steered a Course still West leaving large Bays to the South at the West of this Lake found two Currents one the Smallest running North West into a pine Bay the other West by South & passing a high Ground of Oak to the South passed in this last nearly West to the Entrance of another Lake & [it] appearing to be a Stormy Night camped on a Small point to the South.

Thursday Ap^l 22^d 1790 A cold Night & a Morning threaten^g Snow we did not start early. Doubled the point & opposite to Nore West found a Run came in to that we were following which turned South & by Winding continued South & South West to Mid Day with a Grassy Lake on each Side at which Time we enter'd more into the Woods the Course West by Nore a strong Current & large Body of Water continued the same Rout nearly West & West by Nore the Wood very thick & many trees cut across to traverse 23 William Burnett is supposed to have been a native of New Jersey. He came west probably soon after the close of the Revolution and may have located for a time at Detroit. His permanent establishment was at St. Joseph, near modern Niles, Michigan, where he developed an extensive establishment and where he died, probably, about the year 1812. A considerable number of his papers are preserved in the Burton Hist. Coll. He was an outspoken partisan of the American government at a time when considerable courage was demanded to maintain such a stand. He married Kawkeme, daughter of a chief of the St. Joseph River Potawatomi, and this alliance assured his position in the trade of that region. They had five sons and two daughters.

All of the sons remained unmarried. Rebecca, the youngest daughter, was for many years a member of the household of James May of Detroit, where she died in April, 1841, at the age of fifty years. One of her two daughters became the wife of Francis Palms, and their descendants are prominent citizens of present-day Detroit. An excellent biographical sketch of William Burnett is in Mich. Pio. Colls., XXX, 85 ff.

²⁸ This was Jean Baptiste Point Sable (du Sablé, de Sablé), who has acquired posthumous fame as the first permanent settler on the site of Chicago. Quite probably other traders had preceded him here, but if so, we have no positive record concerning them. Sable is variously described by contemporaries (including himself) as a "naigre Libre" and "a free mulatto man"; hence has arisen the ancient pun that the first white man in Chicago was a negro. Concerning Sable's origin there is much uncertainty. At the time of the Revolution he was operating in the Northwest as a trader, with stations around the Lake Michigan shore. He subsequently proved to the satisfaction of a United States land commission that he had lived at Peoria prior to 1783, and that he was a citizen of the United States. His American sympathies are further evidenced by the fact that in 1780 he was arrested by the British authorities at Michigan City, where he was then trading, and his goods confiscated because of alleged hostility to that government. In the spring of 1800 Sable sold his property at Chicago to Jean Lalime of St. Joseph for 6000 livres (about $1200). The original bill of sale, with inventory of the property transferred, is still preserved in the Wayne County building at Detroit, and it discloses that Sable was a man of substance, with an extensive civilized establishment. The realty included a house 22 by 40 feet (the house, subsequently, of John Kinzie), a horsemill 24 by 36 feet, bakehouse, dairyhouse, poultryhouse, smokehouse, a stable 24 by 30 feet, and a barn 28 by 40. The live stock comprised 30 head of cattle "full-grown," 2 mules, 44 hens, 38 hogs, and 2 calves. Among the household goods were such items as a French walnut cabinet with four glass doors, a bureau, four tables, a couch, two mirrors, eleven copper kettles, etc. Sable's later years were passed at St. Charles, Mo., where he was living as late as September, 1814. He had an Indian wife and at least two children. He was evidently a man of powerful character, and practically all the contemporary estimates of him that have been preserved are of a favorable nature. Information condensed from M. M. LETTERS AND PAPERS: 1790-1791

FROM DAVID MERCER TO JOHN ASKIN

Reading (in Berkshire) 29th Ap^l 1790

My Dear Friend Do not imagine that my Affectionate esteem and regard for Yourself and family, is anyway diminished from not having written at an earlier period in the season but the probability of your hearing from us is greater by sending Letters seperately than together. I therefore fell on this plan purely that you might not meet with the like disappointment which we experienced the last Season it being the only Instance since our separation of not having the Satisfaction of receiving Letters from under either your own or Capt Grants hand, we can only Attribute it to the Chance of Loss which must be the consequence sometimes where the Conveyance is so precarious, however the Misfortune was partly Compensated by the pleasure which Phillis¹ received at the perusal of your daughters letter dated the 29 July last. nothing could be more desirable than the receipt of it especially as it brought those favorable accounts of the welfare of our very good friends in your neighbourhood, happy should we be, could it possibly be so circumstanced, that we could once more add to the number. God knows if that happy period may ever arrive, at any rate we are not without hope and some expectation of it. I assure you there are neither charms nor even Connexion in this Country should detain us, provided Circumstances for a future Subsistence could be obtained, be it in any shape or manner whatever, so as to cause the change to be eligible, but you know my good friend it would be imprudent in quitting that which I now enjoy, unless there was a prospect in some line of Life or another of meeting with that, which would make the Change desirable, in point of situation in Life, at present my circumstances remain as they were you have already been acquainted with them. I must say that we have some credit in keeping them as they are, as everything in this Country (& particularly this Neighbourhood) is remarkably dear, and you know, in our way of Life, there is no other possible method of adding to the Income but by a Saving on the principal, & it being so small with ourselves renders it impossible. My earnest wish is therefore to fall upon some plan or method for a future subst^{ce} so as to be able to realize the principal for the Benefit of my family, as I assure you, the reflections for their situation, in case of accident to myself, are attended with unpleasing & melancholy sensations. I wrote to Capt Grant the latter end of last month and committed the Letter to Mr Todds care as also will this, when in London I saw him I then learned that our friends were well in Jan^{ry} last, as he had received letters to that purpose, to C.G. who communicated the Regt^l changes. Bennett goes, or is gone, for America what his schemes are I know not neither to what part he is gone. L^t G Armstrong was his successor, as is L^t Saumarez to C^t Clowes whom (with his Mickmak^e money) also has retired. I cannot help being envious, being also desirous of doing the same 2000 was the price of each.² I may therefore I think estimate mine at the same value.

30th The Reg^t took their departure from England in March last for Guernsey & Jersey where they will probably remain two Years and then to Ireland. Our absence from them is on ac^t of it being my tour for Recr^t S^r which Service probably we shall be on 'till next March. You will therefore please to direct as heretofore it being probable that we shall not be stationary in any one place, untill joining the Reg^t at Guernsey where my Company is, as for publick Intelligence there is scarcely any that is worth Communicating or that is Interesting. Notwithstanding the Commotions in other parts of Europe, England yet appears to have but little interference with them, a dissolution of parliament is shortly expected, the ministers popularity deservedly Continues, & it is generally believed he will be no less so in a future parliament than the present. A Melancholy ac^t is within these days brought of the loss of the Guardian a 44 Gun Ship bound to Botinay bay loaded with Stores provisions and all other articles necessary for the Sustainance of every description of people there, and of which by the last Act^a from thence, they stood much in need of, it's one of those unfortunate events, which cannot easily be remedied as it was the only ship freighted with those necessary articles, from it dreadful consequences are to be apprehended. You will be pleased to acquaint your daughter that her Aunt experienced the most heart felt Sensations of pleasure at the receipt of her Letter, and it would have Contributed thereto if she could have seen the bearer of it, hitherto we have not seen M^r Hutchinson and perhaps may not, but any recommendation of Yours will be paid the greatest attention too, we had much satisfaction in meeting with L^t Breynton (of the 65th) at Portsmouth the 1st Sep^r last, when the 53^d Reg^t landed. You may be assured I was much gratified by the pleasing Intelligence that was gained from him, we likewise partake of that pleasure which must be truly grateful to yourself and M^{rs} Askin, wherein we find by Theresas³ discription of the family that you have both renewed your youths again, and that no kind of amusement has its enjoyment with the juvenile Circle unless Papa and Mama are with them, we most sincerely join in Congratulations at the pleasing information I cannot but repeat again our Inclinations and wishes are to be with you, frequently Phillis's mind roves and when walking in the room takes a flight across the Atlantic & arrives at Detroit in a few minutes, at any rate I can venture to say she's seldom by herself but her mind is occupied with reflections of the many happy hours passed at Detroit, it is to be hoped that some time or another we shall have a renewal of the like pleasures, She continues to enjoy her health as likewise do the children. She continues in Stature nearly the same, rather lustier than when she left you, the Girls have not profited so much as they might have done in their Education, as the mother could not reconcile to herself letting them go from her, she never yet has left

Jacques Lacelle, and son of Jacques Lacelle and Mary Ann Lalande. He was born at Montreal, Nov. 22, 1745, and came west to Detroit in early manhood. He engaged in the Indian trade, was long a British partisan, and finally settled at Raisin River, where he was buried, April 13, 1811. At the Battle of Fallen Timbers in 1794, Lacelle was one of the Detroit militia who participated as allies of the Indians. Unable to keep up with the latter in their rapid retreat, he concealed himself, to be taken later within the American lines. He was court-martialed and was on the point of being put to death as a spy, when he was spared through the influence of Colonel Hamtramck. In response to questioning by his captors he then stated that he had lived twenty-nine years in Upper Canada, twenty-one of which he had passed at Detroit and on the Maumee. For nineteen years before Harmer's expedition of 1790 he had lived at Miamitown as a merchant and trader. Lacelle died a bachelor. See American State Papers, Ind. Aff., I, 494; and Simcoe Papers, II and III, passim.

⁷ Probably James Allan, for whom see ante, 307.

leaving David in charge of the business at Detroit. He remained here until the dissolution of the partnership in 1795. He subsequently returned to Scotland, where he passed the remainder of his life. On Sept. 30, 1792, he, or another person bearing the same name, married, at Detroit, Peggy McDonald, who had been a servant in Askin's employ. Ms. record in Askin Papers, Dominion Archives, Ottawa.

12 The Marsacs were among the founders of Detroit, the progenitor of the line here being Jacob Marsac dit de l'Omtrou, who was born in the city of Poitiers in 1667, enlisted in the army, and came to Detroit as a sergeant under Cadillac in 1701. On June 12, 1706, he married at Montreal, Mary Teresa David, a native of Three Rivers. She was buried at Detroit, Sept. 24, 1727, and Jacob was buried here April 27, 1747. They had two sons, Francis and Jacques. Francis was born at Detroit, Oct. 22, 1706, and married here, May 18, 1734, Teresa Cecilia Campau, daughter of Jacques Campau and Cecilia Catin. She died in Nov., 1746, and Francis in Nov., 1777. They had nine children, one of whom was Jean Baptiste Marsac dit Panatchat, the individual here noted. He was born Aug. 26, 1739. On June 28, 1773, he married Geneveva Seguin dit Laderoute, daughter of Joseph Seguin dit Laderoute and Mary Teresa Tremblay. She was buried, July 20, 1793, and the widower subsequently married a Sautouse woman, Teresa Tacamanbinacouai. He was buried at Detroit, Nov. 14, 1813. He was the parent of several children by each union. Denissen, op. cit.

13 Joseph Cadet was the grandson of Michael Cadet, who was born in the diocese of Poitiers, France, in 1668, and married (first) at Quebec, Jan. 25, 1694, Mary Constantin, a native of Sillery, and (second) May 7, 1703, Geneveva Gaultier, a native of Quebec. Augustin Cadet, son of the latter union, born Jan. 13, 1709, married on Nov. 9, 1733, Louisa Elizabeth Lambert dit Champagne, daughter of Francis Lambert dit Champagne and Margaret Pilote. Their son, Joseph Cadet, was born at Quebec, Oct. 15, 1751, and came to Detroit as early as the spring of 1779. On Sept. 30, 1782, he married Cecilia Campau, daughter of Jean Baptiste Campau

1791, and in 1794 was trading in the Ohio country. A letter of Askin written to him, Dec. 5, 1813, discloses that he was then living at the River Thames. Probably he was the nephew of Gregor McGregor, named by the latter as one of his heirs and as executor of his will, made at Petite Côte, Nov. 23, 1810. See mss. in Burton Hist. Coll.

¹⁵ Jean Baptiste Prudhomme dit Nantais, born in Nantes, Upper Brittany, in 1733, married at Montreal, April 24, 1758, Margaret Bigeot dit Dumouchel, daughter of Pierre Bigeot and Mary Joseph Dumouchel. Their son, Jean Baptiste Prudhomme dit Nantais, who was born at Montreal in 1759, is the person here noted. In 1782 he married Mary Ann Dellard, daughter of Francis Dellard and Mary Ann Blay. He subsequently married (second) at Detroit, Feb. 21, 1798, Archange Marsac, eldest child of Jean Baptiste Marsac and Geneveva Seguin dit Laderoute. He was buried at Detroit, Aug. 12, 1818. Denissen, op. cit.

Detroit, known as Côte de Misère. Judith Prudhomme was buried at Sandwich, Nov. 4, 1780. Etienne Laviolette married (second) Margaret Angelica Descomps dit Labadie, at Sandwich, April 18, 1785. The bride was the widow of Martin Levry and the daughter of Pierre Descomps dit Labadie and Angelica Lacelle. Laviolette removed to the River Raisin at some date prior to 1791, where his wife was buried, Oct. 2, 1802, and he himself on Feb. 7, 1807. By his first marriage Laviolette left several children, and numerous subsequent descendants. Denissen, op. cit.

¹⁷ James Levry married Mary Tardy, and to them was born a son, Martin, in 1736. He married at Detroit, Jan. 22, 1759, Margaret Angelica Descomps dit Labadie, born at Montreal, Sept. 6, 1738, daughter of Pierre Descomps dit Labadie and Angelica Lacelle. They had several children, born at Detroit in the years 1758 to 1764. The wife outlived Levry and married (second) Etienne Laviolette, noted above. The eldest child of Martin Levry and Angelica Descomps dit Labadie was Pierre Levry dit Martin, the person here noted. He was born at the Coast of the Potawatomi, Detroit, Nov. 13, 1759, and buried at St. Antoine, River Raisin, Aug. 9, 1832. He married Mary Frances Cardinal, and to them were born at least two children, baptized at Detroit in 1791 and 1793. Denissen, op. cit.

Charles Smith²⁰ Clerk

McDougall was a man of historical tastes, and preserved until his death a collection of papers pertaining to early Detroit which were subsequently utilized by Francis Parkman in writing his Conspiracy of Pontiac. McDougall died a bachelor. Information adapted from Denissen, op. cit.; Robt. B. Ross, Early Bench and Bar of Detroit (Detroit, 1907), 142-44; Mich. Pio. Colls., XXXVI, 210-11; and mss. in Burton Hist. Coll.

²³ The Detroit Peltiers were descended from Nicholas Peltier, a carpenter, who was born in the parish of St. Pierre de Galardon in Beauce, France. He married Jane Roussy, who was born in 1622, and they were living in Quebec as early as 1637. Nicholas was buried before 1675; his widow was buried at Sorel, Dec. 12, 1689.

A grandson of Nicholas Peltier and Jane Roussy, Jean Francis Peltier, born at Sorel, Aug. 15, 1691, came to Detroit in 1705 with the family of his stepfather, Pierre Maillet. Here on March 25, 1718, he married Mary Louisa Robert, who was born at Lachine, Dec. 15, 1698, daughter of Pierre Robert dit Lapierre-Lapomerais and Angelica Ptolomé. Jean Francis Peltier was buried at Detroit about the year 1723; his widow was buried, April 2, 1776. They had three children: Jean Baptiste, born Aug. 20, 1719; Jean Francis, born Dec. 28, 1720; and Mary Angelica, born Sept. 20, 1722. Jean Francis died of smallpox in boyhood. Mary Angelica married (first) Anthony Campau and (second) Etienne Livernois; she died in August, 1762, and was buried under the church.

Our present concern is with the line of Jean Baptiste Peltier. He married at Boucherville, May 26, 1743, Mary Joseph Cornet, daughter of Joseph Cornet and Frances Le Beau. On Nov. 8, 1750, he purchased from Jean Baptiste Campau a farm at the Northeast Coast of Detroit, known in more recent years as the Leib farm or Private Claim 15. Here he lived until his death, although on Jan. 19, 1790, he deeded the farm to his son, Felix Peltier. He was buried, Jan. 4, 1802; Mary Joseph Cornet was buried May 4, 1807.

Jean Baptiste Peltier and his wife, Mary Joseph, reared a family of thirteen children, who intermarried with many of the families of early Detroit. The third son, Jacques Amable Peltier, was the person noted in the present document. He was born, Jan. 16, 1747, "at ten o'clock in the morning." As a boy of sixteen years he witnessed the occurrences of Pontiac's siege of Detroit, and in old age he narrated his recollections of the siege to Governor Cass, who reduced them to writing and later placed them at the disposal of Francis Parkman. On May 27, 1771, Jacques Amable married at Montreal, Magdelene Levasseur dit Chaverlange, who was born at Quebec, July 24, 1753, daughter of Pierre Levasseur dit Chaverlange and Margaret Petit. They reared a family of ten children. Jacques Peltier was buried, Nov. 18, 1825; Magdelene Levasseur was buried, Oct. 18, 1806. Information adapted from Denissen, op. cit.

²⁶ Probably James Swan, who a few years later was acting as the agent at Mackinac for Isaac Todd. In the year 1798, he went to St. Louis to recover for Todd payment for debts owing by the firm of Clamorgan, Loisel and Co. The mission was unsuccessful, and Todd in a letter to Askin speaks of his debtors as a "rascally" set. See Askin Papers, passim.

Kingston. In 1802, another letter shows, he was teaching in the Grant family at Grosse Pointe.

Another Joseph Thibault, contemporary with the above, married Mary Geneveva Deloyse. For him see ante, 347.

³² Charles Langlois of the parish of St. Pierre, in the diocese of Rouen, France, married Mary Cordier. Their son, Nicolas, born in 1640, migrated to Canada and married at Quebec, Oct. 26, 1671, Elizabeth Cretel, daughter of William Cretel and Jane Godfrey, both of the parish of St. Maclou, diocese of Rouen. Nicolas Langlois and Elizabeth Cretel lived their lives at Quebec, where the husband was buried in 1704 and the wife in 1721. They had one child, Etienne Langlois, born Dec. 17, 1673. He married, Feb. 10, 1698, Elizabeth Faucher, also a native of Quebec, daughter of Leonard Faucher dit St. Maurice and Mary Damois. Jean Baptiste Langlois, the person here noted, was the great-grandson of Etienne Langlois and Elizabeth Faucher, his parents being Nicolas Langlois and Magdelene Pilet, who were married at Detroit, Sept. 7, 1761. Jean Baptiste, their eldest child, was born March 14, 1762. He married at Sandwich, Jan. 13, 1789, Charlotte Réaume, daughter of Bonaventure Réaume and Jeanne Deshêtres. They lived at Sandwich, where Jean Baptiste was buried, July 18, 1821, having reared a numerous family. Denissen, op. cit.

³³ François Baby was a son of Jacques Dupéron Baby, and brother of Jacques Baby, for whom see ante, 293-93. He was born within the stockade of Detroit, Dec. 7, 1768. On Sept. 5, 1795, he married at Sandwich Frances Abbott, daughter of James and Mary Barkle Abbott. They settled on the south shore of the river opposite the town of Detroit, in what is now the heart of the city of Windsor. Here François Baby resided until his death in 1856. He was, during his active life, one of the foremost citizens of Upper Canada, serving several terms in the legislature as representative from Kent County, as colonel of militia, and during the War of 1812 as adjutant general. He retained his vigor of mind and body until extreme old age. See Casgrain, op. cit., 118-19.

³⁷ Pierre Frechette was born at Quebec, Feb. 2, 1751, his parents being Etienne Frechette and Marie Anne Dupéré. He was ordained a priest on Dec. 18, 1784, and in the autumn of 1785 came to Sandwich as parish priest. The following year when Father François Xavier Dufaux came to Detroit to take charge of Ste. Anne's Church, Frechette prevailed on him to exchange parishes. Frechette continued to serve Ste. Anne's for ten years, leaving Detroit shortly prior to the American occupation in July, 1796. From this time until his death on January 3, 1816, he served as parish priest of Beloeil and Saint Hilaire, Canada. He was characterized by Father Payet, in a letter written from Detroit in 1786, as "a zealous and pious priest, but a man of superlative tranquility." Information supplied by Father J. C. Plomer, professor at the Sacred Heart Seminary, Detroit.

⁴⁰ Thomas Jones was at Detroit in 1787 when he subscribed three pounds New York currency toward the salary of Rev. George Mitchell. See ante, 303. In 1793 one Thomas Jones served as interpreter to the Iroquois Indians in their negotiations near Detroit with agents of the American government. See Mich. Pio. Colls., XVII, 620, 654. Whether the latter was the Detroit resident of 1788-91 we are unable to determine.

In 1794 he was active as captain of militia in the operations against General Wayne's army on the Maumee. A year thereafter he encountered some financial disaster which compelled him to sell his house (probably the one here reported on) at Detroit, but certain formal certificates of loyalty of British subjects, issued by him, indicate that he was still here in the spring of 1796. He served as member of the Land Board for the District of Hesse in 1791-92 and for that of Essex and Kent in 1792-93. He was a captain in the First Battalion of Royal Canadian Volunteers from 1796-1802, and he served as a staff officer with the rank of captain in 1812. At this time he was in Lower Canada, and his service was with the St. Regis and Iroquois Indian detachment; a letter written by him from Montreal in August, 1805, preserved in the Burton Hist. Coll., may indicate that he had removed to Lower Canada prior to that date. He was captured by the Americans at St. Regis, Oct. 23, 1812, and died, Feb. 23, 1813. A petition to the authorities on behalf of his widow in the spring of 1815 indicates that the daughter of Detroit's former lieutenant-governor was then in a "most deplorable" state, her husband's death having left her "without the means of living tomorrow and [she] is this day called upon to quit her lodgings, at the house of poor people who cannot afford to maintain her." Information adapted from Denissen, op. cit.; Mich. Pio. Colls., XVI, 72; Officers of the British Forces in Canada During the War of 1812-15, passim; and mss. in Burton Hist. Coll.

42 Augustin Lafoy was the grandson of Anthony Lafoy, a native of the province of Poitou, France, who on Feb. 7, 1735, married at Quebec, Mary Elizabeth Moran, a native of that city. Anthony Lafoy was a wigmaker. His son, Augustin, born a Quebec, March 17, 1739, came to Detroit, where on Nov. 28, 1763, he married Elizabeth St. Cosme, daughter of Pierre Laurence St. Cosme and Catherine Lootman dit Barrois. She was buried, March 2, 1776, and he on April 9, 1788. Their only child was Augustin, the subject of the present sketch. He was born Nov. 7, 1764. On Jan. 28, 1793, he married Catherine Bordeau dit L'Isle Ronde. They had eleven children, born in the years 1793-1812. The Lafoys claimed a property loss of £800 in the fire of 1805, and Mrs. Lafoy received a donation lot the following year. Information adapted from Denissen, op. cit.; and Proc. of Land Board of Detroit, 171.

43 Amable St. Cosme was a son of Pierre Laurence St. Cosme, for whom see ante, 212. He was born at Detroit, Oct. 30, 1751, and married here on March 30, 1785, Geneveva Bordeau, daughter of Joseph Bordeau dit L'Isle Ronde and Mary Louisa Clermont dit Dubord, a native of Sandwich. They lived at Detroit several years, but removed to Raisin River settlement sometime between the autumn of 1795 and the spring of 1798. There Amable was buried, March 10, 1807, and Geneveva Bordeau on Dec. 21, 1829. Their five elder children were born at Detroit, the last four at Raisin River. Most of them were married at the latter place, with which the further history of the family is identified. Information adapted chiefly from Denissen, op. cit.

daughter, Susanne, married, Sept. 25, 1811, Phillipe Aubert de Gaspé, author of Anciens Canadiens. Information adapted from the British army list for 1790 and Casgrain, op. cit., 116-17.

Prisque Coté, the elder brother of Louis, born Nov. 8, 1730, removed to Detroit in the summer of 1771. He had married at St. Constant, on Feb. 4 of that year, Magdelene Lefebvre, daughter of Claude Joseph Lefebvre and Rosalie Pinsonneau. Prisque Coté was also a carpenter. He lived on St. Joseph Street, and was buried, Oct. 9, 1803. He was the father of four children, born between the years 1772 and 1779. Apparently he was the Detroit citizen here complained of.

An uncle of Prisque Coté was Charles Coté, born in 1704, who lived and died in Lower Canada. His son, Joseph, however, born at Lorette, July 16, 1744, came to Detroit and on Feb. 4, 1782, married at Sandwich, Magdelene Martin dit St. Jean, widow of Jean Baptiste Bertrand and daughter of Jean Martin dit St. Jean and Teresa Henault dit Canada. Joseph Coté was buried at Sandwich, March 11, 1803. He was the father of two children, Joseph and Pierre, from whom numerous descendants have sprung. Information adapted from Denissen, op. cit.

⁵⁴ Probably Charles Francis Girardin, who kept a bakery in Detroit in this period. He was a descendant of Joachim Girard, a native of Evreux, France, who married at Quebec, Sept. 27, 1660, Mary Halay, daughter of Jean Baptiste Halay and Mathurine Vallet. Their son Anthony, born at Quebec, Feb. 2, 1664, was the grandfather of Charles Francis, here noted. The latter was born at Pointe aux Trembles, Quebec, Aug. 22, 1739. He married Mary Louisa Lecerf dit Lachasse, a native of Montreal. She died before 1785 and Charles Francis married (second) at Detroit, on Sept. 14, 1785, Mary Louisa Leclerc, widow of Louis Dumouchel. He was one of the first associate justices of the Court of Common Pleas at Detroit, and a member of the first board of trustees of the town, serving in the latter office until 1803. Information adapted from Proc. of the Land Board of Detroit, 193, and Denissen, op. cit.

⁵⁵ Daniel Sutherland was a merchant of Montreal engaged in the Northwest trade. He was a native of Scotland, where he married Margaret Robertson, Sept. 1, 1781, and soon thereafter came out to Montreal. Probably he is the person described by Captain Daniel Robertson of Mackinac in 1783 as "a young beginner in Trade." Mich. Pio. Colls., XI, 392. For several years he was senior partner in the firm of Sutherland and Grant. As early as 1785, however, he was engaged also in trading enterprises with Donald McKay. On the reorganization of the North West Company in 1790, Sutherland became a partner, being allotted one share of the twenty into which the enterprise was divided. In 1793, Sutherland and McKay were encountered by a party of Hudson's Bay Company traders on the Winnipeg River. See Mich. Pio. Colls., passim and Davidson, The North West Company, 25, 62, 70. In 1800 Sutherland and three associates established the Montreal water-works, but the venture

A year or two later Sutherland obtained the lucrative office of deputy postmaster general of British North America, which he continued to hold until 1827. During much of this period he was also active in the affairs of the Bank of Montreal and cashier of its Quebec branch, to which city he had removed on receiving his appointment as deputy postmaster general. He was still living in Quebec in 1831, when the golden anniversary of his wedding was celebrated. See Canadian Antiquarian and Numismatic Journal, Third Series, III, 173-80.

⁵⁸ Probably Jean Baptiste Couture, who was born at Beaumont, Nov. 18, 1735 and married at Detroit, Oct. 25, 1762, Catherine Campau, daughter of Anthony Campau and Mary Angelica Peltier. The Detroit Coutures were descendants of Guillaume Couture, who married Magdelene Malet and lived in Rouen, France. Their son, Guillaume, born in 1617, migrated to Canada and there founded the American line. He was a judge of the Lauzon Coast and a faithful companion to Father Jogues, missionary to the Indians. He died in 1702. On Nov. 16, 1649, he married at Quebec, Ann Aymard, a native of the city of Niort, France. Jean Baptiste, here noted, was a grandson of this couple. He was buried April 22, 1799, at St. Antoine, River Raisin. Denissen, op. cit.

⁵⁹ Pierre Bourgeat dit Provençal was descended from Francis Bourgeat, who married Mary Clemence and resided in Toulon in Provence. Their son, Pierre Paul, born in Toulon in 1701, married at Montreal, Dec. 1, 1730, Jane Fourneau dit Brindamour, daughter of Jean Fourneau dit Brindamour and Elizabeth Price. Elizabeth Price was a native of Northampton, Mass., whose husband had been killed in the Deerfield massacre of February 29, 1704, and she herself carried captive to Canada, where she later married Fourneau. See C. Alice Barker, True Stories of New England Captives . . . (Cambridge, 1897), 206-207. The son of Pierre Paul Bourgeat dit Provençal and Jane Fourneau dit Brindamour was the Pierre Bourgeat dit Provençal here noted. He married at Detroit, Sept. 10, 1780, Catherine Vallé dit Versailles, widow of Jean Baptiste Peltier. They had eight children, born in the years 1781-95.

Translation

Came the plaintiff, Michael Houde,¹ a resident of the North-East Coast of Ste. Anne's parish, saying that his house was robbed of several articles, and that an Indian told him that a panis named François formerly belonging to Hypolyte Campau,² had the said articles, namely, two bed covers, two shirts, and some other things. On hearing this, the said Michael Houde went to the Indian's hut in the rear of the house of Baptiste Meloche³ and there identified some of the said goods in the presence of Charles Lespérance,⁴ but that he did not dare take them as he had no weapons and the panis was armed with a knife. Therefore the said plaintiff demands redress according to law.

⁴ Charles Lespérance was the son of Charles Moran dit Grimard and Mary Meny, the wife of Jean Baptiste Billiau dit Lespérance. The union of his parents was an adulterous one, and Charles, born, Dec. 25, 1775, assumed the name of his mother's lawful husband, Billiau dit Lespérance. He married at Sandwich, Feb. 24, 1800, Mary Pitre, daughter of Jean Baptiste Pitre and Mary Frances St. Cosme. They left nine children. Denissen, op. cit.

⁵ Francis Xavier Trotier dit Bellecour was born at Batiscau, Feb. 5, 1743. He was descended from Antoine Trotier, Sieur Des Ruisseaux, who was born in the city of Ige, France, and coming to Canada, married at Three Rivers, Sept. 2, 1663, Catherine Lefebvre, daughter of Pierre Lefebvre and Jane Aunois. Francis D^x Bellecour (as he habitually signed his name) came to Detroit, where he had numerous family connections, about the year 1770. A few years later he located at the pinery at the mouth of Pine River (modern St. Clair, Mich.), where he traded with the Indians, and where prior to the year 1780 he was in charge of the interests of Governor Patrick Sinclair. In 1792 he was again living at Detroit, where he held the office of notary. Before coming to Detroit he had married at Quebec, June 18, 1764, Mary Magdelene de Lusignan, a native of that place. They had two children, a son, born at Detroit in 1771, who died in infancy, and a daughter, Mary Magdelene Bellecour, born at the mouth of Pine River, March 18, 1774. She was twice married, her first husband being Francis Xavier Moreau dit Duplessy and her second, Louis Theophile Barthe, son of Charles Andrew Barthe and Mary Therese Campau. Denissen, op. cit.

Dear Sir The House has wrote you this day handing acc^{ts} Current from which it appears that the Balance will be on the 10th of April next £20217 exclusive of any Rum you may have taken to account. Sensible that the Interest of so large a Balance must for ever keep you back & whatever the sum may be which you shall finaly fall short being to revert against the late firm of Todd & McGill I wish much to put matters on such footing after the 10th of April as may give you a fair chance of unburthening yourself, more especially as our present House is to be somewhat altered by the introduction of my Brother Andrew⁷ as a Partner; and as the House are to benefit by the transactions they are to have with you it is but just they should run the risk of any eventual loss or disappointment, without the guarantee of Todd & McGill as has hitherto been the Case.

In order to Effect these purposes I propose that you shall pay off so much of your account next Season as will leave the balance £15000 net and this Sum I shall withdraw from the Books of the present concern altogether giving you five years without Interest reserving only to go towards payment of it annuallly so much as you may remitt more than your future account may come to with our new House. And as it may be necessary to obtain the assistance of a Friend to make up the £5217 the Season ensuing, I am willing that such Friend shall have a claim on your fixed property for so much as he may lend you equal to us, I do not mean in proportion to our respective Sums but that if £500 or £1000 is lent you, that we shall draw for no more when the fixed property is realized than the Person who may have lent you that or any other Sum sufficient to bring the present balance to £15000.

⁶ John McLean was a loyalist, who received a grant of land on the north side of Lake Erie below Amherstburg in 1787. See Essex Hist. Soc., Papers and Addresses, III, 72.

As this appears to me as liberal as can be expected and that I think there will be no great risk to the Friend who may assist you I should hope you will find no great difficulty in entering into & making good such an agreement as certainly you ought not to want more than £1000 and probably less if your Trade proves any thing tolerable.

It does not yet appear that the Seat of your new Government is fixed nor do I think it will be done untill Governor Simcoe⁸ has visited the different Settlements but I confess to you that I do not expect he will make choice of Detroit, nor would I advise your building any hopes on such foundation; he says M^r Robertson who is of the Executive Council will be out in the Spring but M^r Robertson himself does not say any thing of it to us.

I most sincerley wish & hope our Government may be able to mediate between the Indians & Americans, if the later are disposed for Peace they must relinquish the idea of getting the Posts and this I am afraid they will not do;

⁸ John Graves Simcoe was commissioned adjutant in the Thirty-fifth Regiment, March 27, 1772. He served in the American Revolution, being appointed in Oct., 1777, commander of the Queen's Rangers, which command he held until the close of the war, subsequently publishing at Exeter, in 1787, a history of its operations. In 1791 he became the first lieutenant-governor of the province of Upper Canada, and in this capacity played the leading rôle in the organization of the government of the province. As an administrator Governor Simcoe aroused lively opposition. He was zealous in upholding the interests of his country, and pursued a belligerent policy toward the United States which, according to one authority, was responsible for his recall from the governorship. He returned to England in 1794, served from 1794 to 1797 as commandant of St. Domingo, and in 1806 was appointed commander-in-chief of India, but died before entering upon this station. See Ontario Bureau of Archives Thirteenth Report, 172, and references there cited.

My dear Sir, M^{rs} Meredith intending writing fully to Yourself, and her Mother; I can have little to say only the pleasure of acknowledging Your letter which enclosed a Bill from M^r Fraser, the which I thank you having noticed; but as the House of Leith and Shepherd furnished me my Wine and regulary charged me with it, I could not conceive there was any account left; nor can I possibly recollect; assisted with my Servants Memory, the having at any time had more than One Gallon of M^r Fraser's Wine, the which is accounted for in my Expence Book, paid to Leith & Shepherd in their own Statement: it appears odd therefore

He married on Sept. 29, 1791, Princess Frederica Charlotte Ulrica Catherine, eldest daughter of Frederick William II of Prussia. They soon separated, and she lived thereafter in retirement until her death, Aug. 6, 1820. See Dict. of Nat. Biog.

London 26th March 1792

Dear Sir, Your letter of 6th of October is now before me,

and as the spring vessels are going in two or three days, I take the opportunity of replying. We have long ago been made acquainted with the complete defeat, & as it would seem, dreadful slaughter of the American army¹³ (of whom you spoke) by way of New York—and since by way of Canada. For the sake of our interest, but still more for that of humanity, it is to be earnestly wished that this barbarous & destructive war might have an end. Something will probably be done, but what, conjecture has not yet even rumoured. It is said the Americans will insist upon the posts as the means of enabling them to chastise with effect the Indians; while on the other hand, there appears no disposition here to comply with such a requisition—at the same time a new line has been suggested for a frontier between the Indians & Americans—it is to run from lake Ontario up the Genesee river to its source—thence into the obscure stream from whence the Alleghenny takes its rise, & following the windings of that river till it joins, or more properly acquires the name of the Ohio, is then to follow the course of that noble stream to the Mississippi: this you will perceive to be the old boundary line of Canada¹⁴ somewhat enlarged. Mr Todd & I have had some conversation with Mr Dundas's secretary on this subject, but what will be done, men in office you know are too cautious to say. We were also been with Mr Pitt, together with some other Canada gentlemen, on the subject of making Montreal a port; which probably will be done, in order more effectually to facilitate the communication between the two provinces—the interests of which (particularly the Upper) seem to engross a good deal of ministers care, at last. From what has been done in establishing a free government for Upper Canada, from the character & interest of our respectable governour, as well as from the executive servants of government now going out, who are all, as far as my knowledge extends, men of character, & most of them independent of their appointments—I cannot help congratulating the country, & anticipating its prosperity under such a government, & in the hands of such men. The magazines &c you mention will be sent with some for my brother: to them I shall refer you for news, only observing that the death of the Emperour of Germany, which was sudden, has had an effect favourable to the affairs of France, which are still however much deranged. I have often opportunities of seeing M^{rs} Meredith—she has a fine little daughter, & they seem very happy: she is a great favourite at Woolwich—that indeed she always was, & will be, wherever she is known. I am much concerned to hear that Miss Theresa's health was not re-established in consequence of her journey—I hope the winter may have produced a change. I bought you a Lottery ticket, which four days after came up a blank, as did one I was concerned in. The Bark, Knives &c are put up with our goods as my brother will shew you when he gets his invoice. I shall request leave to decline entering upon the discussion of that part of your letter respecting boats &c having [illegible] my brother: I am always ready to settle my own affairs [but] to keep other people regular, or to account for their mistakes, is a task that I cannot think ought to be expected from me. As to furs, business, &c you will no doubt hear from M^r Todd. It is not improbable but I may see you in Canada before the winter—at the same time I am not yet determined as to that object myself. In the meantime I beg leave to offer my most respectful compliments to M^{rs} Askin & your family, to Com^r Grant & his, & to all enquiring friends—with assurances of regard, I am, Dear Sir,

¹⁶ The founder of the Chêne family in America was Pierre St. Onge dit Chêne, born in the city of Barbyeux, France, in 1654. He was a tailor, and migrating to Canada, he opened a shop at Longueuil. He married at Montreal, Nov. 29, 1676, Louisa Jane Bailly, a native of that city. She died prior to 1700 and he married (second) at Montreal, Oct. 9, 1700, Mary Moitie, widow of Jean Magnan. The offspring of the first union were Mary, Charles, and Pierre Chêne dit Labutte, all of whom became residents of Detroit. Charles, the elder brother, born at Montreal, March 11, 1694, married at Detroit on Jan. 18, 1722, Catherine Sauvage, daughter of Jacques Sauvage and Catherine Jean dit Vien. Charles Chêne obtained a grant of land on July 14, 1734, which is now known as Private Claim 16, lying between Field and Baldwin avenues. Here he lived until his death, some time prior to 1755. His widow was buried Oct. 21, 1778. Their eldest son, Pierre, was born at Detroit, Sept. 22, 1724. On May 7, 1747, he married Mary Clemence Chapoton, widow of Jacques Marsac and daughter of Jean Chapoton and Mary Magdelene Estève. She was buried at Detroit, Nov. 20, 1753; Pierre was buried at Sandwich, Sept. 27, 1804. All of his four children died in childhood, two of them being burned to death in their father's house in December, 1752. The brothers here alluded to were Charles Chêne dit Caoussa, born Nov. 5, 1732, and Isidore Chêne, born Jan. 6, 1737. Information adapted from Denissen, op. cit.

D^r Brother, It is a circumstance upon which I have often reflected with peculiar regret, that during four years and upwards I have been in this country, we have never so much as exchanged a single sentence. It is true, your leaving home while I was very young, deprived us of every opportunity of being more intimately acquainted, yet I hope we will never lose sight of that near relation which subsists between us, nor wound by a longer reserve that sincere friendship which ought ever to accompany such a connexion, actuated by these considerations, I now take the liberty of commencing a correspondence, from a continuation of which I flatter myself to derive the greatest pleasure and advantage.

I stay here with our Brother James who is connected with a M^r Forbes, and carry on the retail business chiefly in provisions under the firm of Forbes & Stevens. James has been gone this some time past to London for the benefit of his health, which he has recovered, and is expected back soon. Sandie has been in Maryland these six years past, but appears not to like his situation, he lately paid us a visit but staid only about ten days and returned to Philadelphia. I dare say you have heard from him ere this as it was him informed me of the direction by which I now write to you.

I heard from my Father about six months ago when he and my only sister were both in health, the death of my Mother I suppose you are already acquainted with.

My dear Sir, An almost instantanious offer presents itself of sending a letter to Quebec by a vessell falling Down the Thames for that place and myself being upon Guard I seize the oppertunity of scribbling to you a few lines, well convinced it will afford you pleasure to know that we continue in excellent Health. I have made my Dear Archange aquainted with the same oppertunity and I suppose she is at present very busy in writing to her good Mother, who with Yourself and Family I trust enjoy the best of health, had not mine been originally good indeed I think the fatigue for these Five Months past of constant fagging, and Drilling twice, nay sometimes three times a day; would [have] in some degree impaired it. We are now perfectly adroit in the New System of Dundas, and the Movements of Cannon with it was put into effect some Ten Days past, before the King on Sydnam Common, w[h]ere we had a grand Review in conjunction with the Guards. but M^{rs} Meredith has informed me she should write her Mother the appearance which such presented to her as a Spectator; for As I Commanded a Division in the Battle [I] could observe no farther than the Smoke of Cannon would at times allow me. Many wry faces were occasioned by it, which afforded much Secret Mirth to the John Bulls who persued the Manouvres. Sworn before me at Detroit this 20th of July 1792

John Askin J. P. D. H.

This Agreed on to be made up the Parties has submitted it to Doc^r Harffy & myself.

The Parties Agree it should be left to Doc^r Harffy & Jn^o Askin, what Damages the latter should pay.

Endorsed: Detroit July the 20th 1792 Henry Ramsey his Complaint on Oath Agns^t John Stockwell

¹⁸ John Stockwell was a loyalist who came to Detroit prior to the summer of 1780, when he served in Capt. Henry Bird's expedition against Kentucky. He subsequently received an allotment of land in New Settlement on the north side of Lake Erie. He seems to have been a man of vindictive temper. About the year 1788 he obtained from the Indians possession of Mary Moore, who had been carried into captivity from western Virginia, and subjected her to a life of brutality and drudgery. In 1794, when the settlers were being called out for service against General Wayne on the Maumee, Stockwell was a militia officer and some of his neighbors refused to serve under him. In 1814 he was reported by a British authority as "thirsting" to distinguish himself against the Americans, and eager to lead the Indians against some of his neighbors who were charged with friendliness toward the American cause. See Mich. Pio. Colls., passim; Macomb, Edgar, and Macomb ledgers (mss. in Burton Hist. Coll.); and Burton Hist. Coll. Leaflet, V, No. 5.

LEGISLATIVE CANDIDACY OF DAVID W. SMITH

My dear Sir! The Governors proclamations are arrived dividing the upper Country. The 18^h County is called Essex, & is bounded on the East by the Carrying place from point au pins, to the River la tranche¹⁹—bounded on the South by Lake Erie, & on the west by the River Detroit to Maisonvilles Mill; from thence by a line running parralel to the River Detroit & Lake S^t Clair, at the distance of 4 miles, until it meets the River la tranche—thence up the said River to where the Carrying place from point au pins strikes that River. This said County of Essex, with the adjoining County of Suffolk (in which there are no Inhabitants) sends one Member. those who have certificates, only, I understand can vote. this tract comprehends the new settlers on Lake Erie who have generally certificates. Monfortons Company, who have none except they have rec^d them since my departure—& Maisonvilles Company to the Mill; in this last Space there are Inhabitants on 12 acres front just above the Church, who can vote by reason of their having french deeds, "En Roture" & those settled on the South side of R. la tranche, a few of whom have certificates, & where I myself am a freeholder! This damned Election business seems to bind me to the County, for You know I am not fond of deserting any Cause I undertake, & that of the public is most dear to me.

Should I be returned without an undue Election, or the appearance of party or bribery, I shall be most happy, & in that Case I beg an Ox may be roasted whole on the common & a barrel of Rum, be given to the Mob, to wash down the Beef. You will draw on me for the Amount. I should have great pleasure in helping to frame Laws, for Lands which I have had so much pleasure in laying out. M^r Pollard who is appointed Sheriff, is returning officer. The writs are issued this day & returnable the 12 Sep^r

¹⁹ That is, the River Thames. For a general account of this election, see Burton Hist. Coll. Leaflet, V, No. 2.

JOHN ASKIN PAPERS

I depend a good deal on your goodness, favor & affection in this business, & hope I need not make many apologies on that Score. as I have begun the canvas, I am determined to go through with it, & should I succeed, I hope to support my Character afterwards; we shall not certainly leave the province these 4 Years, so that wherever the seat of Government may be, or whatever may be the destination of the Reg^t I make no doubt but I shall be able to attend the Council & assembly Yearly. My having done the settlers business without emoluments from any Quarter should be some inducement to them, on the score of Gratitude to return me!

I rather think it is intended that the people who have french Grants on the Garrison Side should vote; as the Description of the County of Kent comprehends a great deal & sends 2 Members. it is said to contain all the Country (not being territories of the Indians) & not already included in Essex & the several other Counties described, Extending norward to the boundary line of Hudsons bay, including all the territory to the Westward & southward of the said line to the utmost Extent of the Country commonly called or known by the name of Canada.

Should Candidates to represent this County go a begging & you find I have no chance for Essex, I shall be proud to be returned for this County, but as the french people know little of me, I have not any hopes on that score. I am very ill at present myself, or I would certainly go up to Detroit, but if the people are sincere, that is unnecessary; & this will give it a fair tryal. You will do me a Service by delivering to M^r Pollard, the Names of those capable to vote,²⁰ which you can get from a small Register in the Land Office marked or rather endorsed "Certificates Granted," and another endorsed, "French Grants en Roture."

Madelene has been with us several days past, she desires me to say, she is well & happy.

If any of Monfortons or Maisonvilles Companys have received Certificates since my departure, I will be thankful to you to use y^r influence with them. Col M^cKee has promised me his Interest, so has the Commodore, & I think I may depend on Cap Elliot, George Leith, & a few others.

When I wrote you last it was Expected that Grossile, Rivers Raisin & Rouge would have voted with the New Settlers, but that is not the Case.

Jacque Parent,²¹ Laurent Parent,²² Claude Rheaum,²³

Laurence Parent, the second son of Michael Parent and Mary Ann Benoit, was the progenitor of the later Detroit line of Parents. He came to Detroit prior to 1731, and on May 24 of this year married Mary Joseph Daugat, daughter of Pierre Daugat and Margaret Guignard. She was buried July 27, 1734, and Laurence married (second) Jane Cardinal, who was born at Montreal, Aug. 12, 1717, daughter of Jacques Cardinal and Jane Duguay. Laurence Parent followed the trade of carpenter and joiner. To him and Jane Cardinal eleven children were born in the period 1737-59. One of them was Jacques and another Laurence, both of whom are mentioned in the present document. Jacques Parent was born, Oct. 24, 1742, and married on Nov. 18, 1771, Mary Catherine Cuillerier dit Beaubien, the daughter of Jean Baptiste Cuillerier dit Beaubien and Mary Ann Lootman dit Barrois. To them seven children were born.

There was another, and distinct Parent family at Detroit in the French period, descended from Andrew Parent and Mary Coudray, who lived in the parish of Mortagne, in La Perche, France. Their son, Pierre, born there in 1610, married at Quebec, Feb. 9, 1654, Jane Badeau, daughter of Jacques Badeau and Ann Ardouin. About the year 1672 they removed to Beauport, where Pierre died in 1698 and Jane in 1706. Their grandson, Gilbert Parent, who was born at Montreal, Dec. 3, 1703, married in 1733 Mary Susanne Richard. In 1742 he removed to Detroit, and traded with the Miami Indians. He was shot at the Maumee River, and buried at Raisin River, Sept. 9, 1750. Later his body was reinterred at Detroit. His widow, Mary Susanne, was buried at Raisin River settlement, Jan. 13, 1800. They had four children, only one of whom, Magdelene Parent, lived to maturity. Denissen, op. cit.

I am sure you will forgive me for Encl[os]ing so large a paquet to you, The most of them are for the freeholders on Lake Erie, all whose Names, I could recollect, the others, You will have great goodness by putting in train for their destinations. My father mends, Anne but slowly. My Mother pretty well. Love & affection to y^r Good family. The Gov^r arrived this day. I send an Express with this to overtake the Saguina.

Detroit. Permission was obtained from the priest of Ste. Anne's for them to be wedded by the missionary of the Huron "by reason of the ice and the difficulty of crossing the river." Claude Réaume's family connections were numerous and influential. An older sister, Susanne, married Jacques Dupéron Baby; another, Charlotte, married Pierre Charles Daneau de Muy, son of the commandant of Detroit; and a younger sister, Veronica, became the wife of Gabriel Legrand. To Claude Réaume and Geneveva Janis eleven children were born in the years from 1766 to 1790. The eldest, Teresa Geneveva, became the wife of Jacques Parent, son of the Jacques Parent who is mentioned in the present document. During the Revolution, Claude Réaume held the rank of lieutenant in the Detroit militia. Denissen, op. cit.

24 Baptiste Le Duc was the fourth child of Jean Le Duc and Catherine Descary, for whom see ante, 41. He was born at Montreal, Oct. 15, 1727, and while still a young child was brought by his parents to Detroit. On Oct. 12, 1773, he married at Detroit Catherine Bourassa, who was born at Mackinac, March 12, 1747, the daughter of René Bourassa and Ann Charlotte Veronica Chevalier. They had four children, all but one of whom died in childhood. Apparently Le Duc was a wagonmaker by trade; he volunteered for Capt. Henry Bird's Kentucky expedition of 1780, and a letter of Bird to Major De Peyster, written at the junction of the Miami River with the Ohio, June 11, 1780, speaks appreciatively of Le Duc's behavior and of his service to the expedition "in making shafts and repairing carriages." See Macomb, Edgar, and Macomb ledgers (mss. in Burton Hist. Coll.) and Mich. Pio. Colls., XIX, 533-34. Genealogical information adapted from Denissen, op. cit.

25 Jean Baptiste Ouellet. He was descended from René Ouellet, a native of the parish of St. Jacques, of Hautpas, diocese of Paris, who married at Quebec on March 8, 1666, Ann Rivet, also a native of France. She died in April, 1675, and René was buried, Jan. 15, 1722. For several generations the family lived in Lower Canada, the first member to come west to Detroit being Jean Baptiste, here noted. He was born at Kamouraska, Nov. 3, 1737, and settled at Detroit River in 1762. On Jan. 7, 1765, he married at the Church of the Huron, Sandwich, Jane Susanne Putelle, who

My dear Sir: Your Letter, which you honored me with gave me great satisfaction. I hope I may not be too much buoyed up with the hopes you give me of succeeding to the election. Your doubts about the right of voting on your side of the water will be removed before this. If therefore there is any difficulty in bringing me in for Essex, & one of the Kent seats goes abegging I should be flattered to be returned for that County. Mr Baby tells me, he wrote to his Brother François to set up for Essex, this may perhaps Cause some Confusion, as the french people no doubt will vote for him; & Cap^t Caldwell's Interest may perhaps gain him the Settlers on Lake Erie. Their Sentiments will I hope be sufficiently know[n] before hand, that I may not be set up without chance. Mr Baby told me however that he rather thought François would decline setting up; in which Case I should have his Interest; & at all Events, if François had made a party previous to his Arrival in Essex, & was likely to succeed; he would then give me his Interest in Kent.

I leave the weight of the transaction on your shoulders, & whatever you do for me therein, I shall be perfectly satisfied, & I believe I know You well Enough to think you do not require many apologies from me, for so much trouble. I will endeavour to repay You in the house of Assembly; if I succeed!

I wrote you in my last, in Case of Success to have an ox Roasted on the Common & to give the Mob a barrel of Rum. Mr Pollard tells me the hustings will probably be held for Essex somewhere about the Rivers Mouth. this therefore may perhaps be a better scite for the Beef & Rum. I am excessively unwell for a long time. I hope however to weather through the winter, & should I be elected, I shall pay You a visit in the Spring, to be chained! The Judge I think while here did not wish to give me any hopes of the french people, for very plain & substantial Reasons, & for this Candid behaviour I am obliged to him; as it has prepared me for the worst. I forgot to tell you that before the Governor arrived he wrote to my father, that he adopted all that he had recommended on the score of the Land business, which was nearly a Counterpart of the Boards Report, so that I hope Everything will go as smoothly with you there.

We are all excessively happy at the idea of Seeing You here. if you make any house at Niagara your hotel, other than the Majors, You are not the same John Askin you used to be.

Leith will give me credit for any little Sums you may find it necessary to require, such as putting up the Hustings, Boards &c, Cake & wine, Returning officer's fee &c &c &c.

Love to the Good family.

FROM WILLIAM ROBERTSON TO JOHN ASKIN

London 8th August 1792

Dear Sir, By the spring ships I had the pleasure of addressing you, and as the Nancy Paterson sails hence tomorrow, altho' I have had no letter from you, I cannot let her depart without a few lines. Indeed I have been very unlucky in that respect, for I have not had a line from any body in your quarter, not even my brother, since last autumn! I however hope you are all well, & had once some thoughts of coming out this fall to be convinced of it, but that will not take place till next spring, if even then; for I do not like to be locked up in a fort after breathing the air of freedom so long. I send my brother the papers by this opportunity, & by them you will see we are likely to have a general war in Europe, and that for the good of one another mankind are to cut one anothers throats! Russia has attacked Poland because they have with one consent established a better government than they had before: & the honest King of Prussia does not find it convenient to keep his royal & sacred word by supporting them, according to treaty; because he is going to help Austria to knock all the French on the head, as they have now too much liberty, & will not be made happy but in their own way. To aid in this pious & royal work, these two worthies, having only about two hundred & fifty thousand men, & fearing that would be too few for such honourable work, Sardinia adds fifty thousand more, & good old Catherine, affords a reinforcement of eighteen thousand for her share. This mighty host, under the command of his serene highness the duke of Brunswick, now on the Rhine, enter France this month. To this they object, & have on their frontier from Baril to Laydon in camps & garrisons about two hundred thousand troops of the line. they have about three hundred thousand national guards. the conflict must be dreadful: the Austrians & Prussians are said to be well disciplined, & there can be no doubt of the French troops zeal, or rather enthusiasm in the cause of liberty; but in subordination they are wanting. The consequence of this struggle to future generations may be of vast importance. to a mind possessed by humanity the prospect of carnage & destruction is truly afflicting! To our trade this is ruin, and there can be no doubt of a very serious diminution in the price of furs in consequence of this general war, into which, pacific as we are at present, we may be actors before it is over. The people here all execrate the Empress's attack on the liberties of Poland, and very large sums are subscribed to support them: they are not well pleased at Mr Pitt for not assisting them. With regard to France the people are more divided, every body wishes them free, but think they have gone too far. One thing you may rely on, that a spirit of reformation, some call it innovation, is secretly making its way in every country in Europe. The liberty of the press is diffusing knowledge among the mass of the people, even in Spain, Portugal, & Italy, where the press indeed can hardly be said to be free, & the great abuse of religion in those countries has opened the eyes of those who were superstitiously blind! We hear nothing particular about the posts. An ambassador is just arrived from America, but not for any special purpose that yet appears. Mr & Mrs Mercer were well by a letter I had lately from him at Dublin barracks. Mr & Mrs Meredith spent the day with me not long ago. they were well a few days ago when I had a letter from him. There is no domestic occurrence worth notice. Lord North²⁶ (or rather Earl of Guilford, but he is better known by the former title) is dead, & at the same time Gen^l Burgoyne²⁷ made his final exit from this stage. Peace is restored in India & Lord Cornwallis is coming home.

²⁷ John Burgoyne (1722-92) entered the army as a cornet in 1740, although not until 1758 did he engage in actual military service. In 1768 he entered Parliament, where he achieved some political prominence. Late in 1774 he was sent to America to reinforce General Gage, returning to England in the autumn of 1775. The following spring he was sent to Canada as second in command to Sir Guy Carleton, there to participate in an attack on the colonies from the north. This campaign proved abortive, and Burgoyne returned to England, disgusted at Carleton's inaction. He

My dear Sir: Since I wrote to you last I have received a Letter from M^r McNiff²⁹ giving me but faint hopes of Success, when at the same time I receive other Letters from my fri[en]ds, giving me hopes.

Every thing now must be left to fate, & Providence will now concerted a plan for a new campaign from Canada and in 1777 was again sent out, this time to have command of the expedition. It ended in complete failure and the surrender of the entire army at Saratoga on Oct. 17, 1777. A long dispute over the responsibility for the failure followed, as a consequence of which Burgoyne was retired from the army. His later years were devoted to politics and literature, and in the latter field, especially, he achieved considerable success. He died June 4, 1792, and was buried in Westminster Abbey. See Dict. of Nat. Biog.

²⁹ Patrick McNiff was prominently identified with the affairs of Detroit and vicinity during the later British and early American régimes. He was a man of positive temperament, which caused him to be involved in numerous disputes. He served as surveyor in the British period, and in the American held several offices, including those of sheriff and justice of the Court of Common Pleas. In 1802 his associates on the bench refused longer to serve with him because of his "odious" character. He died soon after this, for in May, 1803, the local Masonic lodge voted relief for his widow, doing so in terms which indicated that he had been expelled from the order. He was twice married, and had several children. A son, Robert, was owner of the only house in Detroit which escaped the conflagration of 1805. A daughter, Margaret, married Lieut. Porter Hanks, who surrendered Mackinac to the British in 1812. Coming to Detroit, he was undergoing court martial for this affair when on Aug. 15 a cannon ball, fired from the British battery on the south side of the river, penetrated the room and killed him. naturally direct for the best; I am so pestered with the fever, Head ach[e], want of appetite & withall so weak; that nothing else prevents me from setting out for Detroit, express. I would kick up such a dust in Essex, as never was there before, & I would scrutinize every vote, nor allow of any but such as were permitted by the act of Parliament; that is, if the people on Lake Erie, & the South Side of River la tranche were unanimous towards my election; for tho the Government don't wish themselves to introduce the Cabal of who has, & who has not a right to vote; yet it is all fair in a Candidate, & the Indians within the Reserves in Essex have just as much right to vote as the people of Maisenville & Monfortons Companys, who have no Certificates or Grants "en roture" of which there are only 5 that I know of. The Governor wishes very much that I should succeed, & in consequence he has prevented some others of his family from setting up for Detroit, that I might have no opposition on the Score of any Interest which might be made for them.

As I said before I hope the Sentiments of the people will be known in time before the poll comes on. I will answer your draft for the neccessary Expences. I enclose another blank address, which you may find it necessary to send to some one.

The Governor sends for me constantly, & employs me on many occasions, what with crossing the Water, & half a dozen Masters to Serve exclusive of God & Mammon; ill health & alltogether, I am completely fagged.

I have only to say, God bless You & Yours, & to tell You we long to see You at Niagara
Believe me I am dear Sir

I am favord with yours of the 20th May M^r M^cGill has been so employd in forwarding Goods &^{ca} that hitherto he has communicated Little to me on Business. I am extremely sorry to hear your Indian Trade has been generally bad and that you are among the unsuccesfull. I agree with you that pushing that trade answers no good purpose. I have strongly recommended to the House to curtale & Lessen our connections in that Trade, for when I consider the un-[c]ertainty of our retaining the Posts the Warr between the Indians & Americans, and the evident fall on furs I am convinced it is an unsafe & unprofitable business, and will continue so for two or 3 years I am certain there will be a fall on Furs at this Market this year of 15 to 20 p^rC^t and every apperance they will continue falling for 2 or 3 Years which has ever been the case, therefore untill matters comes back to the old standard those who do Least will do best. ENTERTAINMENT FOR DETROIT ELECTORS

Niagara, 14, August 92.

My dear Sir: All the Letters I get from Detroit give me favourable hopes, except those I receive from M^cNiff. they assure me of the Interest and Influence of Mess^{rs} McKee, Macomb, Park, Leith, Sharp, M^cIntosh, Elliot, Lamothe, M^cDonnel & several others for Essex. There is I understand however powerful Influences against me; however if I have fair play I dont fear, as I am assured that the Settlers, on Lake Erie and River la tranche will vote for me "neminé contradicenté," at least those are the words in which their assurances are represented to me. Perhaps I should have done better to have set up for one of the Seats in Detroit, as I hear only of M^r M^cComb who is to be proposed; but I did not then know they would be entitled to vote; besides were I thrown out on the 20th I might have had a chance on the 28th The french people can easily walk to the Hustings, but my gentry will require some conveyance; if boats are necessary you can hire them, & they must not want beef or Rum, let them have plenty, and in case of success I leave it to you, which you think will be best to give my friends a public dinner, & the ladies a dance, either now, or when I go up. if you think the moment the best time You will throw open Forsyths Tavern, & call for the best he can supply. I trust you will feel very young on the occasion, in the dance, & I wish that Leith and you should push about the bottle, to the promotion of the Settlements on the Detroit. The more broken heads & bloody noses there is the more election like, and in case of Success (damn that if!) let the White Ribbon favors be plentifully distributed, to the old, the Young, the Gay, the lame, the cripple & the blind—half a score cord of wood piled hollow, with a tar barrel in the middle, on the Common, some powder, pour tirer, & plenty of Rum. I am sure that you will preside over & do ev[er]ything that is needful, as far as my circumstances will admit. there must be no want & I am sure you will have ev[er]y thing handsome & plentiful.

Thus talked the woman to herself, when she carried her Eggs on her head to market, she sat them, she hatched them, she sold them for a Crown apiece, & then down she fell, Eggs and all, & the anticipations of a warm and fruitful imagination, were annihilated in a moment; thus, this is the situation of a disappointed Candidate, who is fed up with hopes from those who wish him well. As I am a little better, nothing prevents my setting off for Detroit immediat[ely], but the coming of the Prince³⁰ he is to be here about the 20^h, my fate is to be determined the 28^h.

Let the peasants have a fiddle, some beverage & Beef.

If my absence merely should be mentioned as a Bar to my election, You may assure the World that if there is time between the Returns bei[n]g made & the meeting of the assembly, I will come up to take the Sentiments of the County, & I will annually pay Detroit a visit, before I go [to] the Metropolis to meet the Assembly.

Dear Sir When I left Niagara, I was requested by M^r Smith to wait on you the moment of my arrival at Detroit, to assure you, how sensible he is, of the great obligation he owes to you and his other worthy friends, who have so strenuously supported his interest in the present contest for a representative in the house of Assembly: Be assured Sir, that I should have been extremely happy had circumstances permitted me to have made you a personal report of his sentiments on this occasion, but my late sickness rendered it necessary for me to get ashore as soon as possible.

M^r Smith (from the experienced goodness and partiality of his friends) flatters himself with the hopes of Success & he purposes, in that event, to make his acknowledgements in person, as soon as his present hurry of indispensable business is a little subsided: And Lest he should have omitted to make application to any of the Electors, he gave me half a dozen addresses with blank superscriptions, which I now beg leave to enclose to you for that purpose

With every sentiment of regard I have the honor to be

M^r Erskine

D^r Sir You will no doubt think it strange to find yourself addressed by a person who has not the honor of your acquaintance. I have only to offer as appology, that I am at least your namesake. I am the Son of a Henry Erskine a Clergyman who lived in New townlimavaddy in the North of Ireland, & who was born in a Town called Muff [?] four Miles from Londonderry. I came to this Country very Young, & before I had in my power well to know of what familys I belonged to (or rather to whom I was related) I was home lately, & was also in England. I was there made acquainted with a Widow Campbell of Liverpool whose Maiden name was Sarah Erskine. She told me she was nearly related to me, & also that She had a near relation living in Montreal, at the same time requesting I would endeavour to open a correspondence, & inform her the result. Her wish Sir is nothing more than that of mine, Viz to know who & how her relations are, & would feel happy in that communication.

I avail myself of this opportunity by a M^r Noel who I got acquainted with this Night at 9 OClock P.M. & who sets out at 4 in the Morning. he says he lives in Montreal, Knows you & that you live not farr from him, this I offer by way of appology, for writing so irregular a scrawl & so abrupt, but if I am Honord with your a[n]swer, hope for more propriety. I am Sir with every sentiment of esteem & respect your most Obed^t & very Hble Ser^t

Woolwich, Augst 27th 1792

Dear Sir by a Vessell that goes direct for New York, I do myself the pleasure to again write you from this side the Atlantic, and the particular satisfaction to inform you, of my dear Archang's health, as also that of her Daughters, who grows apace, She mentions having wrote a long letter to her Mother during my absence at Camp, which M^r Todd was good enough to promise her a conveyance for, and which I hope may be received Previous to this, as She says having wrote the particulars of the Campaign, which by the different Newspapers sent out to Canada during the Summer, I have no doubt by them, your having been apprized the reason, for which Government adopted so politic a measure, as the forming and collecting such a body of Men. I believe to have mentioned to you in my last, the Fears which Ministry appeared to have, for the Safety of our Constitution; which most undoubtedly was in some danger of being broke in upon, by Seditious, and ill minded men, (perhaps from Sinister Motives) enrolling themselves into Clubs, and Parties, with a view to enflame the peaceable Subject, and render him ripe for a revolt: however I have the pleasure to add, that the Ambition of such Men, has been kept under by a spirited, and timely interference of government. We passed an unmolested Campaign of about Three Weeks, and the desired effect has been produced by the Kings Proclamation, namely an end to disorderly meetings, and Party Clubs. &c. So much for recent Politicks. I shall now proceed to inform you—that the Encamp'd Army, consisted in all of about Three Thousand Four hundred Men, which took the Field near Whickham Bushes on Bagshot heath the

Of our own Regiment, we were near a Thousand Strong, and with Thirty Two pieces of Artillery, and all the necessary Train of Camp Waggon's Forges's &c &c. Upon our rout to Camp, we formed a line of March of near Two Miles in Extent. We pitched our Tents on the third day from leaving Woolwich and as the Camp was meant a flying one, (in case of Necessity) the Officers and Soldiers were ord[e]red to take with them but very little baggage; Consequently the Ladies of the Regiment (tho' the most esteemed part of its baggage) were under the necessity of remaining at Woolwich to defend the Garrison, untill the Corps returnd from the Wars: Our Encampment extended in length a Mile and Quarter, the officers Street most regular[l]y and beautifully laid out; and formed upon the Memorable Spot called Cesars Camp, from his having broke ground there, and with his Army occupied the same, when He invaded this Country, several of his Works yet remain, and are very fresh. * * * * * ³² So much for a hasty Sketch of our Proceedings during the buisness, which I must also say was attended with much fatigue, and as the weather was hot most of us returnd home some Pounds lighter than when we marched from Woolwich. I had the happiness of hearing frequently from my dear Archange, and that her situation was comfortable and contented, and her little Anne occupying her concern, and as letters from me to her, would I was conscious prove a consolation, I generally contrived to write her every other day, however fatigued I might be with the days work. LEGISLATIVE VIEWS OF DAVID W. SMITH

My worthy friend! I received your Letter of the 20^h In^s My Mother returns thanks for the apples, which you advise to be on their way. by the last Ship I transmitted you a Bill for £200 Ny. which with what I have in M^r Leiths hands may perhaps pay the Costs; if Not I beg for the accounts by Leith & they shall be liquidated, with a thousand thanks. We have done little as Yet, One Grand bill for the General Settlement of the Law of the Land will I expect pass; & we have passed a Jury bill in general terms thro' our house with some difficulty—a bill to enable 2 Justices to try for 40 [shillings] without appeal, is in great forwardness. Ways & means seem the great difficulty. one or two Committees for that purpose have proved nearly abortive. I proposed that [every] Landholder should pay one farthing P[er] acre P[er] annum for all Lands above 200 Acres, which I conceived would not burden the Settler, but the Court party & the popular party were both against me & I stood alone in the House. however

I am still of opinion that a Land tax, whether it goes by that Name or not, Must eventually take place. I act from principle. Altho I value the worlds opinion somewhat, I cannot conceive that one farthing raised by the House of Assembly can be deemed onerous, when the Magistrates in Quarter Sessions will probably have power to raise much greater Sums. FROM DAVID W. SMITH TO JOHN ASKIN

Niagara. 2^d Oct^r 1792

My dear Sir! Nothing very particular occurs, but I cannot omit scribbling you a few lines. I am unfortunate in my endeavours to do what I conceive would serve ye[?] in general. I proposed a bill to enable the Magistrates in Quarter Sessions to levy County Rates, but it has been thrown out. I have been of opinion also that the Magistrates in Q^r Sessions should choose the different County, Town, & Parish officers, but that it seems wont succeed either, Most of the Members being for a Town Meeting & that these offices should be elective. however as I conceive these Meetings to have been the Cause of [the] late unhappy Rebellion, & must always be attended with Riot & Confusion, it does not meet my ideas. I think the Majesty of the people should never be called together but to choose their Representative for the House of Assembly; & perhaps to assemble them without an instrument from the Governor may be illegal, & to force that Instrument from him by Law, May be an Infringement of His prerogative. I have been working a hundred ways to get your fire bill passed, & this day I have brought something into the House, which I think will succeed & answer the purpose. it is that whenever there shall be found in any space of half a mile Square, 40 Houses therein, it shall be lawful for the Magistrates in Q^r Sessions to make regulations for the prevention of fire in that place. The Great delicacy & difficulty started is mentioning the Name of the Town of Detroit. however as the Proclamation unquestionably in my opinion puts you in the County of Kent; I trust you will find no difficulty, as the bill is framed merely to serve Detroit. No answer to the Merchants Memorial, which on all hands seems as difficult as it is desirable to execute. The Etiquette of Courts is too often but Silence, when they cannot comply with the Petition; I fear by no answer being given to this, that nothing can be done therein, from the Knowledge I have of the L^d Dep^t. Th[e] Gov^r has thrust another troublesome task on my Shoulders, for which I have neither salary or fees, altho he has given me a Commission to act as Surveyor General til the King's pleasure is known. The Democratical party seem to think will lead me to think as the Government wishes, but I hope I am above bias, & I do not feel it at all incompatible to discharge my duty to my Constituents; & at the same time have regard to the general Interests of the Unity of the Empire. Our House of Assembly for the most part have violent levelling principles, which are totally different from the ideas I have been educated with. The Neighboring States are to[o] often brought in as patterns & models, which I neither approve or Countenance. I think Modesty should be the Characteristic of our first Assembly. I conceive it political, prudent & grateful & I am confident the contrary behaviour wont succeed to do the Country any good. Whatever may be the future prospects of designing Men; we can not at present exist without the Assistance of Great Britain; she has ever shewn herself a foster Mother to

Her Colonies, & any procedure which I conceive tends to divide the Interests of the Parent Kingdom, & all her Colonies, I will oppose with all my weight. on this principle I have voted against an add^l duty on Rum, first because I conceive it a Regulation of Commerce, & that the Parliament has reserved the right of imposing such dutys to themselves, because as Guardians of all the Colonies, she would not suffer one to infringe too much on the produce of another. Secondly, because West Indian Rum in that Case would pay 2^o the duty of Rum distilled in lower Canada, or at least nearly twice.

& thirdly I conceive that an add^l Duty on W I. Rum, tends to a partial Prohibition, & that we are only losing our time, & flattering ourselves with vain supplies, because I conceive the Governor has no power; or the parliament inclination, to ratify such an Act. I am thus particular, that if you think proper you m[ay] explain my reasons to my friends & constituents, altho not to give up my Letter; for altho I wish you to consider it confidential; there is Nothing in it I am convinced that is not worthy the Sentiment^t of an Assembly Man.

The family most heartily say! God bless you

P.S. I have been conversing in the Cabinet, the Leveé & the Office, respecting the Militia which I believe will not be organized this Year. I do not find any promise has been made to the Young frenchman⁴⁰ to be Colonel, but I rather think he will be appointed Sub Lieutenant of one of the Countys, in which case I suppose he wont take a Commission himself, but will probably have the appointment of the Justices & Militia Officers. I think it wont be for Kent, but cannot speak possitively.

Dear Papa: I received your letter with great joy and I am glad that all the family are in perfect health. I hope that the good God will show us the same kindness. I understand that Therese gets better and better every day. It is a great comfort to us who are far away to have such good news. About the winter, you tell me in your affectionate letter that whatever I shall do will be right. How rarely does one find parents such as heaven has destined for me! You say that if I wish to return, Mama and you will receive me tenderly. I know that only too well. It is why I rely so much on that relationship. I fear I am in no way worthy of all your kindness, and that of my dear Mama to whom I owe a thousand favors. I showed my letter to Kitty⁴² but she thinks as you do that it is a delicate matter and she leaves the choice to my own free will. It is very hard for me to decide, but often indeed one must make a hundred little sacrifices and I am glad, dear Papa, that you think it is one for me, but though I have never showed any feeling in the matter, my sister is always congratulating herself

I assure you they regret leaving Detroit. The family of Major Smith⁴³ assures you constantly of their remembrance. They were much disappointed after what you promised. Dr. Richardson was a native of Scotland, who had come to Upper Canada in 1792 as assistant surgeon in the Rangers. Until 1802 he was stationed with his regiment at Queenston, Toronto, and St. Joseph Island. Because of the impracticability of accompanying her husband to the two latter stations mentioned, Mrs. Richardson made her home, first at Queenston and subsequently with her parents at Detroit. In 1802 the Rangers were disbanded, and such as desired were sent back to England. Dr. Richardson, however, secured the post of surgeon to the garrison at Amherstburg, and remained in Canada. POLITICAL ACTIVITIES AT NIAGARA

Niagara 20 Oct 1792.

My dear Sir: Since I wrote to you yesterday I have rec^d your Letter of 13 In^s P[er] our good friend George Leith.

I shall certainly be acquitted for having proposed a land Tax, having at the very time a petition before the Governor & Council in the Name of my father & myself, for 6400 Acres, which is since secured or rather ordered in Council. this circumstance will be the strongest that I have acted from Principle, & should Malicious reports be spread, I beg you will promulgate my sentiments, situation & concern relative to the said Land business. Every one, myself included, are willing for a Rum tax, but in my opinion there is a difficulty or rather delicacy in imposing it. And I think the first principles of our Legislation Should be guided by modesty, & what will most likely class with the opinions of those, whose concurrence in sentiment the Law has rendered necessary.

The Young french Gentleman has been so strongly recommended at Quebec, & his interest is considered so valueable, that perhaps it would be reckoned indecent to attempt the thwarting of what seems settled; however I have doubts, that the Lord Lieut^a will take place; & I believe the General Cry is against it.

My interest shall be exerted to get you the Command of a troop. His Excellency approves of Horse in all the Districts, & circular Letters are gone to the Militia Commandants on the Subject, Col Englands recommendation would certain[ly] have weight, & should be sent as soon as possible, & the like recommendation from Col M^cKee, who would surely give it, will I conceive seal your wishes, & confirm the Appointment.

Dear Sir: I have had a good deal of Conversation about your light troop; I think the Governor wishes it much; but I would by no means have You neglect to procure the recommendation of Col^a England⁴⁵ & M^cKee. I fear there is no power in this Country to put the Cap^a of Militia on pay, or Even to pay for their Arms at present. Your Rifle is very good I think; but not altogether calculated for light Horse; it is rather too heavy, & want Rings &c^a as on all light horse Carbines.

I beg You will improve on the idea among my Constituents of My having a Grant of 1400 Acres within the Counties, & that I shall build thereon, & make some kind of My good friend! As this will probably be the last Opportunity I shall have of writing You before the Winter Express, I take up the pen, to scrawl a few lines; & to assure you how much I value & prize your Friendship. The Lieutenants of Counties seem to be a settled thing, & Commission goes up by this opportunity for Colonel M^cKee, appointing him for Essex, & I understand one of the same Nature for Kent is filled up for M^r Baby. these Commissions authorize the recommendation for Magistrates & Militia Officers. I argued much on this subject & made use of all the information You gave me, but to no purpose. as I suppose therefore You will prefer being in the list of Magistrates & Militia on the Essex Side, & as you have landed property there; You will of course be able to make any arrangements You wish under the Auspices of Colonel M^cKee; to whom I have written to be appointed a Magistrate, & not to be forgotten in the Militia.

As to News here, We have none, not even a scandalous story.

My very good friend. I have received your letter of 2^d November, which gave me its usual satisfaction. I do assure you upon my honor, I have done every thing in my feeble power to get your wishes gratified; I am bound to it not only from Inclination & Gratitude but from Honesty, for I consider my self much in your debt, but I am sorry to say my interest seems very feeble to the accomplishment of your desires. I am afraid you have conceived I am a favorite with the Governor; so far as a discharge of the trusts committed to my care, entitles me to it; I believe I am, but beyond that, I know nothing of the Cabinet. however I have not failed to oppose the measures which seem odious to you, nor feared to say so. the Interest which brought the Young French Gentleman into the Councils, has prevailed in having him appointed Lord Lieutenant for the County of Kent, & that interest was not only planted previous to the Governments taking place, but seems to have taken exuberant Root in Quebec; where his

I thank you for your political information: your new government I think must give you general satisfaction: it is that system I have ardently wished as the greatest good that could befall Canada: temper & moderation in the new legislators will do as much good as more shining abilities, which can not always be found in a country so new. I think you [were] right on your own account in declining a [seat in] the assembly. for the public interest, perhaps I could have wished it otherwise. I shall not fail to put you in fortune's way by purchasing you a ticket in the lottery. if she had not been blind, I think she would not have passed you by so often. I hope she will reward your constancy & patience; for my part I have no opinion of her. I shall also send you a seal, now I know of what kind you want it. Goods of every kind are very high, & likely to be higher. Of the astonishing successes of the French, & other political matters you will hear from M^r Meredith who no doubt writes you. We are preparing for war, & in order to support Holland against France. I fear the worst. Our prospect as to furs is very gloomy indeed.

FROM JOHN ASKIN TO THOMAS SMITH¹

Detroit January the 5th 1793

Dear Sir: I have just received your letter of the 31st Dec. and as it was always my intention, so soon as the ice was good to send out a sloop by which you could come in so as we might have some conversation together, and as I have still the same desire, I will for the present only give a few general answers to what you have wrote me. First respecting Lafond² I would never wish to trust a man that requires watching; but as it is done & perhaps I would have done the same, I now [wish] every fair means may be taken to get all you can from him & all others that owe for surely in so small a trade I find the debts very considerable, & many of them I fear very doubtful, so much so that I would now take the same articles that were given, back again in payment. when I have seen you we will determine whether or no it will be best to send M^r Norton³ to Lafond, for whilst you are in

³ John Norton was a half-breed, his mother being Scotch and his father a Mohawk. He was educated in England and seems to have enjoyed the favor of Joseph Brant, upon whose death in 1807 Norton put himself forward as principal chief of the Mohawk. According to another account Norton was a Scot who served as a private in the British army, from which he obtained his discharge in 1788 and subsequently settled on the Grand River and "assumed all the appearances, habits, and manners of the Indians." Whatever his ancestry, there is no doubt that Norton posed as a chief of the Mohawk, and was accepted as such by the British Indian Department. An entry in John Askin's Journal, April 25, 1798, indicates that he was then interpreter at Niagara and that he had formerly been engaged in trade. He was active in the War of 1812, and commanded the Mohawk in the battle of Queenston. He seems to have been regarded by the British authorities as a man of undoubted ability and influence, but much given to scheming and intrigue. He died sometime subsequent to March 3, 1819; where and how, is unknown. See Canadian Archives Report for 1896, viii, ff.

here it is my intention that he takes care of the property until your return. The task will be very easy as I never in future intend any trust shall be given. At the rate dry goods are selling in the Indian country, both by your account & others, I would not take the 30 packs of racoons Rouleau⁴ made and give what they cost if you were to give a £100. My sole dependance in your quarter is on rum, bread the blacksmith's work &c; if these will produce any thing very well, if not I can take them back & be much better pleased than to see them gave for bad debts, you have not a pins worth of dry goods, but what I could sell here for a sure profit, and unless you can do the same, I mean to have them brought back on slays, for it is very hard for me to be paying cash dayly for Indian goods, whilst I have some in the Indian country either unsold or what is worse must be given in credit to those who never will pay. To buy any dry goods, to send to the Foot of the Rapids, I never will except something very trifling. All I beg of you is, & I will be satisfied and endeavor to satisfy you also, to drop this uncertain part of the trade, to collect all you can of the debts due, and not make new ones, to prepare wood for kegs of all sizes & dispose of your rum so as to make 24/ or more per gallon & not less. If you strictly adhere to these rules both you & I will suffer less anxiety and I am sure have more satisfaction in the end & be assured If you act agreeable to these my wishes, I will always be satisfied whether you make packs or not. I shall make only one remark relative to the Indian trade, or what the trader[s] generally say & that is when an article or two is wanting, it would seem as if all others were not worth anything, it is very different with us, for tho' I am out of more than 20 articles, I still can sell such as I have.

POLITICAL ACTIVITIES IN LOWER CANADA

Dear Askin I was favoured whilst at Montreal with your esteemed Letter of the 2^d of November and as there will probably be no other opportunity of addressing you than this express untill the Spring I cannot let it pass without dropping you a few lines in return. your partiality to me I have long known and if I can discharge the duties of the public employments I have been raised to equal to your wishes I shall not be apprehensive of forfeiting the good opinion which others have the goodness to entertain of me. I can answer for my heart but the Head may be wrong at times.

Our Legislature met on the 17th ult^o and as you will no doubt see our newspapers I need not take up your time with repeating the Governors Speech, the addresses of the two Houses &c but referr you for them to the Gazettes.

Hitherto our time has been taken up in framing Rules for proceeding to business so that no Law has yet been brought forward and we have a point to discuss which I fear will set us at variance for the Canadian Members will have all civil Laws passed in the French Language & only a translation of them in English. you will readily suppose that no Englishman can agree that a small Province shall treat the mother

⁶ William Dickson, born in Dumfriesshire, Scotland, in 1769, migrated to Canada along with his brothers, Robert and Thomas, about the close of the Revolution. Robert, the eldest, entered the fur trade and was prominent in the Northwest for a generation, being particularly active in influencing the Indians west of Lake Michigan to support the British cause in the War of 1812. He died at Drummond Island in 1823.

William Dickson settled at Niagara, where he became a barrister and where most of his life was passed. In April, 1794, he married Charlotte Adlam, whose father was a captain in the British navy. During the War of 1812 Dickson was carried captive to Albany, and in his absence from home his house was burned by the Americans. In November, 1815, he became a member of the parliament of Upper Canada. In 1811 he had acquired a tract of some 94,000 acres of land on Grand River where now is the city of Galt, and for a number of years after the war he devoted his energies to colonizing and developing this property. In 1827 he made his residence at Galt, but returned to Niagara in 1836. Here he died, Feb. 19, 1846. He had three sons, Robert, Walter, and William; the last two were barristers at Niagara, the first-named resided at Galt. A somewhat extensive sketch of Dickson's career and ancestry is contained in Niagara Hist. Soc. Publications, No. 30 (Welland, 1917).

Dear Sir: By the arrival of Mr Leith here the 3^d of this month, I had the pleasure to receive your obliging letter of 10th October; both from it, & from the more ample detail of Mr L—, I was particularly happy to find your family, as well as yourself, in so good a state of health; that you had had such a fine season, & that the general tenour of affairs in your settlement wore an aspect so promising, circumstances which will never cease to give me the most heartfelt pleasure, & to promote which, I shall never think one of the least of my duties; at the same time I do not find myself disposed, for many reasons, to revisit you again at present. The system of political government laid down for Canada, if pursued with temper, moderation & discernment, I am persuaded is capable of producing the fairest & happiest consequences to the colonies, as well as to the parent state.

As this goes out by the way of New York in the care of a young man I am sending out to my brother, & as I shall send all the newspapers &c by him to the present date, I shall therefore refer you to them for the political events of the day, the most interesting & astonishing that the page of modern or even ancient history ever recorded. For the cause of liberty (for the best cause may be disgraced by the mode & means of carrying it on) I regret the violent & sanguinary conduct of the French on many occasions, but their execu-

COMPLAINT AGAINST AMERICAN SPY

Personally appeared before me John Askin Esquire one of His Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the western district, John Miller of Detroit Mariner and voluntarily declared on Oath that a man who lately came from the American States and calls himself William Erwin,⁹ came to his house one evening about the Tenth of March last and asked leave to stay there all night; that after some conversation he said to Miller you are a great fool to stay here, if you will come with me I will make a Gentleman of you. I am come lately from the American States and intend returning there soon and that on Millers telling him he had no inclination to leave this Country he said well if you will not go to the States, will you go round the works with me? I wish to know the weakest part of the Fort. That Miller replied he would not; on which Erwin told him that if he would not go with him he would go himself. That Miller then said if he went out of his house that night he should not return. That this and such conversation had continued till between Twelve and one oClock at night. That he then gave him some Blankets to Lie on locked his Door and Erwin went to Bed. That he returned and slept at his house for four or Five nights more during which time he frequently made proposals to said Miller to assist him in examining the works of the Garrison and going with him to the States and that he got Paper from said Miller to Draw a Scetch of the Fortifications, which Scetch he Afterwards shewed to s^d Miller He added that he meant only to work for a month or so here and then go back for that a large Army would come against this place sooner than he Miller expected. That then those who Used him well should be rewarded, but those who treated him otherwise should be Marked. That on Miller's telling him once that he suspected he was a Spye he Answered its no matter to you what I am.

FROM ARCHANGE MEREDITH TO JOHN ASKIN

Woolwich 7th April 1793

My dear Father It affords me no small pleasure to address you, and inform my good Parents that admist [amidst] all this bustle of War, my dear husband is still with me, and not as I dreaded, ordered away on foreign service, for tho many of the officers are now serving in Holland against the French, it has not yet reached M^r Merediths turn upon the roster, but he is now within one of them, how long he may be allowed to remain here I can not say, but I hope at least, till after I have recovered from my confinement, which I expect will be the beginning of next Month, but should he unfortunately be ordered, it is essential I should submit to the seperation, as it is proper every Soldier should take his tour of duty, and I know his disposition to be such, that he would never shrink from attending any service he may be ordered upon, however painfull it might be his parting with me, which without vanity I can assure My dear Father, would be as distressing on his part as that of my own. It seems we are daily getting the better of the French, which I heartily rejoice at, as I think such a set of cruel wretches as those who have caused such horrid massacres, ought to be extirpated from the Earth, and I am happy to find that the generality of people in this Kingdom, possess the same opinion, which was plainly evinced by the general mourning worn in this Country, for the late unfortunate Louis, the sixteenth. There is a report for some days past, of a counter revolution in Paris, but it is not yet confirmed, I think it not at all improbable as no doubt, many were against the King being beheaded, but their party was so weak at the time, that they dared not declare their sentiments. You will excuse me my dear Father for being so bad a politician, I do not pretend to it, what I have said, is the prevailing talk, but the Papers of which you have a sight, will give you every information, respecting the proceedings of the National Convention, and the affairs of France, so much my dear Father for this subject, at which I am but a lame hand. We received a letter the other day from Cap^t Mercer, who is now at Uxbridge, after a short stay in Ireland, they all enjoy health he is come home on the recruiting service, and I suppose will be fixed in this Country for some time, they mention not having heard a long time from you, tho I believe you are very punctual at writing them, I am happy at having no reason to make the same complaint, and beg to express my gratitude, to my dear Parents, for that great mark of their affection, and attention, which does not permit them to miss an opportunity of writing me, my dear Meredith renders me very happy by searching opportunities of conveying letters to you, and gives me the earliest intelligence of it, therefore it would be unpardonable did I not seize it immediatly. * * * *

Tho I say it my dear Parents, few Women are so happy as your Archange, who is fully sensible that she possesses the entire affection of the best of husbands, one who sacrifices every thing for my comfort, and happiness, and there cannot be a greater proof of tenderness, from a man who has always been used to the best of company, than the decided preference which he gives to mine. Our society here is extremely pleasant, amongst whom are some very good chess players, and M^r Meredith frequently wishes that the Commodore was one of the party, it is held once a week at each others houses, un petit souper, a bon marché, which consists of toast and ale, a l'angloise &c &c closes the evening, I begin to know a little of the game which I find very pleasing and interesting.

M^r Meredith is now on guard about a mile from me, and before he went begged I would insert his kind love to you all, he means by the same opportunity to write you, I shall not see him till eight oclock tomorrow morning, when he will be releived, and come home to breakfast, the guard mounts at seven, which is rather early, but rising earlys wholesome, the nights that M^r M. is on guard, the two maids and myself protect the house, and as my dear Meredith has taught me to fire a pistol sans peur and there is always a brace of them loaded on the mantle peice of the room in which I sleep, I am under no uneassiness whatever during the night.

When promotion shall make my dear M a Cap^t Lieutenant, which cannot be long from the vacancys which fall, he will endeavour to procure an exchange to Canada, should he not legally fall into those Companys, therefore my dear Parents I beg you will make yourselves happy in the idea, that please God we all live for some years longer, we shal have the happiness to meet again, a circumstance which I anticipate with the utmost delight, the dear little Family I left at home will be quite grown, kindly remember me to them all, with assurances of my love, I intend writing my dear Mother and Sister by the next opportunity, My dear Mother will take this letter in part for her, as it is meant so; in respect to fashions I can only inform the female part of the family, that low crowned chip hats, with large bows of strip coloured ribbon, is the prevailing system, with frilld calico jackets, and broad sashes, and nothing is now so vulgar for either gentlemen, or lady, as to be seen with a silk stocking that appears the least blue, Mr Meredith joins me in kind esteem to the Commodore my aunt and cousin Grant. my affectionate regard attend you all and beleive me your ever loving Daughter

PROGRESS OF THE FRENCH REVOLUTION

London 10th April 1793.

Dear Sir, I wrote you 31st January since which I have not the pleasure of any of yours to reply to. By the present opportunity I send you the little articles you mentioned. they are put up along with my brother's, except acts of parliament relating to the office of a justice of the peace, which are too voluminous in my opinion for your use, for almost every statute is more or less connected with that matter—& I know none better than Bram [?] which you no doubt have. I bought you a lottery ticket, & I wish I could announce better success than a £20 prize, it cost £15. I may as well keep it & try your fortune with it again. Before this reaches you, you will have learnt the great fall of furs, & that the war, in which we are now parties against France is likely to produce a further depreciation of their value. It has produced a total stagnation already in almost every branch of trade & manufactures, a total stop to credit & confidence, bankruptcies of the most alarming magnitude, generally thirty in a week, where the distress will end we know not. The success of the French was rapid, their losses & defeats have been equally so. After various battles, in which many thousands fell on both sides, they have been driven out of the Austrian Netherlands. The country is torn with intestine commotions & insurrection. Dumourier, their general-in-Chief was suspected by the Convention of treachery: they sent commissioners to arrest him & bring him to their bar. he arrested their commissioners, sent them as hostages to the Austrian general for the safety of the young king & royal family at Paris, to which place he ordered his army to march, to dissolve the Convention, restore royalty & establish order. we have just heard, that finding he could not depend on his troops for this purpose he has deserted to the enemy with a squadron of horse. What effects this may have produced in Paris we are not yet informed, but I fear most horrid carnage will be the result. When the distractions, or how, of that devoted country will end God only knows, & I fear by their violence they have lost the fairest opportunity of establishing a free government that ever was within the reach of any people ancient or modern!

Capt. Mercer & his family are at Uxbridge. they were very well a day or two ago, as were M^r & M^{rs} Meredith, from all of whom you will no doubt hear by this opportunity.

I beg my compliments & best wishes to Com^r Grant & family, to M^{rs} Askin & all the rest of your family, & believe me,

Dear Sir, Your very humble servant

William Robertson

J. Askin Esq^r

P.S. Ap^l 27th The detention of the ships at Portsmouth for convoy gives me an opportunity of filling up the sheet. Since the 10th little else has taken place but failures & bankruptcies. they are now so numerous, & of such magnitude that ministry seem alarmed & are going to submit a plan to Parliament for issuing four millions of exchequer bills to assist such houses as have actually property but from the present great scarcity of money cannot convert it into cash. Many are sanguine in their expectations that this will relieve the evil that now oppresses & threatens general ruin to trade, but I do not think it. It is singular to see the minister, after borrowing six millions to carry on the war, going to lend four, when he himself must soon want other six! In the mean time troops are embarking to assist our allies to "subdue the French & bring them to reason, & to establish order in that devoted country"! The French are so far from feeling the obligation that they are preparing to resist with all their power. The defection of Dumourier did not [as] was expected & reported, produce any tumult at Paris or in the provinces: much altercation indeed took place in the convention, but neither signs of fear nor submission. Gen^l Dampie[r]re was appointed to command & has been very successful in collecting their army together in the neighbourhood of Valenciennes; recruits & reinforcements are moving from all quarters to join him. the Convention have ordered their army to be raised to the number of one million of effective men. the insurrections have been quelled, with great slaughter of the insurgents in the field, & much bloodshed on the scaffold. They have taken a great many Dutch & English ships in the Mediterranean, but we here of no marine operations as yet of importance. I am sorry to say that by last accounts, of very recent dates, Furs are a mere drug at China, & report [?] actually coming home again; that here the furs that were sold at last sales, altho' then at a great loss, would not now bring within twenty percent of the price, & the purchasers will lose by them. As to next year I should not be surprised if Racoons were at $\frac{1}{2}$ or $\frac{1}{6}$ here!

a certain Loss this Year and can only be remedied in future by a different mode of trade, and not giving half the value you now give for Furrs, and of course not have occasion for half the Indian Goods, knowing this and that many more Goods was ordered then was necessary, I thought it for your Sons Interest and all concerned Not to have his order for Indian Goods executed as you, and the House at Montreal will have more then there will be wanted and he can be

LEGISLATIVE PROCEEDINGS AT NIAGARA

. 25 June. 93

My dear Sir! I was long flattered with the Hope of seeing You.

I am disappointed, particularly as you complain of your health.

Do send my account. I asked 2 or 3 for the petition against the Contract. It was not then delivered, I understand it now is. & if I have interest enough, you shall have particulars. the Contract is generally complained of. I have not seen your advertisement.

We have made no law to free the Slaves. all those who have been brought into the Province or purchased under any authority legally exercised, are Slaves to all intents & purposes, & are secured as property by a certain act of Parliament. they are determined however to have a bill about Slaves, part of which I think is well enough, part most iniquitous! I wash my hands of it. A free man who is married to a Slave, his heir is declared by this act to be a slave. fye, fye. The Laws of God & man cannot authorize it.

RELATIVES OF JOHN ASKIN

Detroit Upper Canada July 1 1793.

Dear Sir I was some time ago favoured with your Letter of y^e 18^h Aug^t last to which you should have had an Immediate Answer had I Known by what means to have had it Conveyed with Safety to you for the M^r Noal who was so Kind as to take charge of y^r letter never came here nor Even wrote me so that I'm at a loss to Know who he is tho Acquainted with Several of that name I can never Sufficiently thank you for your Kindness in Endeavouring to give me Information Respecting my family who by the last Accounts I Rec^d from Ireland (which is long since) are Dead or so disperced that I could not Obtain any Satisfactory Account of them. I have the misfortune to say that I never have met with any Relati[ve] of mine in this Country, M^r Richard Rea an uncle of mine Excepted who died at New Y^k several Years ago. for y^r Information & that of M^{rs} Campbell & in hopes of discovering in one or both of you some part of my family I have to say that I was Born at Aughnacloy in the North of Ireland in 1739 that my Father was a Shop Keeper in that Town his name James & my Mother name Alice Rea, that I had two Brothers the Elder named William & the Youngest Robert, as also two Sisters the Elder named Mary & the youngest Named

Letter to M^r D^d Robertson & me dated y^e 19 November last & can never sufficiently thank you for your Friendly attachment to me & mine. I have great hopes that the part I hold in furnishing Provisions for this post & that of Michlimakinac will bring about a favourable change in my Affairs which is much wanted for I have Even been more disappointed this year than heretofore, was it possible to get Honest men as many as I should want into my Service and they Execute my plans as I direct them I'm certain I would Yearly make Money & in the end if God preserved me get clear of the greatest burden, but Except what is conducted under my own Inspection (Generally Speaking) all goes Rong & had I even health to Voyage in my Absence its likely matters would not go on well here, and my share of the Trade of this post is too Inconsiderable to make much unless I had a Store like that of M^r Robertsons which Requires a large Caputal. Your Nephew Andrew is to be here in Aug^t next at which I'm perticularly happy as I have Formed a plann which I will communicate to him to be mentioned to M^r M^cGill below & if it meets with his & your Approbation I will put it in Execution. The Outlines is to take my Son John into partnership with me for Ten Years, allowing him a third of y^e Profits, each to Maintain their famalies Seperately, whats taken from Store for the use of either to be Replaced the year following with an Allowance of 6 p^r C^t. my Houses Lands Cattle &ce to Remain to myself & the partnership to continue if Even any accident happened to me, but not so if any happened to him. The advantages I foresee would be a greater Security to you in the first place, next having an Interested Person to Visit frequently those who are Trading out is Absolutely Necessary & my hea[l]th will not permit me to do it. In the third place a Security in Case I should fall sick or any Accident happened to me that the Bussiness would not meet with any Interruption nor your property be less Secure, there is many other Advantages in my Oppinion would arise from this Connection which cannot be Inserted here. John is perfectly Sober, honest, Industrious & Saving & now Married is cured of the principal fault I Ever Knew him to have, he has no family & therefore lives at very little Expence, but the Indian Trade alone in its present State affords a poor livelyhood for any person.

The Only News in this Quarter is the Indjans being assembled near Sandusky to treat with the American Commissionairs who have been long since at Niagara & who I really believe will not come farther or if they did that it would not answer any purpose, for what they want the Indians never will agree to. however I believe they would consent to a new line if the latter would let them have near y^e Miamis Town. SALE OF CATTLE FOR GOVERNMENT USE

Detroit July 17th 1793.

Sir I received a line from you last night which requires no answer. The intent of this is to beg of you to wait on Conolel M^o Kee & request that he would be so kind as to have the Oxen I sent out Estimated and grant Certificates for their weight of which there must be three of the same tenor and date, please observe to him or those who value them that as I cannot get either hide Tallow or Offals, I hope these will be considered at east as a fifth Quarter which is the case always. My reason for wanting the Certificates so soon is in order to settle with Captain Elliot from whom I had most part of the Cattle, and give him a draft in payment which I would wish to do on those who draw the Money below

Since writing the foregoing M^r Smith is Arrived who tells me them Ten head of Cattle which I sent out were estimated at 750^{lb} each which is no more than 600 the four Quarters for you know the Hyde Tallow Entrails &c are considered as a fifth quarter therefore 150 More. Please observe to Co^l M^cKee or the Persons who he may direct to Estimate the weight of the Cattle that I took from the same hird 4 Oxen two of which were killed by M^r James Donaldson and two other by M^r Peltier or in his Presence, that the four Quarters of these four Cattle weighed 2531^{lb}, that adding one fourth more for hides, Tallow Heads Entrails &c makes 3164^{lb} which avarages each at 791^{lb} w^t I dont by any means find fault with what is done at same time I fear the fifth quarter was not Estimated fully, however as there are 20 more head of these Cattle still to be appraised I mean their weight they may, I mean those who estimate them make amends provided only that on a revisal of the matter they think as I do that the others were rated low

Your Common pleas I understand is re-established, & the Bench I'm told is to be filled by the Ho[no]rables Col M^cKee & W. Macomb.

There has been a dreadful Cabal against the Contract Business. Petitions & Remonstrances one on the other very thick, if I had received your Letter of 11 July, previous to the closing of the Sessions, I should have been glad. I was alone a long time in my opinion, at length every Member in the lower House but myself consenting to sign a petition & not being furnished with Matter enough to turn them from it, my arguments too, weakened by Affliction, I signed with all the rest. I do not think myself Government at home will alter the plan, & I shall take care to acquaint the Gov^r with the Liberal terms on which you receive the flour.

Perhaps I did not arrange it with Reynolds, in which Case it is of no Consequence.

I find also by M^r Nortons accounts that you ordered payment to be made by him which I know nothing about and at rates which you were not authorized to do. In short their is a necessity for some clear account to be given and that when Norton & Stevens is present that these constant contradictions may have an end I'm frequently asked for Rum flour &^e said to have been left under your care and taken by you and in your Statement, I see no account of any such thing.

Montreal 10 January 1794

Dear Askin I am your Debtor for more Letters than used to be the Case but as most of them are on business & chiefly answered by me from the House I hope you will excuse me if I have not written you oftener personally

Now that the business of the year appears closed, it is most painful to observe that your remittances of this Season are far short of the Goods sent you in 1793 the former was much worse, in so much that in the two years it appears to me that you fall short nearly if not fully £4000 Currency exclusive of accumulating Interest; Such heavy disappointments have brought your Friend Todd & me into a most unpleasant situation & what is finally to be the result I know not for we must take upon ourselves whatever you may fall short to the Company, if therefore you have for us that regard & friendship which I never doubted, you will assuredly see the necessity of making every possible exertion to prevent us from being the greatest Sufferers that can probably be instanced in Trade to your part of the world. unwilling to wound your feelings further I shall not add on this very painful Subject

The Receipt you sent for 92000^{lb} of flour came very opportunely & saved the agents from heavy reflections that would have fallen upon them & us from the Effects of a Bond that might have become forfeited. That you & Mr Robertson did all that could be done I doubt not, but in engagements with Government no excuses however equitable in appearance to you & me individually will answer them, if you undertake you must fulfill, let me therefore entreat that you never lose sight of this rule least you should involve yourself & injure your Friends. I hope & depend that by first opportunity from your place a voucher for remainder of the Flour will appear

I had requested you to send your account against Mr Bentley but you have not yet done it, at least it has not come to hand. you have not sent a State of your affairs as you intended, I wish you to do it by first vessel in the Spring distinguishing that which may be relied upon from what is bad.

Our latest advices from England are of the 18 September by private Letter & of 3^d October by newspapers and it seems to be the general opinion that the Posts will be given up but that the Indian Trade will be free within the American line to us & within our line to them, but whither the delivery will be immediate or at some distance is not so clear yet it is rather thought that two to three years will be reserved. Taking things in that point of view as the Trade must of course be more divided it seems natural to suppose that the Indian part will fall off not a little & become insecure, but it may possibly happen that an influx of new Settlers will raise the value of fixed property & that the Trade which you call Christian may augment, but in the mean time I would advise getting in Debts & prosecuting for them without delay for there can be little doubt that before the new Comers establish & organize Courts of Justice, some time must elapse and when that is done it is highly probable that property will rise greatly in value. Such is my way of thinking which I mean for yourself alone & would not therefore wish to go abroad as my opinion.

To morrow I propose setting out on my public duty to Quebec where I fancy my Stay will be protracted untill April if not to May. If such Employments conferr honor they are dearly paid for by those who have families, I have indeed none of my own; but three Girls, of whom two [are] marriageable, whom I have brought up put me in mind that if I am not called upon by ties of consanguinity to befriend them, the obligation to it is not less binding since it was voluntary. I beg of you to assure M^{rs} Askin & your family of M^{rs} McGills & my best respects & believe me

PUBLIC AFFAIRS IN EUROPE

London 10th February 1794

Dear Sir:

* * * * *

Since I wrote last there has no event of very great magnitude occurred. His Majesty in his Speech to both houses of parliament recommended pursuing the war with vigour, & they have taken measures for that purpose by voting an augmentation to our forces by sea & land. They have borrowed 11 Millions & upon what are called good terms. the revenue has fallen nearly three millions below that of the preceding year. our income is therefore now only about 13 millions & a half, & our expenditure about twenty six! On the continent all is war. The recapture of Toulon has been followed by victory every where. The rebellion in La Vandee (on the banks of the Loire) is entirely subdued, the Austrians & prussians completely defeated on the Rhine, & the French laying every thing waste in that unhappy quarter. Their army opposed to that of Cobourg's in the neighbourhood of Valenciennes has remained rather quiet for these last six weeks, but not without receiving very large reinforcements, & as soon as the weather permits we expect to hear of a general action taking place in that quarter, which will assuredly be a very bloody one as the French have 170,000 men there. They are making such preparations as are altogether astonishing: they have 15 foundaries established which work incessantly, & cast 1100 pieces of cannon a month; at Paris alone they make 680 muskets a day. they have 24 million pounds of gunpowder ready with adequate stores for the ensuing campaign: Of their naval operations we have felt the effects: notwithstanding our boasted superiority at sea, they have had three ships of the line & several frigates cruising off Ireland which have within the last month taken & sent into the ports of France twenty-two sail of ships: they had six frigates cruising in the channel about ten days ago which took a number of prizes while our fleet were all, snug in port. In the East Indies their privateers have taken a great many country ships & carried them into the isles of Bourbon. In America you know they have not been idle. The truth is, our marine has been most shamefully neglected. I hope it will be better managed next year, tho' Lord Chatham is less fit to be at the head of it than you or I to be a bishop, but then he has the merit of being M^r Pitt's brother. We expect news of importance every day from the frontier of Spain & Italy, as twenty thousand of the troops employed in the siege of Toulon moved thither & must by this time have reached their destination. Thus you see every thing indicates hostility: you see France surrounded on all sides with powers which it was predicted long ago must have crushed her to the earth: you have already seen her repell & defeat all those powers, & you will see her oppose to them now, numbers, who to their love of liberty & spirit of enthusiasm, add the discipline of veterans. In this dreadful conflict how many human beings must perish! & how many widows, orphans & relatives must bewail their fate! How many defenceless villages & cottages, the abodes of honest industry & chearful health, must be stained with blood & wasted by devouring flames! Is it only the widows tears & orphans cries that is fit music for the ruthless tyrants that delight in war & desolation? What I most regret is that our country has been so unfortunate as to take any share in this unhappy contest. Had any reasonable man possessed of the least observation gone thro' France when I did & told me afterwards of conquering or subduing them, I should have said, it appears to me to be utterly impossible: you & I differ so completely that one of us must be a fool or something worse. What! conquer four & twenty million of people, with enthusiasm in their hearts & steel in their hands, with a soil & climate the finest in Europe, & with resources for war that are inexhaustable! To attempt such a thing is more absurd than any of Don Quixote's reveries. Did Philip, after a struggle of 17 years, & after executing on public scaffolds upwards of 50,000 of his subjects & destroying five times that number in the field, did he conquer the Seven United Provinces? Did Great Britain, after a struggle of ten years, & the loss of two or three hundred thousand lives, & an expence of 150 million of money conquer America?

In the mean time trade & commerce droop. everything goes cross [?]. Furs are really in a most lamentable predicament, as to saying what they may be worth I cannot say. as long as the war continues they will continue to fall, and what is very unpleasant, I much fear we shall soon have difficulties with the Americans about the posts: there have several thing occurred of late that leads me to this conclusion: I wish I may be mistaken. Lord Cornwallis is returned from the east Indies. we have taken Pondicherry & driven the French out of that country. The duke of York is come home, but whether recalled or not has not transpired.

Woolwich March 26th 1794

My dear Father Having wrote a very long letter to my good Mother which you are to consider in part to yourself leaves me but little to say but I could not with pleasure close my intended Packet without addressing a few lines to so dear a Parent. to recapitulate all that I have said in my Mothers letter concerning the children and the happiness of mon petit menage would be a sameness but as I can never lack subject when conversing with mon cher Pere I shall therefore dash on sans ceremonie and commit to paper whatever presents itself to my imagination hoping that it will prove acceptable to my dear Father. Permettez moi de vous demander combien de Veaus ma Vache a eu depuis que *je vous ai laissé car quoique je ne suis pas proche de vous il faut me remettre l'argent s'il vous plait j'en serai bien flaté je l'emploierai pour les petits enfans vos petits enfans. excusez moi mon cher Pere il faut avoir un peu de badinage de tems en tems et c est pourquoi je vous parle de ma Vache caille.

I had the pleasure to see your good freinds Mr Todd and Robertson the other day they asked very kindly if I had heard from you it was in London I saw them the visit of which will form the principal subject of my dear Sisters letter. their behaviour to us is extremely civil Mr Robertson I look upon in the light of a second Father he appeared to be rather uneasy at not having heard from his Brother Mr David for some time past I should imagine that his letters had miscarried as he would not neglect writing to his Brother. My dear M explains to you all circumstances relative to the War and as I am no great Politician can say but little on that head all that I know is that I think myself extremely lucky let the War go as it will that the service has not called my good man at any great distance from me and as it is supposed that it will not be of much longer duration I hope still to be equally fortunate in having him with me he is getting very fast up the list and as the promotion goes on so rapidly I flatter myself of soon being a Captains Lady.

I yesterday paid a visit to the Warren and sure such a scene of Military buissness presented itself to me as you can have no conception of all the Soldier's children in number more than five hundred with some old Artillery men as overseers were busy in making Cartridges of different kinds other Artificers making and repairing gun carriges whilst other again in the Royal Foundry were employed in casting great quantiteys of Brass Cannon in short it is impossible to describe the hurry and confusion caused by such exertions which is making to receive the Sans Cullottes

As I have a boy I think I have a right to put my dear Father in mind to save him a little Poney for I make no doubt but he will be as fond of horses as my dear little Brothers used to be I hope old Dick Blackbird and the little Mare are all alive I am sure if it is otherwise it is not through want of care for they have a good Master I have never rode since my arrival here indeed my dear Meredith would not like the idea of it since the prancing Mare run away with me the recital of that circumstance allways makes him shudder a pleasing reflection for me as it discovers his tenaciousness of me. There are of fruit in this Country very good apples but I think none to compare with the pome gris of Montreal the cherries here I think preferable to those at Detroit one sort called white hearts are really delicious I have three cherry Trees in my garden which produces a great plenty and as I am very fond of cherry puddings I have them frequently when in Season.

We drank tea and spent last Evening with a Capt & M^{rs} Holloway of the Engineers there was a large party of Gentlemen also Sir William Green¹ cheif Engineer of all England and General of the Corps he is father to M^{rs} Holloway and came from his house in London to spend a few days with his daughter he is a pleasant old gentleman and we passed the Evening very agreeably. I perceive that it is almost time to conclude as my paper is near full so shall do it by assuring my dear Father how proud I am to subscribe myself his truly affectionate Daughter d'accoucher, jespere de toute mon coeur, quelle est heureusement debbarassé, et que dieu lui a conservé son enfant. je me propose de lui ecrire par cette occasion, pour ma Tante elle paroît s'etre tout a fait fixé a la Grosse pointe. vous seriez bien triste, si Therese netoit pas avec vous. je suis flaté que Mademoiselle Adhemar a pris le soin des enfans, comme sa doit etre beaucoup mieux etant si proche de vous, et n'ayant point de riviere a traverser pour les voir. Scavez vous ma chere Mere, que mon cher mari dit, que je suis si grandie et grasse, que vous auriez peine a me connoitre, cependant je ne suis pas enbonpoint dieu mercie deux sont bien assez, et je puis faire mon devoir envers eux avec plaisir, a mon cher M, et satisfaction a moimeme, vous ne pouvez pas vous imaginer, un pere plus tendre quil ne l'est, ce qui fait que nous meritons le nom d'heureux Couple, il est Mari affectionné, et je suis femme obeisante, tel est la juste description de notre petit menage.

Pour des nouvelles je n'en ai pas a vous ecrire, nous sommes toutes affairé dans notre departement, en preparant tous, pour recevoir les Francois, que l'on dit ont intention de visiter ce Pays, pour moi je nen ai pas peur, je suis si brave, que je pense pouvoir en tuer un moimeme, avec un pistolet, s'il se presentoit devant moi, ne pensez donc pas que j'aurai deux pistolets chargé dans ma chambre tous les nuits, si je ne scavois pas les tirer, et quoique la maison ou je demeure n'est pas beaucoup exposé, cependant quand mon cher M. n'est pas avec moi, je suis tranquille de l'idée, d'avoir de quoi me defendre en cas d'etre attaqué. l'on dit qu'il y'a assez d'officiers d'artillerie en Flandres sans en avoir d'autre, cette une bonne nouvelle pour moi, en ce cas mon cher mari, ne laissera pas l'angleterre, il y'aura plusieurs Camps cette Eeté, et je pense que mon Epoux ira a la meme que l'année passé, j'en suis bien flaté comme cest une Endroit bien agréable, je pense que vous etes tous bien tranquille au Detroit, mon cher Pere fait la Parade avec sa Millice de tems en tems, mais ils devroit se croire bien heureux, au prix de ceux ici, qui sont obligé de faire autant de devoir, comme les autres Regiments de pied.

S'il avoit été en notre pouvoir de vous envoyer nos portraits, par cette occasion, nous l'aurions fait avec grand plaisir, mais la depense en est beaucoup, cependant nous esperons le faire dans quellques tems, je vous envoie un morceau de mes cheveux, ainsi q'un morceau de ceux de mon cher M. et les enfans, comme je crois que ma chere mere aimera a avoir quellque choses de ces petits enfans; j'ai les profiles de mon cher pere, et mere, qui leur ressemble beaucoup, je n'ouvre jamais la cassette ou ils sont sans les regarder fixement, j'ai une miniature de Monsieur Meredith dans la meme place, qui m'a été présenté par sa belle soeur, c'est ma petite cassette precieuse, qui contient mes petits tresors. Monsieur Leith a été en Ecosse toute Eeté dernière, avec ses Parens, je suis chagrine que vous l'attendiez, parceque vous avez été desappointé je m'emagine quil arrivera au Detroit dans le premiere Barque; et sitot que ce Vaiseaux paroît, je scait quelle sera la conversation; mes cheres Parens iront sur la Gallerie en haut, Therese portera la longue vue voir les passagers, et chacun aura son tour pour voir. les visites seront frequente pour ce jour, la Gallerie sera bien remplie, Therese prendra la longue vue, et apres avoir regardé pour quellque tems elle dira, ma chere maman, je vois Monsieur Leith reelment; je le vois il a une habit gris; toute bon mon enfant nous aurons donc des lettres de Monsieur Meredith et cette pauvre Archange, apres avoir attendue un peu de tems, mon cher Pere partira pour recevoir les lettres; quelle difference ici, je ne me trompe pas quand je dit que je vois cent Vaisseaux passer toutes les jours, comme nous demeurons dans une jolie situation, élevé, ou nous avons une belle vue de la Tamise, mais personne ne scait d'ou elles vienne, par consequent l'on ne s'en interesse pas. mais quand je vois dans la Gazzette, q'une telle jour une Barque est arrivé de Quebec, je m'attend a recevoir de vos cheres nouvelles, vous me connoisez si bien, que vous scavez que sa n'est pas fierté, qui ma fait ecrire touchant votre impressment d'entendre de nos nouvelles, mais je suis si persuadé de votre affection pour vos enfans que je scait vos sentiments, et a present que je suis mere moimeme, il m'est facile de juger de ce que vous sentez pour eux, si nous jugions par nous meme ma tres chere Mere, nous ne pourrions pas nous imaginer quil y'avoit une Mere denaturé au monde mais je craint quil y a trop de ce vilaines femmes qui ne merite pas avoir d'enfans, puis quil ne se soucie guere de sacrifier leurs repos.

[Archange Meredith]

P. S. Madame Graham a eu un logment dans les environs d'ici pour longtems elle va au Detroit entre nous je ne l'ai jamais frequenté comme elle a toujours une suite de jeunes officiers qui ne s'accorde pas avec mes idees d'une jeune veuve vous m'entendez mais c'est entre nous.

Woolwich, March 27, 1794

Dearest and beloved Mother: Here is your Archange, busy with something that makes her very happy, that is, writing to her good mother by Mr. Leith who leaves this country for Detroit on the 20th. He kindly offered to take charge of my letters and should be here to spend a day with us before setting out. He will see the children and can give you a description of them, for it is absolutely impossible to trust parents who very often say more of them than they deserve.

I fancy that you are now anxious for the arrival of the express. If our letters have not been lost after leaving us you should receive a big packet, dated in November, for we miss no chance to give you evidence of our love. You will be glad, dear Mother, to learn that my little David is now in perfect health. Up to the age of six months, he was always ill and I never hoped that he would live, but since then, it is surprising how he has changed for the better. Nothing has been spared on his father's part, nor on mine, that he might grow strong, and now, thank God, he is a fine boy. Little Anne is well also. She begins to say some words in French, for we want her to speak it well, and while they are young is the best time to teach them that language.

I have had no news from you since dear Therese's letter of October 11th, in which she tells me that my good Cousin Grant was about to be confined. I hope with all my heart that she is happily delivered and that God has spared to her the child. I intend to write her by this opportunity. As for Aunt, she appears to be well settled at Grosse Pointe. You would be very lonely if Therese were not with you. I am glad that Miss Adhémar has taken charge of the children. It must be much better having some one near, who is not obliged to cross the river to come to them.

Do you know, Mother dear, my good husband says that I am so big and fat you would scarcely recognize me. However, I am not enceinte, thank God. Two are plenty, and it is a pleasure to do my duty toward them, and to dear M., and a satisfaction to myself. You would never imagine a kinder father than he is, so that we deserve to be called a happy couple. He is a loving husband, and I am an obedient wife, and there you have a true description of our little family.

As for news, I have none to write you. In our department we are all busy preparing everything to receive the French, who, they say, intend to pay us a visit. For all that, I'm not at all afraid of them. I am so brave, I think I could kill one myself, with a pistol, if he showed up. Don't suppose that I should have two loaded pistols in my room every night if I did not know how to fire them, and although the house where I live is not much exposed, nevertheless, when my dear M. is away, I am easier in mind with the thought of having something to defend myself in case of attack. They say that there are enough artillery officers in Flanders without any more, which is good news for me, for then my husband will not leave England. There are to be several camps this summer, and I think he will go to the same one as last year. I am indeed glad of this for it is a very comfortable place. I am thinking that you are all very peaceful in Detroit. My dear father will be reviewing his militia from time to time, but they should think themselves very fortunate compared with those here who must be on duty the same as other regiments of foot.

Mrs. Mercer and the children are well. We had a letter from them some time ago. Doubtless they will write home by this opportunity.

If it had been in our power to send you our portraits with this, we would gladly have done so, but it is too expensive. However, we shall hope to do so sometime. I am sending a lock of my hair, also one of my dear M's., and the children's, as I know my dear mother will love to have something from these grandchildren. I have profiles of my dear father and mother, very like them. I never open the little casket where they are without a good look. I have a miniature of Mr. Meredith in the same place given to me by his sister-in-law. It is my precious little box containing my little treasures.

Mr. Leith has been in Scotland all last summer with his parents. I am vexed that you have been expecting him because you were disappointed. I imagine that he will reach Detroit in the first vessel, and as soon as it is in sight, I know what you will say. My dear parents will go out on the upper balcony, Therese will bring the field glasses to see the passengers, and each one will look in turn. There will be much visiting that day, the balcony will be crowded. Therese will take the glass and having looked for a while, she will exclaim: "Mother dear, I see Mr. Leith, I see him. He is dressed in gray!" "All right, my child. Now we shall have letters from Mr. Meredith and that poor Archangel!" After waiting a little, my dear father will set out to get the letters. How different it is here! I am not exaggerating when I say that I see hundreds of vessels pass daily, as we live in a pretty place, and high, with a good view of the Thames. But nobody knows where they come from so that people are not interested in them. However, when I see in the paper that a vessel has arrived from Quebec, then I wait to hear from you dear people. You understand me so well that you know it is not vanity that makes me write about how eager you are to hear from us. Indeed, I am so sure of your love for your children that I know how you feel, and now that I am a mother myself, I can easily judge how you feel for them. If we judge by ourselves, Mother dear, we could not imagine an unnatural mother in the world, but I fear there are too many wicked women who do not deserve to have children, since they are so indifferent about sacrificing their comfort.

[Archange Meredith]

P. S. Mrs. Graham² has had lodgings near here for a long time. She is going to Detroit. Between ourselves, I have never gone to her house much because she always has a following of young officers which does not accord with my idea of a young widow. You understand me, but let it be between ourselves.

FROM ISAAC TODD TO JOHN ASKIN

Dear Askin: I received your favor of the 13th Octb^r and am surprised you had not received a Letter from me as I recollect writing two Last Spring & Summer, your Joint Letter with M^r David Robertson to his Bro^r and me was received, and sent to M^r Davison,³ I find there has been a memorial from your Towns people and worthy repres[en]titives Complaining of the unfair & unjust, method of employing you two to furnish the flower, which was sent here by Forsyth & Richardson, in which they I mean

³ Either George or Alexander Davison, brothers, who as contractors had a monopoly of the supply of the royal posts. Alexander, born 1752 and died 1829, was prize agent and confidential friend of Lord Nelson. During the Revolution he was engaged, in partnership with George Davison, in the Canadian trade, and resided for several years at Quebec. In 1784 he was appointed member of the Legislative Council; George also became a councilor. In 1816-17 Alexander was treasurer of the Ordnance Departmemorialists forget to state the motives for it, which I am persuaded was a jealousy, that they were not appointed, in that case the mode of Mr Davisons would have been proper and right, indeed their reasoning was so early refuted, that it would have had Little weight, had not your Governor wrote and besides ministers here, saying the produce ought to be taken from the Farmer, and recommending his Commiss^y General to do the business, this will not be granted as the receiver cannot be the purchaser, and I belive it will be Left to Lord Dorchester to arrange the business in that case Mr McGill will have it in his power to put you at Least on a footing with any of your Neighbors, but I am still of opinion to secure the supplys and that the quality may be good it must be done by Contract, and that must be with Merchants, which is equally serving the Farmer, unless Gov^r Simcoe thinks the Merchant can raise flower in their Stores. Government here does not like to be teased by representations, and he and your Neighbours representations had nearly deprived your Province of the Supply in any Mode and which the farmers must have thanked them for, altho Govern^t Knew sending flower from this Country must have cost double the price yet to settle the business they intended sending the whole supplys from hence and its only within a few days they were induced to alter it, perhaps to some this might be more pleasing then to see a general benefit without their having such apart as they wanted. I am interested to serve a province in which I have many friends, and in doing so generally its natural to wish to serve my friends, and who I can pledge my Character for your represe[n]tatives ought to be carefull they dont do a generral injury without answering either the purposes of envey or individual benifit, and it requires attention Trouble & Expence to make the most of the Farmers indoustry and which they cannot do of themselves for Instance I have been employd since last fall writing to Cork to procure a Man a compleat ment. He was prosecuted and convicted for receiving unlawful commissions on supplies, and although he refunded some $8,000 was sentenced to twenty-nine months' imprisonment in Newgate Gaol. See sketch in Simcoe Papers, I, 121.

Cooper and curer of provisions and after much trouble I have hired one as high as £70 p^r annum with maintenance and his advances & expences will be above £50, which is lost if an accident happens him he is for M^r Hamilton at Niagara who expects that Settlement will have a quantity of Pork, and to cure it well is of more use then your assemblies representations perhaps they may think M^r Hamilton has no right to do this.

I am you may well suppose, even had I no interest in it extremely sorry for your bad success in business, indeed the great fall in furs and the prospect of being still worse, will make a great change in the Situation of your places I am glad you have so little dependance on That Trade and that your other resourses of remittance may this year answer your expectations, as I am convinced M^r McGill has your interest as much at heart as me and will do any thing our own situation will admit of to serve you. I leave the business to him, and shall only remark that this Warr has occasioned such Losses & disappointments of which we have our share that it requires the exertions of ourselves & friends, to support that Credit we have always had.

I am sorry there was not a Peace concluded between the Americans & Indians, and I wish your Govern^r may have used his influence to accomplish it, I am certain either by treaty or otherwise the Americans will in a few years get the Posts. I would therefore recommend [you] to be prepared for it as well as you can, and if matters are settled between them & the Indians, and the posts amicably given up Leaving the Trade free to all, it will be no great injury to the Country nor you in perticular as the River St^t Lawrence must be the water communication for all heavy articles and it would benefit by the Indoustry and ingenuity of the Americans, and as private property will be secured it will become of more value. I have done myself the pleasure of writing your Daughter Theresa by M^r Leith in answer to her polite & Sencible Letter of Last Octt^r M^r Leith has allso a Small packet for her, as you will receive Letters from M^r & M^{rs} Meredith & M^r Mercer, & Robertson it

My dear Father: You will think I am neglectful of my duty not having addressed a letter to you for so long. But no, dear Father, you are so busy that I hesitated about giving you the trouble to reply. I have been expecting news from York a long time. I thought to be able to tell you that Madelaine had been confined but she is not yet. I hope to have word by the first vessel. Mr. Clark will take it on to you. He is a good boy. I recommend him to you. He is another of Mr. Hamilton's cousins and goes to Michilimackinac to look around. By the way, Father dear, Mr. Hamilton has given me hopes that you will come to see us this summer. We would be rejoiced to see you, especially if you could bring my dear Mother and the children with you. Mr. Hamilton talks of going to Scotland next winter and of taking with him three more of my boys for their education. Another separation for me. I wish that you would come to see them before they go that they might have the pleasure of knowing you, and of receiving your blessing. I am impatient for news of William and Johnny. I read a letter from my sister Archange some time ago addressed to Mother. I hope that she is well, and Mr. Meredith also, and their little children. We were very pleased to hear that Commodore Grant is a grandfather. Present my compliments to him and to Mrs. Grant. My best regards to my dear Mother. I am thinking of going to her for comfort if Mr. Hamilton leaves me for I cannot be away from home any other time. My love to my dear Therese, a kiss for the

PROGRESS OF THE CONTINENTAL WAR

London 24^h June 1794

Dear Sir: I wrote you 10th February & 10th April, to which I refer you. By Letters from Niagara of 29th March I had the pleasure to hear that sometime previous Mr Hamilton had letters saying our Detroit friends were well, and tho' there are letters from your post of 31st January from others I have none from my brother—this coupled with his former remissness continues my uneasiness; but as I have before solicited you to inform me with candour as a friend to what I am to ascribe this, I wait in hopes of a satisfactory elucidation.

On the subject of business, it is hardly necessary for me to take up your time, as Mr Todd has not long since made you acquainted with what relates to furs and I can say nothing agreeable or encouraging on that topic in addition. On the subject of politics, I shall be very brief, having sent the news papers by this opportunity to my brother who will no doubt afford you the reading of them. The war continues to rage on the continent of Europe with unexampled fury: the various skirmishes & battles that have been fought, since the opening of the campaign, exceed in point of obstinacy & bloodshed, for so short a period, any thing in ancient or modern history! At first success seemed rather to attend the efforts of the allies, whose favourite object was to penetrate to Paris—they however had proceeded no further than Landrecy (& every foot they gained was well disputed) which they took after a short resistance, when the duke of York was obliged suddenly to return to the assistance of Gen^l Clairfait whose army in the mean time had been routed with great slaughter loss of artillery &c and the important towns of Menin & Cambray taken by the French under Pichegru. Measures were immediately taken to recover these places & to succour Clairfairs broken army with whom a junction was to be formed. In consequence a most desperate & bloody battle ensued which commenced in the morning when the French seemed to give ground, unfortunately this redoubled the ardour of the British troops, who were led too far, surrounded and above a thousand killed or taken prisoners; the duke of York escaped the latter fate with great difficulty. The Austrians, Hanoverians & Hessians then fled in all directions. The English lost all their artillery, & the guards their colours: seven thousand of the allies were killed or taken—some say many more. I mention this action more particularly, because notwithstanding our defeat, it redounds greatly to the honour of the British who did all that courage & discipline could do, but they were I fear very ill supported by our allies. The duke retreated into Tournay where the army now are. In the mean time the French have driven Clairfait back to Bruges & Ghent, have laid seige to the city of Ypres, & fears are entertained for the fate of Ostend. Towards Charleroi the French have been twice defeated with considerable loss, indeed in both they are said to have lost many thousands. I do not give entire credit however to the Brussels Gazette, because if those defeats were of the magnitude stated the French could not have returned almost immediately and opened the trenches of Charleroi in the face of a victorious army. Towards the Rhine the King of Prussia has done nothing: he however receives about two millions & a half subsidy from this country to furnish 64,000 men. he takes the money & tells us the men are coming. The King of Sardinia, another of our allies gets £200,000 pounds for his assistance, but so far from assisting, he cannot even defend himself; for his troops have been beat in a variety of actions, the principal posts leading to Turin taken, & that capital itself threatened, the enemy having been within two days march of it [at] last accounts. The Spaniards have not been much more successful. they have been defeated by Dugom[m]ier (he commanded at Toulon) lost 100 pieces of cannon, all their tents &c and driven out of Roussillon. Of their operations at sea you will in part have heard: we have reduced all most all their W. India islands & almost without bloodshed. The capital of Corsica also surrendered, & Calvi, the only place of importance there, must also soon fall. But our most brilliant victory at sea is that obtained by Lord Howe on the 1st inst. with 25 sail of the line he attacked the French of 26, & after a most desperate engagement took seven sail of the line & sunk one: our loss was not inconsiderable—about a thousand men killed & wounded, one admiral lost his leg & another his arm: all the French ships were taken with their colours standing, they were nailed to the masts before action & the republicans swore never to strike them! they fought with wonderful, and indeed desperate courage, but were out done in dexterity of seamanship. You will judge of their temper, when it is affirmed that the Ship that sunk went down with her three coloured streamer[s] flying, that those who escaped the carnage which must have been dreadful, when they found her sinking, struck up their favourite national air of “ça ira,” gave three cheers, vociferated, “vive la nation, vive la republique” & then disappeared! Notwithstanding these successes, the critical situation of affairs on the continent, & the serious evils that obstruct & derange our commerce, which has suffered severely from the French cruisers, the people begin to see the impossibility of re-establishing monarchy in France & wish for peace. Besides the vessels taken by them in the East Indies, their depredations have been very great here. the Lisbon & Cadiz ships, Dutch & English consisting of about 60 sail were taken, together with two Dutch frigates having in specie about £90,000 on board. one of the frigates it is said got away afterwards, but whether the one with the specie or not is unknown. it was all insured at Lloyd’s. They took the Newfoundland convoy with the Caster frigate. they were retaken again by us, taken by the French a second time, retaken again & burnt by Lord Howe who could not spare men to man them. Several other ships (some of them of great value) have been taken since Christmas in all not less than 250 or 300 Sail!

From the complection of affairs in America I was apprehensive of a rupture there, but I am happy to say I think that will not only be avoided but an amicable termination of all our disputes be affected. M^r Jay having lately arrived as ambassador extraordinary from them for that purpose and been well received here. Indemnification for all the ships taken & detained as we[ll (torn)] as the surrender of the posts will be agreed to. it is probable a reasonable time however will be given to those embarked in Upper country trade who may not choose to remain under their government to collect their debts & withdraw their effects: at the same time a man may remain (I should suppose so at least) as a merchant under their government after such surrender of the posts, without becoming a cit[i]zen of theirs, just as a British merchant may & does at Lisbon, Cadiz, Amsterdam or Vienna. People however will do well not to extend & scatter their property too widely in the mean time. The merchants here mean, in due time, to pray the posts may be retained three years, & the Indian country remain free & neutral: the first may in part be complied with, but I hardly hope for the last. As I wrote my brother a few days ago I shall not write again now, & therefore will thank you to make him acquainted with the contents of this, as it will answer the same purpose. I saw M^r & M^{rs} Mercer & spent part of last week with them & the young ladies, who grow very fine girls. they are all well. M^r & M^{rs} Meredith & children are the same. I saw them only yesterday & M^r Meredith this morning on his way down to camp at Warley—better & quieter ground then Flanders.

I beg my kind compliments to M^{rs} & Miss Askin & the rest of your family, Com^r & M^{rs} Grant, M^{rs} Wright &c. I remain, Dear Sir, Your very Hbl^e Servt

I had forgot to tell you, under my political head, that the good old empress of Russia is likely to have all her work to do over again as well as the king of Prussia. The government which these two worthies had settled for Poland, & sent their new subjects all to church with so much piety to return thanks to God, has been [?] by one general impulse overthrown. They rose upon the Prussian troops, kept there for their good, beat them every where, seized almost all the places of strength, appointed the gallant & patriotic Cousiouski [Kosciuszko] their leader, annulled all the empress had done, convoked new assemblies, appointed ministers & all other functionaries, & have finally raised above 100,000 men, of which number 75,000 are already completely armed. The Empress & King are making preparations to bring them to their senses—he was to have commanded our 64,000 subsidiary troops himself, but he is gone to Poland, & for aught we know taken them with him. The great French fleet (160 sail) are all arrived from America in safety in the ports of France.

Pray let me hear from you soon, & give me all the news of the settlement &c

FROM ARCHANGE MEREDITH TO MRS. ASKIN

Woolwich le 2 de Septembre 1794.

Ma tres chiere Mere: Je ne puis commencer un sujet qui me fait plus de plaisir que de vous informer que j'ai recue deux lettres le deux de ce Mois datté du seize d'Avril, une de mon cher Pere et l'autre de ma Soeur Therese, et quand je reflechie sur les risques que les Vaisseaux cour d'etre pris par l'ennemie, je ne puis m'enpecher de me croire bien fortuné d'entendre si souvent de vos nouvelles. Je suis un peu surprise que vous n'avez pas recue de lettres de nous par l'expres, comme nous en avons ecrit plusieurs nous flattant quils arriverai chez vous par cette occasion, mais je ne doute pas que vous les avez recue par le premier Vaisseaux ce Printems.

A present il faut que je dise a ma chere Mere que je suis encore Veuve jusqu'a Mois de Novembre, mon cher Meredith a laissé Woolwich pour aller au Camp le 23 de Juin, le nom de l'endroit ou il est se nomme Warley en Essex, exactement vis a vis de mes fenetres dans le devant de la maison, la distance d'ici la n'est pas grande comme il ne prend q'une demie journée pour se rendre la, cependant sa n'est pas agreable d'etre sepparé, mais je me souvient que je suis femme d'un Guerrier, cette consideration me rend gaie comme Pincon, et m'enpeche de m'a trisster de les petits desagrements a quoi tout le monde sont sujet a rencontrer dans cette vie. Mon cher Mari avant de partir a essayai une maladie tres dangereuse, et qui a duré une semaine, c'est dans ces moments que je me suis sentie vraiment malheureuse, mais n'osant rien faire paroître avant lui, graces a dieu il est a present tout a fait retablie, et je suis heureuse. Nos cheres enfans sont aussi en parfaite santé. David n'est pas encore assez fort pour marcher quoique il soit agée de seize mois, mais cela n'est pas surprenant comme il a été élevé au lait de Vache, cela est un grand desavantage a une enfant, il a plusieurs dents et quoique s'a ne devroit pas venir de moi, cependant je dit quil est un jolie garçon. Anne devient plus amusante de jour en jour, chaque personne qui la voie dit quelle me ressemble je n'en puis pas juger. il me semble vous avoir marqué que j'avois un portrait en miniature de mon cher mari, je le tient dans un coffre ou sont mes mielleurs hardes, chaque fois que j'ouvre ce coffre elle cour me prier de lui laisser embrasser le portrait de son cher pere, et apres l'avoir caressai elle me le remet pour le serrer, je puis m'adresser avec confiance a ma bien aimé Mere et lui demander si sa n'est pas naturelle de se sentir fier de telles petites actions de nos enfans, mon coeur me dit que c'est naturelle car je me sent heureuse en observant les idees de cette chere fille.

Il faut que je vous prie d'assurer ma chere Cousine Wright de la joie que je ressent en sachant quelle est heurusment accouché, elle doit avoir recue une lettre de moi que j'ai ecrie par l'occasion de Monsieur Leith. C'est une grande satisfaction quand l'ainée est une fille, car sitot quils sont un peu grandie leurs Compagnies amuse beaucoup la mere, et en cas que le Pere soit absent le tems ne se passe pas avec tant d'ennuye que quand l'on est toute seule.

A l'egard de nouvelles je n'est rien de nouveaux a vous communiquer, vous avez sans doute appris la brillante victoire que notre Amiral My Lord Howe a remporté sur la Flotte Francoise le premier de juin, non chere Meredith netoit pas a Woolwich au tems que la nouvelle est arrivé, il avoit recue ordre d'aller a une endroit nommé Colchester pour arranger quelques affaires, cependant comme je me pique d'être un bon sujet, sitôt que le soleil fut couché et le tems devient un peu noir, je fis allumer un grand nombre de chandelles et les arranga dans tous les fenestres de la maison qui fit une jolie Illumination. je ne fut pas longtems la seule toute le voisinage en fit autant, nous fumes regalé d'un feu d'Artifice pas loins de nous, et en fin le Coup d'oeil étoit réellement magnifique. Mon cher Meredith se propose d'écrire a mon cher Pere par cette occasion, il pourra lui en dire plus que moi, mais j'ai souhaité informer ma bonne Parente de c'est qui s'est passé dans mes environs.

Il y-a longtems que j'ai souhaité vous demander comment l'on fait la gelée de pomme, vous serez sans doute surprise d'un pareille demande, mais je vous assure que personne ici ne scave la faire et meme n'en ont jamais entendue parler, et comme mon tres cher mari a qu'on appelle en Anglois une liquorish tooth, je souhaite lui remplir cette dent de quelque chose de bon, il parle souvant de cette excellente jelée de pomme et a chaque fois quil la mentione, je regrette ne scavoir pas la faire, je vous prie donc ma chere mere de m'instruire de ce secret par le premier occasion apres avoir recue celle ci, cette a dire si les Francois permettre a cette lettre de vous atteindre.

Pour l'information de ma chere Soeur Therese je prend la liberté d'employer un peu de votre papier en donnant une description des modes. les cheveux sont coiffé comme a l'ordinaire devant en petites boucles mais derriere au lieu d'être relevé ils sont ballins. les chapeaux sont d'une grandeur surprenante, la facon de les garnir est de mettre un morceau de ruban uniment alentour de la forme, est une boucle avec des bouts pendants au coté gauche, une ou deux plumes d'autriche d'aucune couleur que sa soit arrangé dans le devant du chapeau est tout a fait le ton ils sont porté toute a fait en arriere et rabbatue a chaque coté par un mouchoir de gauze ou muslin, ou meme un morceau de ruban le meme que celui sur le chapeaux pour attacher sur le menton, mais ce mouchoir doit être d'une musline fine et non pas double, et la mode est de l'arranger en plis sur le haut de la forme et faire paroître le coin, qui paroît bien jolie quand il est brodé, en voici assés pour la tete. parlons presentment du corps, les tailles sont extremement courte, et les mouchoirs mit de facon a bien exposer la potrine, les ceintures sont bien longue et devant ils sont arrangés en plis afin de les faire étroite puisque la largeur de la sash fait la longueur de la taille, les jupons sont fait de facon a trainer derriere comme une robe, mais pas tout a fait si long, les grande manche sont encore le ton, est rien n'est plus vulgaire que de porter des bas de soie qui sont le moindrement bleu, ils doivent étre aussi blanc que la neige, voici la mode, mais je n'avisé pas a ma chere soeur de l'imiter en tout, car ces tailles courtes sont infame et surtout pour des jeunes filles, et les mouchoirs ouverts ne s'accorde pas avec mon idée de modestie, mais j'ai pensé que ma bonne soeur seroit flaté de scavoir comment le monde s'habille presentment. je me propose de lui écrire par la premiere occasion qui se presente.

Mon heureusté fut bien grande ma tres chere mere de voir par les lettres de la Famille que tout chez vous jouissoit d'une si bonne santé, mon bien aimé Pere dit que s'il pouroit se persuader quil nous viroit un jour, il passera son tems avec moins d'ennuye, je vous assure que je l'espere de tout mon coeur, et ne doute pas que nous aurons ce bonheur, mais il est impossible pour nous gens militaire de dire quand cela sera le cas, car nous obbeissons a la volonté de notre bon Roi, et ne sommes pas absolument maitres de nous memes.

Je me flatte que les Yankees ne vous ont pas attaqué, mais il me semble quil viennes a grand pas vers vous, toutes les Nations paroisse enbrouillees en quellque Geurre depuis cette Revolution des Francois. je m'émagine souvent voir lever les epaules aux vieux Canadiens quand ils entendent parler de la cruauté des Francois, et surtout a Monsieur Buffette qui paroissoit si surpris quand il entendit dire que le pauvre Louis avoit été si maltraité et quoi dit il ce grand monarque le Roi de la France, que diroit il donc s'il pouroit étre témoin de ce qui passe chez eux presentment, mais c'est un sujet trop triste pour le continuer, ainsi je le quitte pour dire a ma chere mere que j'ai recue une lettre peu de jours passé de Capt. Mercer, me marquant que toute sa famille possédoit une bonne santé, et qu'il avoit eu le plaisir de recevoir une lettre de mon cher Pere, datté du dix sept de Mars dernier, a laquelle il se proposoit de repondre par cette occasion.

Quoique je suis seule ma chere Mere mon tems ne se passe pas avec tant d'ennuye comme vous avez bien de croire, sachant que je suis dans un Pays etranger et mon cher Mari absent de moi, et quelle en est la raison je vous l'expliquerai, C'est parceque mon cher Meredith trouve toujours facon de montrer son affection et attention pour moi. je recois de lettres de lui tous les jours, et non pas une demie feuille de papier mais quelquefois aussi pleine que celle ci, il est toujours le meme envers moi remplie d'affection et de bonté, netoit il pas bien aisé pour lui de me loger dans les Casernes il auroit epargné par cela plus de trente pontes par an, non il na pas volue le faire, il a preferai depenser cette argent afin de me placer dans une maison dont je suis la maitresse. je vous dis ma chere mere que mon cher M. est un sans pareille, je pourrois vous parler de lui pour une heure entiere mais mon papier ne le permet pas rendez vous donc heureux mes chers Parens en sachant que votre Archange l'est aussi s'avez la bonté d'embraser mon cher Pere Soeur Therese mes cheres petits freres et soeurs pour moi. faites mes amities au reste de la famille Commodore Grante Cousin Doctr & & sans oublier ma bonne Tante quand Therese ecrit a Niagara elle fera mes amities a mes soeurs la. adieu donc ma tres chere et bonne Mere, et croyez moi votre tres affectionné fille

Woolwich, September 2, 1794

Dearest Mother: I can begin with nothing that gives me more pleasure than to tell you that I have received two letters, both this month, dated April 16, one from my dear father and the other from my Sister Therese. When I reflect on the risks the vessels run of being taken by the enemy, I cannot but think myself very fortunate in hearing from you so often. I am a little surprised that you did not receive our letters by the express, for we wrote several, pleasing ourselves with the thought that they would reach you at that time. No doubt you received them by the first vessel this spring.

Next I must tell my dear mother that I am still a widow, until November. My dear Meredith left Woolwich to go to camp June 23rd. He is at Warley, in Essex, a place directly facing the front windows of my house. It is not very far from here, only half a day's journey, but the unpleasant thing is being separated. Then I remember that I am the wife of a warrior and that thought makes me as gay as a lark and keeps me from worrying over all the little troubles of life everyone must have.

Before leaving, my dear husband passed through a most dangerous illness which lasted a week. I was very anxious all the time but dared not appear so before him. Thank God he is now completely restored and I am happy. Our dear children are also in perfect health. David is not yet strong enough to walk although he is sixteen months old, but that is not surprising as he has been brought up on cow's milk, a great disadvantage to an infant. He has several teeth, and though it should not come from me, still I may say he is a pretty child. Anne grows more amusing every day. Everyone who sees her says that she resembles me. I am no judge of that. It seems to me that I told you that I had a miniature of my dear husband. I keep it in a chest with my best clothes and every time I open that chest she runs begging me to let her kiss her dear father's picture, and after caressing it, she gives it back to me to lock away. I can talk about them to my dearly beloved mother with confidence. Is it not natural for us to be proud of such little acts of our children? My heart tells me it is, for I feel a happiness in following the thoughts of that dear girl.

BURTON HISTORICAL RECORDS

I must beg you to assure Cousin Wright of the joy I experienced when I knew she was safely delivered. She will have received a letter from me that I wrote by Mr. Leith. It is a great comfort when the eldest is a girl, for as soon as they are a little grown they are such amusing company for the mother, and if the father is absent, time does not pass so heavily as when one is all alone.

As for news, I have none to communicate. You have no doubt heard of the brilliant victory our Admiral, Lord Howe,⁵ achieved over the French fleet the first of June. My dear Meredith was not at Woolwich when the news came. He had received orders to go to a place called Colchester to transact some business. However, as I pride myself on being a good subject, as soon as the sun had set and it became a little dark, I had candles lighted and placed in all the windows of the house, a pretty illumination. I was not long the only one for soon all the neighborhood did the same. We were treated to a display of fireworks not far from us and the sight was truly magnificent. My dear Meredith intends to write to my dear father by this opportunity. He will be able to tell more than I, but I wanted my good mother to know what is going on in my neighborhood.

For a long time I have wanted to ask you how to make apple jelly. You will doubtless be surprised at such a request, but I assure you no one here knows how and never even has heard of it. As my dear husband has what the English call a sweet tooth, I want to cram that tooth for him with something good. He often speaks of that delicious apple jelly, and every time he mentions it, I am sorry that I do not know how to make it. Please, dear Mother, teach me that secret by the first chance you have after receiving this, that is, if the French allow this letter to reach you.

For the information of my dear sister Therese, I take the liberty of using a little of your paper to tell her about the fashions—the hair is usually arranged in little curls in front but at the back, instead of being raised, is rolled into a round knot. Hats are surprisingly large. The way to trim them is to put a piece of ribbon straight all around the crown, with a buckle, and the ends hanging at the left side. One or two ostrich plumes of any color whatever, arranged in the front of the hat, is the height of fashion. They are worn very far back on the head and are drawn down at each side by a handkerchief of gauze or muslin, or even a piece of ribbon the same as that on the hat tied under the chin. But the muslin must be thin and not double. The fashion is to arrange it in folds from the top of the crown and have the corner show, which is very pretty when embroidered. Now that's enough for the head, let us say something about the gowns. The bodice is extremely short, and the neckerchief arranged in a way to show the breast. Sashes are very long and in folds at the front so as to make them narrow, since the width of the sash lengthens the bodice. Skirts are made to trail at the back like a court dress, but not nearly so long. Big sleeves are still in fashion, and there is nothing so vulgar as to see silk stockings the least bit blue. They must be white as snow. Here you have the styles, but I would not advise my dear sister to follow them in everything, for the short bodice is a disgrace and above all for young girls. The open neckerchief does not accord with my idea of modesty, but I thought my good sister would be pleased to know how people dress now. I intend to write to her by the first opportunity that presents itself.

My happiness was very great, dearest Mother, to see by the letters from the family that you all enjoy such good health. My beloved father says that if he could persuade himself that he would see us some day, it would help to pass the time. I assure you that I hope so with all my heart and there is no doubt but that we shall have that good fortune, but it is impossible for us military people to say when that may be, for we obey the will of our good King, and are not entirely our own masters.

I am glad that the Yankees have not made an attack on you, but they appear to be coming your way with great strides. All the nations seem to be embroiled in some war since the French Revolution. I often imagine that I see the old Canadians shrug their shoulders when they hear anyone speak of the cruelty of the French, and especially Mr. Beaufait,⁶ who seemed so surprised when he heard it said that poor Louis had been so abused. "What," said he, "'ce Grand Monarque,' the King of France!" What would he say if he could see what has taken place there now! But it is too sad a subject to continue, so I leave it to tell my dear mother that I received a letter a few days ago from Capt. Mercer, telling me that all the family were in good health, and that he had had the pleasure of a letter from my dear father dated March 17 last, which he intended to answer by this opportunity.

Although I am alone, dear Mother, time does not pass so tediously as you might well believe, knowing me to be in a strange land with my dear husband away from me, and the reason of this I will explain to you. It is because my dear Meredith always finds some way of showing his

Louis Beaufait was a man of considerable prominence in the early American period, being justice of the peace, one of the judges of the Court of Common Pleas, and an officer of militia. Information adapted from Denissen, op. cit., and Burton, City of Detroit, Michigan, 1701-1922, II, 1355-56.

affection and attention for me. I have letters from him every day, and not just a half sheet of paper, but sometimes as full as this. He is always the same to me, full of love and kindness. Would it not have been much easier for him to have put me in lodgings in the barracks where he would have saved more than £30 a year? No, he would not do that. He would rather pay more so that I may be in a house where I am mistress. I tell you, my dear Mother, my dear M. is without an equal. I could talk to you of him for another whole hour but my paper does not permit me. Be happy then, dear parents, in knowing that your Archange is also happy. Have the kindness to embrace my dear father, sister Therese, my dear little brothers and sisters, for me. Remember me to the rest of the family, Commodore Grant, the Doctor Cousin, etc., etc., without forgetting my good Aunt. When Therese writes to Niagara, she will remember me to my sisters there. Adieu, my dearest and best of Mothers and believe me, your most affectionate daughter,

OBSTACLES TO BUILDING GUNBOATS

Detroit 9th October 1794

Sir This day His Excellence presented to me A letter Commanding me to build Six Gun Boats in the River Thames. Your Honor will be so good as let me Know hough I shall proceed in this difficulty, I think must occur

1st There is no one man like shipwright to be hired to take Charge of the work. If your Honor should see fit to send for me—likewise. If there is two parties the one Cutting timber in the Woods and the other to work at the Boats; I should not [be able] to attend to advantage in carrying on the work. If your Honor will be so good as to let me have one Carpenter out of the ship yard I shall be able to Carry on the work with Zeal.

2nd There is also an agent wanted at this post to pay the men that is employed in Building the Boats as the money

Dear Sir: When I wrote the few lines from the falls by M^r Graham It was with Intent to prevent your depend^{ce} on my payment to M^r Hamilton in the Course of Sept^r and I hope in my hurry no expression did so little Justice to my Sentiments as hint at any doubt of your liberality and kindness.

The first time I saw M^r H. afterwards I told him the purport of your letter and my [illigible] with the terms of which I appeared well satisfied. We do not as usual receive our Salary when due but upon Certificate which protracts the payment for three Months and is only compensated by being payable in England which makes Bills in Course a prompt payment.

So much for business. I wrote you a long letter before I received your first, and hinted in it the Impression which I imagined our Lt Gov^r had received with respect to Detroit Politicks and which I fear will not add to his popularity there except with the I. D. You are so good as to interest

M^{rs} P. has a comfortable Room and an adjoining One for the Children as bed Chambers. I have one large room badly lighted for Study parlour &c^a and there is a tollerable farmers Kitchen, upon the whole such as to unambitious Minds can afford Content tho' at the rate of 43£s for six Months. The Chief reccommendation of the Spot is that it is dry and reputed the most healthy in the Settle^t and adjoins to my own Lots where I am for the present erecting a log House. M^{rs} Richardson has not yet been able to get so far to see us, but from him I learn that she is well and happy. I have been but twice at Newark, to open and adjourn the Court of K. B. The latest News from Europe does not promise a speedy Close to the war in Europe, but seems to flatter us with a Continuance of peace in spite of so many Endeavours on all Sides to disturb it. I have myself as little faith in the Success of Art in politicks as in private life so am not gratified by the internal Dissensions in the States which appear to have got to a formidable heighth and threaten little less than a civil war. Could I see any true advantage to be acquired fo[r] the Honor and Interest of England or her Colonies by such an Event, I should have some Satisfaction in the prospect but in my present View of things, I think it not impossible that if the State physicians prescribe phlebotomy they may chuse to employ foreign Operators and provoke a Quarrel with us as a Channel for the bad blood which gives them so much uneasiness. All Accounts from Europe hint at an amicable Settlement with the States at the Expence of [illegible] reperation to be made but the Question of our Frontier does not appear to have been canvassed. Many think that an Idea of Col. Simcoe will be produced, perhaps adopted, of leaving the Indⁿ Territory as at 1763, unoccupied by either party to serve as a perpetual Barrier between us. Such an Event would justly give to our L^t

Major Parent,

Sir: The captain of the vessel, Mr. Fortier,¹¹ is waiting for the three men whom I requested you to summon from the three companies of which you are the Major. Each man so summoned should be accompanied by an officer or a sergeant to see that he goes aboard. PROGRESS OF AFFAIRS IN EUROPE

London 28^h October 1794

Dear Sir: I wrote you 23^d August, since which I have not had a line from Detroit. I wrote you before how uneasy I was at the silence of my brother & requested you as a friend to inform me what he was doing, & of your compliance I can have no doubt. In the mean time I intend to pay you a visit next spring, & as I have never been at New York, I purpose taking that rout. I had before requested your friendly aid in the adjustment of some points relating to our New-copartnership; & on that subject I shall also hear from you no doubt. You will no doubt have been alarmed, if accounts be true that have reached us, of the approach of the American army towards the Miamis. An action is said to have taken place & the victory to be on their side, & that some of your milit[i]a were with the Indians: This last intelligence our ministry do not wish to countenance, as inferring a charge of hostilities on our side; but at all events, it will produce no serious rupture, for our government, whatever other views they may have had, seems det[e]rmined to settle all differences amicably in that quarter so that you may rest assured whether the posts are evacuated or retained it will be all done peaceably: I think they will be given up, but not precipitately: our ministry now find they have quite enough on their hands without involving themselves with more enemies. As they disavowed Lord Dorchester's speech to the Indians, as unauthorised, so they will some other acts in your quarter. this ought to teach commanders a lesson of caution. You know I have been in the habit of filling my sheet with the politics of the day. I have no information but what those useful vehicles the public prints afford. I sometimes give you my own remarks. In opinion relative to this direful war I had the misfortune to be in opposition to all my acquaintance, especially those from Canada; and as the spirit of party has, & still is, uncommonly high & bitter, you may conceive I was a good deal roasted: some advised me as a friend to keep my opinions to myself & indeed, in certain companies it was prudent, others used other [arguments?] of personal risk from informers &c but what I was going to say is that my friends are now coming over to my way of thinking pretending that "to be sure people might have seen, & they always thought so & so." here I am at variance with them again, "no no," say I, gentlemen, do not now come round for I will not let you off so." Man is said to be a thinking animal. nothing is more false, for he is the very reverse, being an unthinking animal. We now behold Europe deluged with human blood, torn to its foundation, & every kingdom in it on the point of political dissolution, from the unthinking conduct of kings, priests, ministers & people. I think since I wrote last no event of importance has happened on the ocean except the capture of one frigate from the French, & a good many ships from us, about sixty or seventy that we already know of. At land, they are literally driving the armies of all Europe before them: those very armies of whose success in the subjugation of France twelve months ago the most certain hopes, were entertained. Last month was marked by a variety of petty battles, but towards the end of it they appeared to have been only as many preludes?] to the complete defeat of the allied army under General Clairfait who has been driven across the Rhine with the loss of some accounts say ten & some twelve thousand men, artillery stores & a great deal of baggage. The consequence is the whole country from Aix-La Chapelle to Nimeguen with the cities of Cologne Roermond, Bonn, Cleves &c &c &c are now in the hands of France. Maes-trecht is besieged. On the Dutch frontier they have taken Craevcoeur, Bois le Duc &c &c and are actually penetrating into Holland where terror & confusion reign. They are sending their valuables to this country insurances has been done on property in Amsterdam for a month at 15 percent premium, & some people think that the French will be in possession of it before that time. Our troops under the Duke of York have been constantly retreating & with considerable loss. We heard yesterday the unpleasant news of his having been forced to retreat to Arnheim over the Rhine, but not before the loss of the greater part of the regiment of Bohn, & what is more immediately afflicting the 37 reg^t of foot has been almost all killed or taken in this affair, not more than fifty men & the major having escaped. In the interior of France, from which I have always thought they had most to fear, order & tranquillity seem to gain ground, owing to the firm, & I am happy to add, for the sake of humanity, moderate measures of the convention. I forgot to add that on the side of Italy the Republican troops have in several instances been successful, & on that of Spain taken the strong fortress of Bellegard with five thousand troops & an immense quantity artillery & stores: thus they are in possession of the two keys of that kingdom.

1753, and married there, on June 4, 1778, Angelica Aubert de Gaspé, daughter of Ignatius Aubert de Gaspé and Mary Ann Coulon de Villier. They had several children, some of whom subsequently resided at Sandwich or Raisin River, and one of whom was baptized at Detroit, Sept. 16, 1794. One son, Charles Fortier, married Catherine Smith of Sandwich, daughter of Thomas Smith, for whom see ante, 287.

The poles, not satisfied with the new government of the two worthies who have done so much for their happiness, have risen, as if impelled by one soul, & have every where been successful. The king of Prussia was defeated by the brave Coscioski before Warsaw, & instead of subduing it was very glad to reach his own dominions, without waiting for his artillery & baggage, a considerable part of which he has left in the care of the poles who are, it is said going to use it against some part of his own dominions. Nor has his partner & associate in villany Catherine been much more successful. The fact is they begin now to fear, particularly Austria & Prussia that those new principles as they are called (the love of liberty by the by is old as man) are getting out in some parts of their own dominions.

AUTHORITY OF JUSTICES OF THE PEACE

Mount Dorchester 14 Nov^r 1794

Dear Sir: Your favor of the 21st Ult^o covering a Note of Costs on a penal Judgement and stating a Question upon the Demand I recvd this day. As the Case is stated as a Magistrate for future guidance I am less scrupulous in offering my opinion than if the reference was merely individual. As I am unacquainted with the Terms of your police regulations since I was in Detroit I cannot speak for the Letter of them, but I know of no general Law which gives you power to create offences and levy the penalties. The ord^{ce} of Justice under which your former regulations were made subjected the recovery of all penalties to Suit in the Common pleas where of Cource Costs were given as in an Action of Debt. But I fear on a summary Conviction before a Single Justice out of sessions no Costs were recoverable by any Statute prior to the 14^h of the King which is the Epoch of our criminal Code, altho' I think by a subsequent Statute the 18^h Geo 3^d, some provision is made for Costs in such Cases, but it has not force of Law here

It is a general Rule of Law, that the Jurisdiction of Justices without the Intervention of a Jury being contrary to the provisions of Magna Charta, must de derived from some Statute and on the same principle, that the Statute which gives the Authority must be rigidly pursued. Therefore in your Case if the Act or ord^o makes no special provision for Costs none can be adjudged. In hazarding this Statement of the Law I am possibly committing an Impropriety should I have misconstrued your letter and you prove a party in lieu of the Justice in the business, for the appeal in all such Cases goes to the K B. so that in Justice to me if you are y^e party You will pay the Costs and let the business sleep.

I hear that some new regulation is adopted respect^s the Grant of Lands and that the Boards are congediee We hear also of a proclamation for restraint of Sale of Rum to Indians in the Ind^a Country. LETTERS AND PAPERS: 1795

Woolwich le 3 Fevrier 1795

Ma tres chere Mere, Quoique j'ai ecrie une longue lettre à mon chere Pere, le commencement du Moi passé, lui marquant toutes les Nouvelles, je ne puis neanmoins me priver du plaisir, de m'entertener, avec ma bien aimé mere, et lui dire, que j'ai entendue parler d'elle, et la famille, par un Messieur, qui vous a tous vue bien derneirement. Nous fumes dinner chez Monsieur et Madame M^cTavish, environs une semaine passé, et la, nous avons rencontré Monsieur M^cGillevy, qui est la personne, qui m'a donné l'agreable information, quil vous avoit tous laissé en bonne santé au Detroit, dans le Mois de Septembre dernier, il m'a aussi dit, que Monsieur Hamilton devoit venir cette Hiver en Angleterre, je m'attend donc, à recevoir de vos cheres lettres bien vite, comme l'on attend Monsieur H. tous les jours, qui auroit sans doute la charge de vos lettres, je n'avoit pas pensé d'entendre, de si bonnes nouvelles, quand j'ai entré la maison de Monsieur M^cTavish, comme je ne scavoit pas que ce Monsieur etoit arrivé, mon heureusté fute bien extreme sur l'occasion, et la bonne humeur, et façon plaisante, de toutes la compagnie, nous a causé de passer une bien agreable journée. Monsieur Robertson, et Todd, etoit de la partie, ainsi que plusieurs autre Merchants de Canada, le Major Malcom, du soixante cinq et sa dame devoit avoir été de la partie, mais la visite d'un de leur amies, de la campagne, leurs à empeché de venir. Madame M^cTavish est embonpoint, et pense accoucher dans peu de tems, le lendemain nous avons été voir une affaire bien curieuse, ce sont des figures de cire, qui paroisse animé, comme sils etoit vivant, enfin s-ca ma parue bien extraordinaire et superbe, je n'auroit mit foie dans la description d'une personne, qui m'auroit dit de telles choses, si ne les avoit pas vue moi meme.

J'ai remarqué, que toutes les dames porte leurs jupes toutafait sur leurs bras, afin d'avoir les tailles courtes, les sash sont de la largeur d'un étroite colier, est attaché dans une boucle derniere, les mouchoirs sont bien ouvert, comme auparavant, et le tour de cou bien étroite, pour les cheveux, ils sont pendant derriere, est coiffé devant, en petits boucles, avec un morceau de ruban, alentour de la tete, ou un bandeau de musline, et meme un mouchoir de musline clair arrangé en coiffure, et une plume blanc dedans, est toutafait le ton, pour les premiers compagnies, par consequence, l'on n'as pas besoin de se mettre à une grande depense, pour se couvrir la tete, ayez la bonté ma chere mere de dire, à ma chere soeur Therese, que cette partie de la lettre est adressé à elle, et quelle peut s'habillier au ton pour le premier Balle du Detroit; je me propose de lui ecrire une longue lettre, par la premiere occasion qui se presente, cette à dire, par le Pacquet du Mois prochain, devant quelle tems, la Princesse de Brunswick, qui vient pour etre marie au Prince de Gal, l'on suppose sera arrivé, et comme c'est imaginé, quelle donnera la mode peutetre (comme je suis Femme de si grande consequence) que j'aurais dans mon pouvoir d'expliquer la ton, ne riez vous pas ma chere mere d'entendre parler comme cela, votre petite Madame Snipe.

J'ai recue une lettre quelle que tems passé, de ma petite Cousine Therese Mercer, ma tante, et le resté de la famille, se portoit bien, nous leurs avions promis de passer quelque jours chez eux cette Hyver, mais comme mes enfans sont

trop jeune pour voyager, et la situation de mon man, point de tout fixée, ce sont des circonstances qui nous empecherons, de pratiquer le souhait, que nous avions d'aller les voir, je ne doute pas, que Monsier Mercer a ecrire à mon cher Pere, par cette occasion, pour moi, je trouve le tems bien long, depuis que j'ai recue des lettres de la famille, les derniers que j'ai recue, etoit datté, le seize d'Avril passé, qui est presque un An, mes prieres sont toujours pour le bien de la famille est dans l'heureuse esperance, que mes cheres parens, &c possede une bonne santé, et la grande affection, et attention, de mon cher Meredith, je me rend aussi heureuse, quil est possible, de l'etre, il faut àpresent penser à conclure, afin de laisser un part de ce papier à mon cher M. qui me prie de faire son amitié à ma chere Mere, et toute le famille, faite aussi (sil vous plait) mes tendres souvenirs à le Commodore, ma Tante Grante, Cousine Wright, mes autres petites Cousines, Oncle Barthe, les deux qui sont à Michilimackinac, à Jean et sa femme, mes compliments à tous mes conaissances, embrassez mon cher Pere et Therese pour moi, ainsi que les enfans, et croyez moi ma tres chere Mere votre affectionné fille

My dearest Mother: Although I wrote a long letter to my dear father early last month, telling him all the news, I cannot, nevertheless, deprive myself of the pleasure of a chat with my beloved mother and of telling her that I have heard of her and of all the family from a gentleman who has seen you all very recently. We dined with Mr. and Mrs. McTavish¹ about a week ago, and there met a Mr. McGillivray,²

who gave me the pleasing information that he had left you all well in Detroit last September. He also told me that Mr. Hamilton is coming to England this winter. I expect, therefore, to receive letters from you very soon as Mr. Hamilton is expected any day now and will doubtless have charge of your letters. I had not expected such good news when I entered the house of Mr. McTavish as I did not know the gentleman had arrived. My happiness was extreme, and the good humor and pleasant manner of all the company made the day pass most agreeably. Mr. Robertson and Mr. Todd were of the party, and several other Canadian merchants. Major Malcolm,³ of the Sixty-fifth and his wife, were to have been there but were detained by the visit of a friend from the country. Mrs. McTavish is enceinte and expects her confinement soon.

The next day we went to see the strangest thing, nothing less than wax figures that seemed animated as if alive. In fact they were so very extraordinary and magnificent that I would not have believed it if anyone had told me of them unless I had seen them myself.

I notice that all the ladies are wearing their skirts almost under the arms so as to raise the waist line. Sashes are about the width of a narrow collar and are fastened at the back with a buckle. Neckerchiefs are very open as formerly and the neckband very narrow. The hair is curled, hanging at the back and arranged in small curls in front, with a piece figures among the Montreal fur traders. He was a member of the firm of McTavish, Frobisher & Co., and a leading partner in the North West Company, having bought out the interest of Peter Pond in 1790. In 1797 he became one of the Montreal agents of the company, it being his duty to make yearly visits to the upper country and there make settlements and assignments for the succeeding year. Upon the reorganization of the company in 1804 he became recognized as its chief spokesman. Fort William at the western end of Lake Superior, begun in 1801 and for twenty years thereafter the western headquarters of the company, was named for him. In 1818, having amassed a fortune and impaired his constitution by his labors in the fur trade, McGillivray returned to his native Scotland, where he purchased, for £20,000, an estate in Argyshire. Here he died in 1825. See Davidson, The North West Company, passim, and Wis. Hist. Colls., XIX, 167-68.

³ Alexander Malcolm, commissioned captain in the army, April 14, 1780, and in the Sixty-fifth Regiment, June 10, 1785. In 1787 he was serving as commandant of Fort Ontario. He was transferred to the Seventy-eighth (Highland) Regiment on March 8, 1793. Two years later (March 11, 1795) he was commissioned lieutenant colonel. See British army lists and Mich. Pio. Colls., XI, 508.

of ribbon or a band of muslin around the head; even a thin lawn handkerchief arranged for a headdress, with a white feather in it, is very fashionable in the best society, so there is no need of going to great expense about dressing the hair.

Be so good, my dear Mother, as to tell my dear sister Therese, that this part of my letter is for her, and how she is to dress in style for the next Detroit ball. I intend to write her a long letter by the next opportunity, that is, by next month's vessel. By that time it is thought that the Princess of Brunswick, who is coming for her marriage with the Prince of Wales, will have arrived, and that she will, in all probability, set the fashion, and (as I am a lady of some consequence) I shall then be able to rehearse the styles. Do not laugh, dear Mother, to hear me talk so, your little Madam Snip.

It is now about time I told you something of your little grandchildren, who are, I am happy to say, like myself, in perfect health. My little Anne has grown into a very pretty child. She can say the alphabet and is learning to spell. She knows her prayers, too, and seems to take great pleasure in hearing about her grandmother, begging me to tell her more, and then struts around the room with her head up, so proudly. My son David still looks the same. He is very fair and is walking. The children are very fond of each other, and proud enough when their dear father shows them any attention.

I had a letter some time ago from my little cousin, Therese Mercer. Aunt and the rest of the family were all well. We promised to make them a visit of some days this winter, but the fact that the children are still too young to travel and my husband's situation, so unsettled, has prevented us from going to see them as we wished. Doubtless Mr. Mercer has written to my dear father by this same opportunity. As for me, I find the time very long since I have received any letters from the family. The last I got were dated April 16th last, almost a year ago. I pray always for the health of the family, and in the happy hope that my dear parents and the rest are in good health, with the sincere affection and attentions of my dear Meredith, I make myself as contented as possible. Now I must think about stopping, so as to leave a part of this sheet for my dear M., who begs me to offer his regards to my dear Mother and to all the family. Also, (if you please) give my affectionate remembrance to the Commodore, Aunt Grant, Cousin Wright, my other little cousins, Uncle Barthe, the two who are at Mackinac, John and his wife, and my compliments to all my friends. Kiss my dear Father and Therese for me, also the children, and believe me, dearest Mother,

Woolwich 3rd Febr^y 1795

My dear Sir * * * * * It would be highly gratifying to me could I say that our affairs went well on upon the Continent—my report must be indeed very different—for the Enemy have bore down all before them, and at the present moment, and for these ten days past, are perfect Masters of all Holland. The French General Pichgrew has his Head Quarters at Amsterdam in the house (till lately) occupied by the great Banke[r] Hosse. The Prince of Orange and whole family very narrowly escaped being Nabb'd, the Stadtholder himself landed at Harwich in an open boat, rowed across by only three Men and a Boy, the whole of that illustrious unfortunate House of Orange are now lodged in Hampton Court Palace, with much comfort to themselves and well protected. Mark the consequence. Orders were instantly sent to every Port in this kingdom to stop Dutch Vessells of every Description—the event has been that several Men of War, that were preparing to sail from Plymouth, also Indiamen richly laden, have fall'n into the Trap, in short, the different Vessells with Property already seized in London river, &c &c, and for the Benefit of the Stadtholder, is computed to amount to Eight Millions. To the pointed Disloyalty of the Dutch, and Rivers being froze sufficient for the Mass of sans culottes to pass with their artillery &c., is to be attributed the fall of Holland, which independant of immense treasure to the French has given them at least Twenty Sail of the Line, the conduct of the Dutch has been infamous for a long time to our Soldiers (who were fighting their Battles). They have for several Months given every possible insult. Old England is still determined, allies or no allies, to Battle out the business, and now we shall have a Dash at Von Dutchman, a squadron is already sent forth, which brings their rich ships in by dozens, so that the Stadtholderian Family will not be any burthen to this Country. The French Grand Fleet, consisting of Thirty-Six Sail of the line, and Twenty Frigates, have been at Sea for some time in hopes to fall in with some of our Convoys expected home. Our Grand Fleet (and such a one so equipp'd as never sail'd out of the Channel) under the Gallant Earl Howe, consisting of Thirty-three Sail of the Line & a proportionate number of Frigates & Fireships, sail'd from Spithead with a fine Wind about Five days since, in quest of the Republican Fleet—every Loyal and honest heart in this Country hopes they may still be [torn] and that Lord Howe may fall in with them. He is gone to lay of[f] Brest and prevent their enterance—so great was his hurry having a fair wind that he did not bring too of[f] Plymouth as was intended. The numerous Men of War for all parts assembled there, on account to wait the event, are there [torn] to join him. The utmost exertions are now making in the Naval [torn] so than ever before, all the old Sixtys and Line of Battle Ships and many that never were intended to serve again are now ordered out and will have temporary repairs &c—and Government have even taken into the service a great many East Indiamen to be converted into 40 Gun Frigates, and to man this more than Extraordinary Navy, Meetings have been convened by the Mayor and Corporations of every Maritime Town in these Dominions, directed by [torn] Dundas's circular letter, and the Merchants are to find for the Navy one Man for 70 Tons and so on Twenty-Two Young Regiments are to be immediately turned aboard—in short it is intended to have a fleet of 150 Sail of the Line, besides Frigates &c &c and that too in a very short space of time—'tis now that Ministers are become aroused, and are acting in a proper way, viz. directing the Fight upon that Element which this country has been renowned for—the Computed Land Force in this country at this time including our Corps &c &c is 150 Thousand Men—immense Camps will be formed early in the Spring on the coasts of Essex, Norfolk & Suffolk, comprizing the Eastern Division, and likewise all along the Southern Coast, for as the French have now obtained and seiz'd the greatest part of the Dutch Navy and being immediately opposed to our Eastern Shores, it is now firmly believed (in the Triumphant State in which they are) that they will attempt different Landings, indeed I sincerely wish they may put it in practice, for although it may cause a bustle and be attended with inconvenience at first, yet it would serve to unite John Bulls to each other, and there is little doubt but John would soon turn out to defend his Dirty Acres. The remnant of our Brave Troops who have been obliged to retreat to Embden are to be immediately brought home by way of the Elbe. A large reinforcement of Troops have sail'd to secure the safety of our West India Conquests and the largest Detachment of Artillery accompanied that every went from England at one time, namely 520 Men which in addition to those of our Corps already makes more than a thousand artillery Men. Speaking of our Regiment I am sorry to add that we have lost His Grace of Richmond as Master General. He received a letter of Dismission from the King on Monday last, and the Marquis Cornwallis is the one named with certainty as his successor, 'tis said the reason of his dismissal was because He would not attend the Cabinet, and was of very different Sentiments. We have reason to regret him for he has done much for the prosperity of the Regiment. We are going to invite him to a grand Mangé in testimony of our wishes towards him. The Marquis Cornwallis is a good man, and also a Friend to the Corps, having ever mentioned the Artillery most handsomely in his different Dispatches officially to Ministers. We yet expect much augmentation.

in letting my dear husband and my dear children go away. I believe if their father had not taken them I should not have consented to their going.⁴ However, I do not approve of such a distance for schooling, and running so much risk. They left here January 18, a very cold day, and slept in the woods seven nights, but thank God they have not had any bad weather. Mr. Hamilton and our men walked. They were quite a party. Major Powell, who is to stop at Fort Erie, Capt. Brant,⁵ and our young people went a day's march with them. The first two went on with them. It is now three weeks since they returned. Mr. Hamilton and our dear children were well. They were very brave. The snow was knee-deep. The children were on a sled drawn by a horse, with the provisions and baggage. They were well wrapped in furs and were not affected by the cold. They would go fifteen miles a day and then camp an hour before sundown. They made a big fire and ate their dinner. In the morning they had tea, and they had enough of it, with biscuits, for the whole journey. I am telling you all about the journey so that you can show it to Mama, for I know that you are both interested. It is the first conveyance that has ever gone through the woods. For my part, I cannot thank God enough for having taken such care of them on the way, so far from help of any kind. I have received several letters from Mr. Hamilton; he never missed a chance for writing. In the last, they were over all the worst part of the road. They reached New York in good time and we suppose they are now on the ocean. May God watch over them and grant them a pleasant, happy voyage, for that is another source of anxiety for me. I look every day for letters from New York.

⁴ Mrs. Hamilton's two elder children, William and John Robertson, were already in England, where they had been sent several years earlier to be educated. The children whose departure is described in the present letter, were Robert, George, and Alexander Hamilton, who were born, respectively, in 1786, 1788, and 1790. Mrs. Hamilton died toward the close of 1796, while her children were still in England. Their subsequent careers in Canada are all a matter of local knowledge. Robert married Mary Biggar, and died at Queenston in 1856. George married Maria Jarvis, and became the founder of the city of Hamilton. Alexander married Hannah Jarvis and lived at Queenston, where the mansion built by him is still well preserved.

I shall take advantage of the first vessel in the spring to go to Detroit for I find the time very long. Mr. Thomas Dickson⁶ is to go with me. Mr. Hamilton spoke to him, making that arrangement, for I feared you would be too busy, also my brother John. He may, perhaps, be able to bring me back. The two little ones are well and kiss you. My best respects to my dear Mama, and I remain, dear Father, until I have the pleasure of seeing you,

Your very humble and affectionate daughter

Catherine Hamilton.

On Nov. 17, 1799, Dickson married, at the home of Robert Hamilton, Mrs. Eliza Taylor, a young widow whose father, Captain Wilkinson, was commandant of Fort Erie. See letter of Robert Nichol to John Askin, Nov. 16, 1799, ms. in Burton Hist. Coll., and Buffalo Hist. Soc., Pubs., VI, 80-81. Eliza Dickson died Sept. 6, 1802, leaving one son, John Alexander; on Sept. 20, 1803, Thomas Dickson married (second) Archange Grant of Detroit, a daughter of Commodore Grant. Two daughters were born of this union. See Niagara Hist. Soc. Pubs., No. 19, p. 39, and Major Alpine's Ancestors and Descendants.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS that Whereas Patrick M^e Niff Surveyor, John Askwith Notary Public, Israel Ruland^s Silversmith, John Askin Sen^r, and

8 Israel Ruland was born on Long Island, May 2, 1758. Probably Gerrit Graverat was responsible for his coming to Detroit; at any rate on July 27, 1773, Ruland, then a boy of fifteen, apprenticed himself to Graverat until he should reach the age of twenty-one. When this period arrived, he was operating as a trader in the Wabash region with headquarters at Vincennes. He supported actively the American cause on the advent of Clark in the Illinois country, and seems to have been particularly active in efforts to relieve American captives who had been carried to Detroit and vicinity. In 1781 he signed, as a resident of Vincennes, a petition of remonstrance to the Virginia government against the exactions of Clark's successors in the Illinois. The present document indicates that he had established himself at Detroit prior to 1795. Ten years later he was living at Raisin River settlement, where he served on the first grand jury of Monroe County in 1805. He died shortly prior to June 18, 1817, at which date his son, Isaac, was in Detroit, engaged in settling claims against the estate of his lately deceased father. Ruland married the widow of Hugh Smith, of Vincennes, a few months after the death of her husband. In 1805 he entered into an agreement with Solomon Sibley whereby the latter was to prosecute at Washington his claim for a grant of land to compensate him for property losses sustained by reason of his flight from Canada as a refugee during the Revolution. This document affords the only clue we have found to his history prior to his appearance in Indiana as a trader. In 1799 Col. David Strong, in a letter to Sibley requesting the latter to exert his influence with Governor St. Clair to procure for Ruland a licence to trade with Blue Jacket's tribe of Indians, recited that Ruland was an honest man "and one that has done great service to many poor prisoners who have been brought into this country [i. e. Detroit], and paid sums of money for the redemption of many, for which he never got any compensation, and which has reduced him very much." See Mich. Pio. Colls., IV, 319 and X, 355-56; Ill. Hist. Colls., VIII, 433; and mss. in Burton Hist. Coll., passim.

John Askin Jun^r Merchants All of Detroit in the Western District and Province of upper Canada, And Alexander Henry of Montreal Merchant, some of whom have purchased sundry tracts of Land from the Chiefs and principal Leaders of the Ottawa and other nations of Indians, or people on that side of the Line in the Western District Ceded to the American States and as they think it may be attended with mutual advantage to make a joint concern or partnership in the Lands already purchased since the Twenty-first of may last, or that may hereafter be purchased by any of the parties concerned in the said Partnership. THEY HAVE therefore entered into the following Agreement, That is to say that whatever Lands have been already purchased as aforesaid, or may hereafter be purchased by them, or either or any of the said Parties concerned as above mentioned from the Indians, whether in either or any of the names of the said parties, during the whole of the present year one thousand seven hundred and ninety five (but not after that period unless by consent of the said parties) shall become the joint property of the aforesaid Persons, each to hold an equal share, and that each of the said parties concerned shall pay an equal share of every thing given or expended upon the Indians for the payment of said Lands so purchased. THAT Patrick McNiff shall be paid by the concern for drawing the Sketches and Plans, and Surveying the said Lands, and John Askwith for drawing the Deeds and other writings concerning the said Tracts of Lands; IT IS ALSO further agreed by the said Parties that Patrick McNiff, John Askwith, and Israel Ruland be deputed to go to the Grand Council⁹ with the Indian Chiefs to transact the business of the concern with the Commissioners of the American states, AND as such voyage will be attended with much trouble and loss, by being absent from their several occupations and professions: In case the said Tracts of Land shall be ratified and confirmed by the Congress of the United States of America or other persons authorised to confirm the same to the said Parties their Heirs and assigns forever. Then and in that case the said M^cNiff, Askwith and Ruland shall be paid for such Loss of time and trouble, One hundred Pounds New York Currency each by the whole of the parties concerned with All other expences attending the said Journey or Voyage. BUT if the said Lands should not be ratified and confirmed, then, and in that case, the said M^cNiff, Askwith and Ruland shall only be paid the sum of Twenty-five Pounds each and their expences as aforesaid, by the whole of said parties. AND it is further agreed by the said parties that as the said Alexander Henry is admitted to hold an equal share in the concern, that he be also invested with full power and Authority to give or grant in their names any quantity of said Lands to whomsoever he may think proper, not exceeding a one-seventh part or share, provided by that means he get the said Indian Deeds, or grants ratified and confirmed to the said parties our Heirs and assigns forever but not otherwise, and such seventh person shall also pay an equal share with the rest of all disbursements and expences whatsoever.

BUT provided the said Deeds or grants shall not be confirmed as foresaid, The said John Askin Sen^r John Askin Jun^r and Alexander Henry shall make no charge whatever for any trouble in endeavouring to obtain a confirmation, or, about the Purchase of said Lands, for Voyaging or Traveling expences but only for their proportion of money or goods advanced to the Indians on account of the purchases. It is likewise agreed by the said parties, that each and every of them shall and may be at liberty to appropriate a certain part of any Tract he hath or may hereafter purchase, for his own proper use or as a Domaine for himself and his Heirs forever, and which he or they shall not be obliged or compelled by the rest of the said parties, or their Heirs, to sell, grant or dispose off, unless he or his Heirs or Assigns may think proper, but to be solely at his or their disposal independent of the aforesaid partnership or concern: But it is to be understood, that such part or parcel of Land that each of the said parties may so appropriate for his own

Detroit, July 2, 1795

Dear Sir and Friend: My son is a great friend of the Indians and they have been so importunate that he should accompany them to the treaty and help them, that he could not refuse. They are naturally good, I think, and do wrong only when badly advised. If anyone wished to make an agreement with them, as between one people and another, as for instance their relinquishment of title to their lands in order to dispose of it to someone whom they favored, I am convinced that such action would never be the cause of any trouble between them and the Americans. You know yourself how much more effective are such dealings free from compulsion and honest, than any political interference.

I beg you kindly to give my son any money or other things he may need, and I shall either credit your account or pay you the amount of his indebtedness. He will find himself among people with whom you are familiar, though strangers to him, and any assistance you may give him in this respect will, I assure you, be remembered if the occasion ever offers that I am able to return the kindness you show him.

Mrs. Askin and family present their compliments.

J[ohn] A[skin]

MISSION OF JOHN ASKIN JR. TO GREENVILLE

Detroit July 5th 1795

Dear John As you were much hurried at leaving this and may have forgot part of what I said to you I think it advisable to repeat the principal matters I spoke to you about.

First I recommend strongly to you to use your Utmost Influence, not only with the Indians but also with all others whose advice they take to Endeavour that the first article of the Treaty between them and the Americans Should be that they are sole Masters of their Lands, to dispose of them as they think fit without any restraint Whatsoever which if it can be obtained will be a future Source of wealth for these poor people and their offspring and Leave it in their powers, not only to confirm such sales of Land as they have already made (when they know them to be Just) but in future to reward such others as may be their Friends. This Appears to me so reasonable and fair, that I should think the Commissioners for the states could not object to it; and it would secure in my Opinion a Lasting Peace between both, which I apprehend never will be the case should the states lay a Claim to the Indian Lands or force them to a sale for when what they get is Expended, and their successors in want they will probably have recourse to Violent means tho' they Should not succeed.

But as it is necessary to provide against the worst, if the Indians thro the needy Interpreters Should be prevailed on in spite of all you can do to agree that the Americans have the Right of confirming the sales of their Lands, and that none can be Valid without No doubt you will in that case produce your Claims and get the Indians to acknowledge them in open Council and take necessary Steps to secure them, but never at the expense of betraying the Interests of the Indians since the object of Your voyage was to serve them. I am apprehensive that undue means may be taken to gain over the needy Interpreters who have Influence with the Indians to persuade them to Sell or give up the Right of selling their Lands to the states. I know You [are] above bribery let the offer be ever so great. Therefore have nothing to Say on that subject, however other Means may be tried to gain you over such as making you a proposal of so much a year to manage the Indian affairs of the Ottawas and Chippewas who have Urged you to go with them. If that Should happen no doubt you will reject it. Some of Our double Friends have said they would make known to General Wayne those Who acted against him Last year; Poor, Weak, Worthless People, to think that any man in power would dislike those who have faithfully done their duty to the Government they lived under. as you have no favour to ask, and are only with the Indians at their request to befriend them with your advice and to Explain what they Say, you need not care for the snubbs or frowns of any man, you have the means of procuring what you want while at Fort Greenville, Therefore except what good manners and politeness requires is all you have to do with the American Gentlemen who may be there. I before mentioned it to you and now repeat it again that if any articles of Agreement Should be proposed to the Indians by the Americans which they or you do not clearly understand such as Long conventions in writing, You Should advise the Indians to ask leave to send a Copy of it in here before they give an Answer.

It will be necessary for the Indians with whom you go in the first council they hold to mention who you are, and for what purpose you are gone with them So as you may be distinguished from the numbers who are gone without being asked, to Serve their own private Ends only. I have only to add that in any matter of difficulty send an Indian to me with an Account of What has passed. The family are well and we all wish you success and a speedy return.

Adieu Dear John

Dear Henry I have wrote you frequently of late on business. Mr. James M^cGill will give you the copy of a letter I wrote my Son since his departure from this with the Indians by which you will see I have left nothing in my power undone. as you will be wrote to at Philadelphia by the concerned at Fort Grenville I hope you will not have lost any time to get there, if you should be so fortunate as to get the Lands confirmed we will be once more on our legs. I mean myself Indeed I have the greatest doubt in the world that the Americans & Indians even jointly can take these Lands from us & if necessary I would employ the first man of the Law in the States to give it a fair trial before I would consent to give them up. the family send their best wishes & I remain in haste

REMEDY FOR AGUE

Dear Sir Your kind Letter dated the 11th of May last did not reach me untill a few days ago, we are all extremely Happy to learn that You and your good family are well and that your Improvements are so far advanced. We enjoy tolerable good health except Therese who has had the fever and ague for Some time Past. She is now however better.

This disorder is so common this season that very few escape it and what is worse tho the bark in large Quantities breaks the fit yet it always returns after a few weeks; what has been found More Effectual to many is a kind of strawberry Leaf & root, with an Other Small Plant, a small handful of Each Boiled in about two Quarts of water & reduced a Third makes a decoction which may be drank at all times the Quantity of a Pint or half a Pint at a time, and has cured many Very soon and Lessed the fit in Others; M^{rs} Hamilton knows these herbs. She now returns and during her stay here has enjoyed very good Health.

There is a great Jumble of actions and opinions now here, the poor Indians are much at a Loss what to do many advising them to go to Fort Greenville to the Treaty and Others not, in general they have followed the former and the Chiefs of the Chippewas and Ottaways have been so Urgent with my Son to go with them as he understands their Language and Speaks English that he with my approbation is gone, my sole Motive for which was to Assist these poor people & if Possible to get them not to give up their right to their Lands, which in future will perhaps be the Only resource they may have against want when their alliances without [will not] be Sought Either by our neighbours or ourselves. I should hope the States may be prevailed on to Conclude a Peace with them without laying any Claim to their soil or Interfering in their sales of it otherwise than to see that They are not defrauded for as my Ideas in general differ from many others it appears to me that the state has no more right to meddle in the sales of their Lands than in that of their furs. for I foresee there will be plenty of Employment for them soon, great purchases of late have been made from Indians & I'm told the same spot has been sold to Several. If I had nothing to do in the former purchases that is [not] now the case. a[s] I hear so often the man of Landed property is the man on that score I will have something to say provided my pretentions Should be good

I am very Thankful to you for your kind Intentions of not announcing to me any thing You think might give me pain, but I have long Since made up my mind not to be uneasy at what happens many things turning out for our good when we do not think so, so long Or [as it] is The will of the Almighty to keep Sickness from my Family I can support most other mistfortunes. Therese wrote M^{rs} Powel last Vessell. She with M^{rs} Askin Joins most sincerely in ever wish that may tend to the happiness of you & I remain most truly.

Dear Sir I was favoured with your letter from S^t Mary's P M^r Nelson,¹⁰ who arrived two days ago and sails

¹⁰ Another manuscript, dated July 13, 1795, shows that this was Jonathan Nelson, a resident of Detroit, who, upon the British evacuation, elected to remain a subject of Great Britain. In 1805 he was one of those who gave bail for Captain Muir and Ensign Lundy of the Amherstburg garrison, who were committed by the Detroit civil authorities for an attempted seizure of a British deserter. This would seem to indicate that Nelson at this time had property in Detroit. He served in the War of 1812 on the

I'm very glad you are to come this way. I think its necessary for several reasons. Among others M^r Nolan¹¹ had discovered something wrong in M^r Williams¹² his conduct & I'm sorry to say that from late information here I fear its but too true. If that should be the case I recommend strongly your getting another Master for there is no such [thing] as providing against a mans embezzling who has the Keys of the Hatches. In conversation with M^r Drake I Discover that he would be as well satisfied to return as stay on shore and I really have ever found him a perfect honest man. British side, being a sailing master in the marine service. In 1819 he joined with other residents of Sandwich and Amherstburg in a petition concerning the purchase of the Huron reserve near the latter place. Nelson married Elizabeth Donovan, one of whose sisters married Matthew Elliot, and another, Robert Innis. Information adapted from Mich. Pio. Colls., passim; Proceedings of the Land Board of Detroit, 166.

¹⁵ Colonel Ebenezer Allen, who was born in Northampton, Mass., Oct. 17, 1743, and passed his mature life in Vermont. He grew up at New Marlboro, Mass., where, in 1762, he married a Miss Richards. In 1768 he removed to Bennington, Vt., and in 1771 to Poultney. He served with considerable distinction in the Revolution, in which he won his title of colonel. In 1779 he and a group of associates were granted a township of land in Rutland County, and soon after he began the settlement of what later became the town of Grand Isle. In 1792 Colonel Allen made an extended journey into the Northwest, returning enthusiastic over the idea of locating in that region. In the autumn of 1795 he was one of the associates with Askin and others who under-

Isle in the state of vermont is said to be the purchaser there are no Lands in this Country near equal to what we Claim, as a vessel of 50 or 60 Tons can come Loaded to the greater Part of it. In all your Sales give no warrentie but such as the Indian Deed affords, and in Case You are not Immediately on giving a Deed paid the whole of the Purchase Money (which we do not Expect can be the Case) We would not recommend Your taking a Mortgage on the Land Sold, as Security for the Remainder we rather Recommend your taking good personal Security or a Mortgage on some other Lands that may be Improved

REPORT TO COLONEL ENGLAND ON MISSION TO GREENVILLE

Detroit August 19th 1795

Sir Being induced both from duty and inclination, I take the liberty of giving you an account of my voyage to Fort Greenville, with what came to my knowledge while I resided there; it will I fear be rather long, but lest the parts I might leave out would be those you wished to be acquainted with, I have thought it adviseable to enter in it every thing that appeared to me any way material.

It is as follows

Several Indian Chiefs of the Chippawa and Ottawa Nation with whom I was well acquainted urged me much to accompany them to the Council at Greenville, assigning for their reasons, that as the business They were going on was of great importance to them they stood in need of a faithfull Interpreter and friend.

After obtaining my Fathers concurrence I left this on the took to engineer a deal whereby they should obtain title to the entire lower peninsula of Michigan, together with large portions of northern Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio. At a subsequent date he endeavored to purchase from Askin and his associates in the Cuyahoga speculation, their interest in that enterprise. A biography of Allen is in Vermont Historical Gazetteer, Abby Hemenway, ed. (Burlington, 1871), II, 579-83. Allen's connection with western land speculation is disclosed by various manuscripts in the Burton Hist. Coll. On the attempted grab of the lower peninsula of Michigan and adjacent territory, see Burton Hist. Coll. Leaflet, III, 58; C. M. Burton, "A Frustrated Land Grab," The Inlander (Ann Arbor), III, 209-14; and partnership agreement printed post, 568-72.

2^d of July and when I reached Fort Defiance it was the 11th by this time the Indians with me were Twenty-Seven in number, allso a Mr Beaubien and a Mr Bouffet who had joined the Indians on the route.

I had a cool reception from Major Hunt¹⁶ who command[ed] there but of this I was aware before my departure Mr McDougal having taken the lead who declared he would make known to the Americans my conduct during the Troubles¹⁷ from this first Fort I was inclined to return, but Major Hunt finding if I did that the Indians would follow me, insisted on my proceeding.

Blue Jacket¹⁸ an Indian Chief who had been sent to bring forward Indians to Council, joined us here and proceeded with us, this night being the 14th Mr McDougal overtook

¹⁶ Thomas Hunt was born at Watertown, Mass., Sept. 17, 1754, where his father was a retail merchant. He served throughout the Revolution from Lexington to the end; in 1791 he entered the U. S. army as a captain, rising in 1803 to the rank of colonel of the First Infantry. He came to Detroit with General Wayne in 1796, and was stationed here for several years. He served subsequently at Fort Wayne, Mackinac, and other posts, and died at Fort Belle Fontaine, Aug. 18, 1808. In 1788 he married Eunice Wellington of Watertown, and to them eleven children were born, several of whom became prominent in the annals of Detroit and the U. S. army. One son, Henry Jackson Hunt, was Detroit's second elective mayor, and married Ann, the daughter of Angus McIntosh. Another son, John Elliott Hunt, married a sister of Mrs. Lewis Cass; another, William Brown Hunt, married a daughter of Judge John L. Leib. One daughter, Ruth, married Abraham Edwards; another, Abigail, became the wife of Col. Josiah Snelling; a third, Eliza, married James G. Souard of St. Louis. Information adapted from Burton, City of Detroit, Mich., 1701-1922, II, 1443-45; and Henry Bond, Genealogies of . . . the Early Settlers of Watertown, Mass. (Boston, 1860), 304.

us it was the 19th before we reached Fort Adams the 20th we got to Fort recovery and the 21st to Fort Greenville, soon after our arrival a Major of Dragoons, said General Wayne wished to see us, we proceeded to the Council House which is situated in the Fort, here General Wayne received us and shook hands with all the Indians. Omissas a Chippawa Chief who had been chosen to speak for the Ottawas, Pattawattomies, & his nation, asked me for a few Strings of Wampum he had given me in charge & with them made the following Speech

Brothers

We the Chippawas looking over our bundles found your Strings of Wampum that had been given us at Muskingum¹⁹ and thought it time to come and see you at the great Council Fire

General Wayne in Return said

I am extremely happy to see you and more so to hear that you brought the Strings of Wampum gave you at Muskingum, You, Omissas spoke like an honest, sensible, and good hearted man, and I take you again by the hand for your honesty

Omissas to General Wayne

Brothers

Should any one say that they advised us to come to this Council or say they brought us to this place, it's false, we came of our own free will and have brought this English man (meaning me) with us to repeat to us what you say in Council and that we may be instructed with every thing that will be said to us and not be so ignorant of this Council as we were of that of Muskingum

I am extremely sorry that I have not been able to accomplish what I wished to have done owing to the number of bad birds who were continually whispering in my Chawanees Chiefs Ears, and have prevented [torn] from coming sooner, however I have a bit of Tobacco from them and they sent me word they wo[uld] come immediately, but I cannot assure you they will.

General Waynes answer

Brothers

I am sensible of the great zeal and wish you have to serve the States and that you have done all in your power for them, I am well persuaded that you met great numbers of bad Birds who did all they could to prevent what you went about

July 22^d No Council

As I was going to the Council I was told by Mons^r Beau-bien not to go, that the Centinel would stop me the Generals aid de Camp told him so, when I stopt the Indians stop't allso & said they would not go but on my telling them it was all the same they could repeat to me at night what had passed they proceeded

July 24

Brothers

We know nothing of the Six Thousand Dollars said to have been given the Indians at Muskingum but as for the Windotts They perhaps know of these Dollars They were accustomed to hord up all they got on these occasions & never let others know of it. The Windotts were displeased & begged leave to give their answer next day.

This day General Wayne Explained that the Six Thousand Dollars, were given in Goods &^{ca} Then the Chippawas were satisfied with the Windotts and said it was true they had received presents, but thought they were given them for having buried the Hatchet and not for Lands

The Miamis spoke and said their Grand Father had given them these Lands and they were told not to sell them nor give them away and of Course the Tribes who had given them at Muskingum had no right to them, and several other words to the same purpose

27

The Indians were allowed to Speak among themselves

28

I wrote to General Wayne for a pass to Return home and Received for Answer to call next day

July 29

Waited on General Wayne he delivered me a letter from Mr Askin which he had opened & Shewed me another asking if I knew the hand writing I said I did it was my Fathers, he then proceeded to read its contents to me and after he had done reading, he said he looked upon me as a Spy & that I deserved death. I told him that I knew of no Spies in time of Peace, he said it was true, but he still had the power of sending me to a Fort in the Woods, and immediately ordered a party of Light Horse to take me to Fort Jefferson, he likewise ordered my papers to be examined & an Officer took out of them two Indian Deeds of Land given me in charge by Gentlemen here which he said would be returned but as yet have not

The Commanding Officer at Fort Jefferson had orders not to let me speak to any one, but in his presence nor to write to any person Except the General, to do him justice he treated me with much civility

In confinement

August 1

The Indians delivered a white Belt of Wampum, requesting I might be set at Liberty, the General gave for answer that I should [be] in Two Days however the 2^d 3^d 4th 5th & 6th elapsed but on the 7th the General wrote me a

note saying I was at Liberty & in it invited me to dine with him on the 8th I got a pass and set off and the 15th arrived here

As I was not at any of the Councils but the first I can only Speak from the reports of the Indians and others who informed me that untill I was some days in Confinement The Indians who went out with me would neither consent to ratify the Muskingum Treaty nor give up their Claims to the disposal of their Lands, nor I am sure ever would had I not been confined and deprived of giving them advice, but being intimidated by the threats of the General saying he would drive them back into the Sea if They did not acquiesce in his demands and seeing the other Nations (from fear and persuasion of some of our Canadian & English Friends) Agree They at last did the same prior to my being released

The Treaty²⁰ so far as I could learn was, that They confirmed the Muskingum Treaty and added to it all the Lands situated on the South side of the Miamis River. They sold six miles square near where Fort Miamis is situated Twelve miles Square at and about [Roche de Bout] were to be given up and such small Spots about them as the English had purchased, & that They should have that matter cleared up, which they accordingly did next day and it was then acknowledged to them that our Government had not given over their Lands

It was reported at my Departure that very soon after a party of Americans were to come by Land to the spott purchased up the River of Razin & take Post there likewise at Sandusky to Build a Fort

I am with due respect Sir

Dear Askin I got to this place on the 16th having been detained at Quebec 5 weeks, while there I received your Letter of the 19th June which I deferred answering untill my coming here, and now I have only time to Tell you I feel my self happy in being on this Side the Atlantick, and amongs^t my friends. I was in hopes to have paid you and my other friends in upper Canada a visit this Summer, but must defer that pleasure untill next Spring, when if alive you may expect to see me. I am attached to your Province, and many people in it. I congratulate you on your friend Will^m Robertson going to Detroit, he is a little violent in Politicks, but those who know him well must think him an honor to Mankind, and it is but Justice to tell you that he retains such regard for you & your family that I am convinced while he had a Loaf of bread he would divide it with any of them, he is not ostentatious in his goodness. I fear he will see the necessity of staying at Detroit for some time Contrary to his intentions I have not had time to enquire concerning business for that I reffer you to the House for the present, and conclude with best respects to M^{rs} & Miss Askin who I am sorry to hear is unwell, the Little Memor^d for Shoes shall be sent, and I have only to assure you that Neither distance of Time or place has nor ever will prevent my subscribing my Self With truth

By its terms the Indian title to the land lying south and east of a line drawn from the mouth of Kentucky River to Fort Recovery, and thence in a general easterly direction to the Muskingum, and northward along that river and the Cuyahoga to Lake Erie, was extinguished. In addition, the title to numerous small tracts surrounding such strategic sites as Fort Wayne, Chicago, and Mackinac, was yielded by the Indians.

PARTNERSHIP FOR PURCHASE OF MICHIGAN PENINSULA²¹

Articles of Agreement entered into & concluded at Detroit this Twenty-Sixth day of September in the year of Our Lord, one Thousand and Seven Hundred & Ninety five For the purpose of obtaining the Pre-emption right from the United States of America and extinguishing the right of the Native Indians to a certain Territory herein after defined between Ebenezer Allen and Charles Whitney of the State of Vermont, and Robert Randall of the City of Philadelphia on the one part, and John Askin, Jonathan Schieffelin, William Robertson, John Askin Junior, David Robertson, Robert Innis & Richard Pattinson all of Detroit on the other part.

The said Territory is Situated on the Lakes Erie, Huron and Michigan, & Bounded by a Line commencing at the

Miamis Village,²² thence down the River of that name,²³ till it falls into Lake Erie, thence along the said Lake up the Channel of the River of Detroit through Lake S^t Clair, up the Channel of the River S^t Clair, thence along Lake Huron to Old Michilimackinac, and thence along Lake Michigan on a South-Westerly direction to Chicagou, thence across the Portage there, and down the Illinois River, 'till a Line drawn due East from the said River strikes the Miamis Village aforesaid, Comprehending all the Lands, Islands & Waters within the said Boundary line.

Article Ist

The said Territory shall be divided into Forty-one equal Shares whereof the said Allen, Whitney & Randall shall hold Thirty six Shares for Themselves and their associates in consideration of Their obtaining thro' the Interest of Themselves and the Influence of Their connexions, the Right of Pre-emption to the said Territory on the most advantageous & moderate terms, from the United States, And the said John Askin, Jon^a Schieffelin William Robertson, John Askin Jun^r shall each hold one share, and the remaining share shall be held by David Robertson, Robert Innis and Richard Pattinson in Equal proportions, In consideration on Their part of the Influence They have over the Indian Tribes, who are the Native proprietors of the said Territory and over those connected with them, which Influence They bind and oblige themselves to exert in that manner, that may most effectually extinguish the Indian Right on the most reasonable and least expensive terms, and, at the same time, tend to ensure to the Settler peaceable possession, and unmolested enjoyment: All this to be done at the general expence of the Forty-one Sharers.

Article II^d

Each holder of a Share is bound to pay his quota of the sum that may be Covenanted for with the United-States

²³ The Maumee River, formerly called the Miamis, from the Indian tribe of the same name.

according to the terms thereof as the price of the pre-emption right to the said Territory, and also the Fees of office (if any), but no other expences or charges whatever.

Article III^d

Should any of the Parties to this Agreement residing at Detroit, be unable to pay, or think the price given or agreed to be given to the United States too high He may upon declaring the same in writing to the proper Parties, Resign, and be as effectually exonerated from every part of this Agreement, as If it had never been, and such share so relinquished, becomes the general property of the United Associates, or Parties, and must be accordingly at their disposal.

Article IVth

Each Party has free and entire right to dispose of his Share, of which however he is bound to give the refusal to the General Association, should They choose to purchase it, but should such Person be one of those whose influence and knowledge of the Indians and Their Connexions, is deemed essential to the promotion of the general views and Interest of the Association, He cannot divest himself of such share, 'till the Indian Rights are extinguished agreeable to the Intent and meaning of the first Article.

Article Vth

It is fully understood that all expences and charges whatever that may be incurred in extinguishing the Indian Right or Title to the said Territory, shall be borne by the Forty-one Sharers respectively, but as it may be found particularly necessary for the general Association, that some of those Gentlemen residing at Detroit, whose long habits of intimacy with the Indian Chiefs and Tribes with their Families and Connexions, whose knowledge of Their language, as well as acquaintance with the situation of the said Territory, should devote their time to this business, for the purpose of making the purchase from the Natives, as well as to accompany those who may be appointed to see that the transaction is fair towards the Indians, and satisfactory to the Association as also to accompany and protect the Surveyors, or others, whose business it may be to lay out or examine the lands, such Persons are bound and obliged to perform such Services upon being allowed a proper Compensation from the Company or Association, for so doing.

Article VIth

As Certain Tracts within the said Limits have been already Conceded by the Indians to John Askin, Jonathan Schieffelin and Their Associates, and of course the Indian Titles to such Tracts Extinguished, no steps they may have or shall hereafter take to obtain for such Tracts the Right and Claim of the United States in their behalf shall be deemed an Infringement of any thing herein containd. It is in the mean time however agreed, and understood, That for such Tracts as the Indians shall acknowledge to have divested themselves of, in favor of the said John Askin and Jonathan Schieffelin and Their Associates, the said Association of Forty-one, shall make them a fair and equitable compensation in proportion to the limits and extent so extinguished

The Parties at Detroit declare and They wish to be fully understood by all the World That as far as they are, or may be concerned in this business, they will on no account whatever be Instrumental in taking any advantage or any step that could deprive Their neighbours and friends the Indians, who in the eye of Nature and Reason, must ever be considered as the sole proprietors of these Lands, of any comfort or means of enjoyment they have heretofore possessed. That on the contrary, it is their Intention, at once to conciliate their affection and promote their Comfort, connecting with these the gradual & peaceable Settlement of the Territory in question. The extension of Trade and Agriculture, without Outrage, Bloodshed, or depredation on the part of the natives.

Article VIIth

If the said Allen, Whitney & Randall and Their Associates, shall not have obtained the pre-emption Right from the United States in three Months after the expiration of the second Session of Congress, counting from the day of the date hereof, then this Agreement to be Null and void.

BURTON HISTORICAL RECORDS

The above Agreement is Reciprocally binding on all and every One of the contracting parties, according to the true Intent and meaning thereof, which Intent and Meaning is to be explained without Equivocation or strained Interpretation, according to the usual sense and acceptation of the words; And in failure of any part [torn] the Party so failing, shall forfeit his Share of [torn] Advances, [torn] or disbursements as effectually as if he had ne[ver entered] into the [torn].

In Witness Whereof, We the said [torn] set Our hands, and affixed Our Seals to four [copies of the] Same Tenor and date, at Detroit the day & [torn].

Ma tres chere Mere Je me suis fait le plaisir de vous ecrire quelleque tems passai est depuis cette lettre vous pouvez vous appercevoir que nous avons changé d'e demeure mais nous pensons qu'e s'a ne sera que pour peu de tems comme m'a santé est entierment retablie pour l'aquelle raison mon cher Meredith etoit venue chercher les cheres enfans est moi. Mais dieu soit benie je mis presentment en parfaite santé ainsi que mon petit David qui cours partout seul par consequent c'est quelque chose de gagné depuis notre arrivé à cette Endroit. Anne aussi s'e porte bien. Il faut presentment vous remercier pour les lettres dont le Captⁿ Shalch s'est chargé pour nous, ils sont arrivé sauf et contienne une information qui me plait toujours beaucoup cette à dire que vous etiez tous en parfaite santé quand vous les avez ecrie. Madame Hamiltone à eu l'a bonté de m'ecrire par l'a meme occasion si javois le tems je lui adresserai quelques lignes mais cette endroit n'est pas si commode pour envoyer les lettres que quand nous etions à Woolwich si proche de Londres. l'a Guerre est une tres mauvaise affaire pour reduire la bourse car toute sorte d'article sont beaucoup plus cher presentment q'icelles ne l'etoit une année passé particulièrement le pain etoit d'un prix enorme mais le prix n'en est pas absolument si grand à present.

Ma cher petite Anne grandie beaucoup elle est bien delicate mais l'air que nous respirons etant si proche de l'a mer lui donne une bonne appetit ainsi q'une parfaite santé est beaucoup de viracité. Je fut bien surprise de voir le Camp à mon arrivé ici car je ne m'etois pas imaginé de voir de si jolies maisons de Canvas, mais l'a difference entre la place ou residoit la millice et le terrain que l'artillerie occupe est assez visible par le nombre de petits jardin remplie de fleurs que l'a millice ont toujours devant leurs portes ainsi que leurs portes peinturé de different couleurs et des vitres fixé dedans pour laisser entrer l'a clairté mais ceux des officiers qui Commande les canons ont pour ornement des centinelles pour garder la poudre et pour soigner tous en Cas d'allarme S'i vous pouvez ma chere Maman voir comme tous est arrangé sur le Camp vous seriez bien etonné car je vous assure que s'a vaut la peine d'observer une affaire de cette sorte le Major M'agregoir auroit une jolie apparance avec son habit rouge et le petit Aide Major apres lui avec son Sabre si long quil seroit en danger de s'e casser le cou sil se promenoit sur en terrien si remplie de ravines comme celui ici. Dite à mon cher pere que je ne ridicule pas s'a Compagnie ce sont les plus brave et beau de toutes la millice du Detroit, le peruquier Foucher feroit un bon tambour sil vouloit s'en donner l'a peine. Vous pourez voir ma tres chere Mere que quoique je suis éloigné de vous je puis cependant badiner et me souvenir de plusieurs petites affaires qui me faisoit beaucoup rire quand jetois proche de vous.

Mon cher Meredith est aussi gaie que jamais la bonne humeur est peint sur son cher visage et comme accoutumé il chante tous la journée. Lavidondé n'est pas oublié et comme j'ai une voix charmante la belle Francoise aide bien à mon gosier. dans une de mes lettres j'ai demandé à ma chere Therese de m'envoyer les mots de l'a Belle Hortense mais elle en à rien dit peutetre q'ulle n'a pas recue la lettre qui mentionne cette chanson. Comme la depense d'ecrire une feuille de papier à chacune de ma chere famille seroit trop enorme je vous prie ma chere Maman de m'excuser si je prend une partie de la votre pour dire quelque mots à ma chere soeur. Mon cher Meredith se joint à moi en vous faisant à tous ses plus tendres souvenirs et soyez assurez ma tres chere Mere que je suis avec l'a plus grande tendresse votre affectionné fille.

Appended:

My dear Sister. I begged my dear mother to excuse my taking part of her letter to explain to Lady Easy the fashions of the times and likewise to thank you for the long sister like letter which you was good enough to write me by Capt.

Schalck,²⁴ they all arrived safe a fortnight ago and I was rejoiced to find by them that you possessed good health.

Mr Robertson I dare say is by this time arrived safe in Detroit and very likely whispering soft things in Therese's Ear altho he has seen many a fair one in this land still he admires the Canadian Ladies, which I conclude the reason he returned unmarried to Detroit, he is a Worthy generous man and both Mr Meredith and myself esteem him much I therefore beg you will remember me kindly to him. As to news there is nothing very material to mention on that subject. Captⁿ Dowdswell²⁵ of the Artillery whom you may remember, made his exit from this World about three weeks ago, the poor unfortunate man could not help taking his Glass too freely which in the end carried him off [f]. Our old Worthy Servant William Brett died of a bad fever some time back, we are however happy in the thought of doing every thing in our power for his Widow and children for M^{rs} Brett is a good willing Creature as she always was and would do anything to serve us.

To begin by the nob no vast alteration has taken place in the way of dressing the hair it is cut short at the sides and likewise on the forehead and not so much worn in curls as it used to be except two large ones at the sides in general ladies of your age wear it down the back and curled at the ends but old women like me turn it up behind. the waists are still very short and not likely to get longer as it has been proclaimed at Court that the Princess of Wales is in a Thriving way therefore les tailles courtes must be the fashion a little while longer. Muslin petticoats very long, no flounces but a broad hem all round. the most fashionable dresses now worn are called Carters frocks the sleeves are short and full very much resembling a shift sleeve with a wristband but no ruffles the handkerchiefs are worn inside and the gown

Gorlestone, October 5, 1795

My dearest Mother: I gave myself the pleasure of writing to you some time ago and since that letter you will see that we have changed our place of residence though we think it will be for a short time only as my health is now entirely restored. Because of that my dear Meredith has come to look us up—the dear children and me. But thank God I am now in perfect health. So is my little David, who is running around alone now. There is that much gained since we came here. Anne is also very well.

I must now thank you for the letters which you sent us by Cap. Schalch. They came safely and contained one piece of news that gave me much pleasure, namely that you were in perfect health at the time of writing. Mrs. Hamilton kindly wrote me by the same opportunity. If I had time I would address a few lines to her, but this place is not as convenient for sending letters as when we were at Woolwich, so near London. The war has a very bad effect on the purse for everything is much dearer now than a year ago, especially bread, which has been enormously high, but it is not really quite so dear now.

On the subject of the war I have nothing pleasant to tell you, unless it is the hope we have of peace before long. Several speak of this as possible in the near future. However, we have a strong force ready to sail for the Islands about the middle of the month. I wish them success but should not like to be in their place. The climate is very bad for anyone not born on the Islands.

I am glad to see that my little sister Adelaide²⁶ writes so well. Please tell her that I thank her for the nice French letter she sent me. It is a good beginning and shows that she takes pleasure in her studies. My dear little Anne is growing finely. She is very delicate, but the air here, near the sea, has given her a good appetite, and I can truly say that she is in perfect health. I was much surprised when I arrived here to see the camp for I had never expected such pretty canvas houses. One notices at once the difference between the soldiers' camping ground and that of the artillery. The soldiers have little gardens filled with flowers in front of their tents, and the doors are painted different colors, with glass set in to admit the light. The officers in charge of the cannon have for ornament some sentinels who keep watch over the powder and who take care of everybody in case of an alarm. If, dear Mama, you could only see the order of everything at the camp you would be astonished, for I assure you it is well worth the effort to see a thing of this kind. Major McGregor would look fine with his red uniform and the little aid-major behind him with such a long sword that he would be in danger of breaking his neck if he marched over ground as full of hollows as it is here. Say to my dear Father that I am not making fun of his company. They are the best and finest looking of all the Detroit militia. Barber Foucher²⁷ would be a good drummer if he would only give himself the trouble. You will see, dearest Mother, that although I am so far away I can joke just the same and that I remember many little things that used to make me laugh heartily when I was with you.

My dear Meredith is as jolly as ever. His face shines with good nature and as of old he sings all day long. We have not forgotten "Lavidondé" and as I have a charming voice, the sweet French helps me to let it out. In one of my letters I asked dear Therese to send me the words of "La Belle Hortense," but she has never referred to it. Perhaps she did not get the letter in which I mentioned the song. As the expense of writing a separate sheet to each one of the dear family would be too great, I beg you, dear Mama, to excuse me if I take a part of yours to say a few words to my dear sister. My dear Meredith joins me—all tender remembrances to you and be assured, dearest Mother, that I am most sincerely

Archange Meredith.

COLLAPSE OF CUYAHOGA SPECULATION

Montreal 7th October 1795

Gent^a According to my promise & your directions I proceeded to New York where I remained near a fortnight before I received your letters from Granville, inclosing the Copies of Deeds of Lands purchased from the Indians, the Postage of which cost Eleven dollars, and by your letters, I find you could do nothing with the Indians in making them keep their promise by introducing it as an article in the Treaty; on this sole point depended our fortunes, for by the best intelligence I could procure it was expected the Indians would have made reservations and which if made, General Wayne would not in the least hesitate in granting. however ²⁷ Pierre Foucher was a native of the parish of St. Sulpice, Paris, who came to Canada and married at Sandwich, Oct. 9, 1786, Mary Frances Blau. They had three children, Pierre, Mary Angelica, and Charles, all born at Detroit in the years 1787-90. Denissen, op. cit.

JOHN ASKIN PAPERS

after consulting my friends, and making proposals according to your instructions, none of which would be accepted I applied to Mr Hamilton the late treasurer for his opin[ion] on my claim on the United States for these lands, upon examining the Deeds, his answer was, that the Deeds were of themselves not valid being improperly drawn first they mentioned the lands so purchased were in the Province of Upper Canada, they therefore could not be in the United States. Secondly it was a Deed of Gift mentioned in the Deeds the Indians could not alienate by Gift real Estate unless to near relations. A valuable consideration should have been mentioned and the Articles given specified, thirdly that [it was] a positive law of the States that they only had the right of Preëmption and no lands could be purchased of the Indians without a particular leave of the Executive of the United States, this law could be not dispensed with by any other means than by treaty between General Wayne and the Indians he also informed me that had the Indians acknowledged to General Wayne in the Treaty they [that] they had disposed of their right of Soil in these lands already and would not resell them, this would have obliged those who purchased from the States, to have obtained the right of Soil from you before they could possess, this was his opinion and was the best that could be procured in the States, but as all is lost by not obtaining any of these things there is nothing more can be done, the only thing remaining is for you to find out what part (if any) of the Lands which were not resold to the States and to have the original Deeds altered as before mentioned and made out for that part only, and then to forward a plan of where they lay, with a Power of Attorney to me to do whatever I may think best for the good of the whole, for it would have been better to give one half away than to lose the whole and this must be done as soon as possible, but without expence, as I have already been at a very considerable charge, without any hope of reimbursement. It is possible you may forward this before the winter setts in, as I will in that case return to New York in the winter. Robert Morrice [Morris] would not do any thing in the business unless the Indians came forward in the Treaty,

FROM JAMES C. FREEMAN TO JOHN ASKWITH

Montreal 20th of October 1795

Dear Sir, It is with pleasure that I inform you that I am well and Hearty and wish this Letter may find you enjoying the same I received Two Letters from my Brother Ezra Freeman about one Month ago Dated at Fort Washington Banks of Ohio June 14th & I also received one Letter from him yesterday Dated Philadelphia 29th of September 1795, on his way to New Jersey Wherein he says I received a Letter from M^r John Askwith who was at the Indian Treaty at Greenville 16th of August, 1795. I wished to have had the pleasure of seeing him But have not I believe him to be much of a Gentleman & does not tell me how he became acquaint[t]ed with you or what induced you to write unto him. he says M^r Askwith speaks very friendly to me of you & I have answered his Letter he further observes that M^r M^e Niff was at Greenville at s^d Treaty and writes to him very fully of me respecting my Petition &c. &c. My Brother informs me that he has spoken to George Turner one of the chief Judges of the North West Territory & to Governor S^t Clair who has the whole ruling North West of the Ohio as a Governor concerning my present situation. It is the opinion of Governor S^t Clair & George Turner that if I draw up a Petition similar to that which was presented to Governor Scimco [Simcoe] Praying that I might become a Citizen of the North west Territory as a Canadian Setler it would be granted & the afores^d Governor S^t Clair & Judge Turner say they will use their influence with the President of the united States in my behalf for granting the same.

My Brother further observes that the Canadians South of Detroit have Petitioned the President of the united States to come under their Jurisdiction and that he is of opinion that M^r Askwith went into Gen^l Wayne with their Petition for that Purpose if this be true that the Canadians have Petitioned the President & s^d Petition [is] granted & whereas Governor S^t Clair & Judge Turner have said they will use their influence in my behalf with the President & it being their opinion I think there is a Probability of its carying. In that case the plan most eligible I think is this for me very early in the spring as soon as the Communication is open to come to Detroit & send a Petition to the President of the united States signed by myself seting forth what induced me to Leave the United States & become a setler at Detroit. another Petition sign^d by the Inhabitants South side of Detroit adressed to the President of the united States & praying I might be permitted to reside among them as a Citizen or something similar to that at the same time praying Governor S^t Clair to use his influence & Judge Turner &° &° & send s^d Petitions to Governor S^t Clair under Cover to be forwarded to the President. I would thank you kindly to call upon M^r M^o Niff and you & him take this matter into Consideration you know how times are at Present at Detroit & give me your Candid opinions & advice what is best to be done. I think I can get inhabitants enough to sign a Petition of that Nature some at Detroit & some at the river oraison [Raisin] & other Places I shall wait your answer & if you think it adviseable I shall come early in the spring. I have wrote to my Brother Ezra Freeman if it ever lies in his Power to be of any Service either to you or M^r M^o Niff not to fail in doing every thing that lies in his Power, which rest assured he will not. I have wrote to my uncle Frederick Frelinghuysen²⁸ (who is one of the Senetors in Congress) who were my Particular Friends at Detroit &° &° so the way is paved in a small Degree it may happen you may want some friends on that side before you die you know my meaning. If I could get this granted is all I ask for all my Landed property is at Fort Washington. I hope you will keep this as an arcanum (or Secret) for If it should be adviseable for me to persue this Plan if known before I come some evill Disposed Persons might endeavour to persuade People not to sign such a Petition if it was required. I also [torn] to write me what method they have [torn] whether they have attempted to take [torn] Lotts No 19 & N° 20, on River La tranch [torn] to some other Person or Persons, you [torn] to inform M^r Askin I shall pay him if it ever lies in my Power to come at my property & every other Person I owe in Detroit I have Property Plenty in the united States as soon as I can come at it. I wish to know how M^r Dolson & Family are & Daniel Fields²⁹ family & if his mill is going as yet. My compliments to all inquiring Friends you will please to have recourse to M^r M^c Niffs Letter for some Incidants after my Departure from Detroit not having room in this paper inform me if M^r Ruling [Ruland] got M^r Jacob Lewis,s sister from the Indians my Compliments to M^r M^cNiff & his Family

²⁹ Daniel Field (Fields) served as a sergeant in Captain Caldwell's company of Butler's Rangers during the Revolution, and at its close came to Detroit. A petition to the Land Board, June 18, 1790, discloses that he was then in the employ of Alexander McKee, and that he had served as spokesman for his fellow-rangers in efforts to secure from the government some compensation for their military service. Two years later, Field was in possession of a tract of land on the Thames River, and about this time was captain of Essex County militia. Apparently, he ran a mill, for an affidavit of John Drake, in June, 1795, recounts transactions with "Captain Donald Fields," miller, who would seem to have been identical with Captain Daniel Field. Detroit Nov 2^d 1795

Sir I was favoured with your two Letters of the 20th & 26th of Last month yesterday, I'm thankfull to you for your Endeavours to get the Saguinah Load Completed with

³⁴ Thomas Alexander Clarke (Clark) was an interpreter in the Indian Department some years before the date of this letter, and again during the War of 1812. During Wayne's campaign he was actively engaged in the British service in Ohio. Letters among the Askin Papers indicate that for many years he was located at Queenston, engaged in trade. See Askin Papers, passim; Simcoe Papers, passim; Niagara Hist. Soc., Papers, No. 22, pp. 57-58; and Officers of the British Forces in Canada during the War of 1812-15, 212. It seems probable that Clarke is identical with one Thomas Alexander Clarke, described in Major Robert Mathews' report of 1787 as "a Millwright," two years from England. See Essex Hist. Soc., Papers and Addresses, III, 72.

³⁵ Amable Latour was living at Detroit as early as 1782. In 1795 he signified his intention of remaining a British subject, and in 1806 Askin reported him as working at Malden and instructed Walter Roe to bring suit against him on a note which Askin held. See Mich. Pio. Colls., VIII, 411 and X, 607, and Askin Papers, passim.

Cut Quills & a covered Tin Kettle in place of a Pott, the Leather is to your debt but the Other Articles Ch^d to the Mill, by the lad who brought in the Cattle I mean to send you the bolting Cloth he goes off to day & I have Sent for Charles Réaume this morning to come over & choose more on a/c of his Knowing the Length of bolt than any thing else, as I lost the String which shewed the Length Anderson wrote me there was some Flour at Laplante's⁴⁰ for him I have sent some to him in its Stead, therefore therefore please Send that to me in the Weazell, with as much flour Bran & shorts as you can Spare but no Wheat. keep that to grind yourself but if you have Flour not bolted you may send it in I will have it bolted here, & for fear you may not have Baggs to put it in I send you 42 more in the

⁴⁰ Probably Jean Louis Leriger dît Laplante, who was born at Laprairie, Lower Canada, Nov. 26, 1741, and was buried at St. Antoine, River Raisin, Feb. 10, 1814.
He married Mary Barrault, and they had one son, Francis, who married at St. Louis,
May 28, 1797, Mary Louisa Malet, daughter of Louis Malet.

Jean Louis Leriger dît Laplante was a grandson of Clement Leriger, Sieur de la

Weazell all new russia sheeting. send these bags with the Flour. please Keep an Exact account of All Expenses for the Mill, & so will I likewise of all she earns & makes. Indian Corn is plenty. I do not think it will be worth more than 8/ next Spring very dry When the vessells come back I will let you Know what flour they fetch if the[y] bring 100 Barrels the Commissary says there will be enough & if so it will not be so high as I Expected but at all events you may depend on it that Wheat for 10/ Cash of [or] 12/ in goods the French bushell is cheap. Charley Hopes you will not forget his Horse Collar

I am yours &c

D^r Sir Having heard that you are appointed Executor to M^r John Askwith deceased, I think it my duty to inform you, that his Daughter Fanny Askwith who he has always acknowledged; by letters in my possession and publicly (in the most affectionate manner) to be his Daughter, And for whom he promises (in his last letter Dated Detroit Nov^r 7th 1793 of which letter I send you a Copy) to do every thing in his Power is now with me at Robert Cruckshank Esq^{re} And being informed that he has died in affluent circumstance I trust you will act in every respect agreeable to the desires of the deceased M^r John Askwith and render his Daughter Fanny the strictest Justice

I am D^r Sir with the greatest respect your humble Serv^t

To M^{rs} Marg^t Jervis

Detroit, Nov^r 7th 1793

I received your kind letter, and am happy to hear that you and little Fanny are in good health, be assured, I shall do every thing in my power to assist you and her, and perhaps wou'd do more than you imagine wou'd circumstances admit; but I cannot do impossibilities. I am in a state of servitude at present and cannot be at liberty untill Next July. I wish my time was out tomorrow I wou'd immediately go on board the last Vessel that sails, as this is at present perhaps the most miserable place in all Canada: you will not find a Family for fifty miles but three parts of them are languishing under the Fever and Ague, or otherwise a violent Bilious Fever which has carried off numbers and if they recover it is five or six months before they are able to walk I have hapily hitherto escaped both these, but cannot say I have been one day well for these six months, the constant wrack of business, and close application to the desk has injured my Constitution more

DISPOSAL OF ESTATE OF JOHN ASKWITH

TO ALL to whom these Presents shall come. WE John Askin, Rob^t Gouie, Geo. McDougall, Tho^s Cox, James Donaldson, Eborts,⁴¹ Meldrum & Parke, Ja^s Fraser, Row &

⁴¹ Herman Eborts was born in Augsburg in 1753 and came to America during the Revolution as surgeon in one of the Hessian regiments. About the year 1780 he married Marie Françoise Huc and in 1791 located at Detroit. After the American occupation he held a number of local offices, including those of sheriff and coroner. After the fire of 1805 he removed to the south side of the river (modern Windsor), where he died, March 4, 1819. Mrs. Eborts separated from her husband in 1804 and went to Montreal, where she had relatives, never returning to Detroit. The couple had seven children living at the time of the separation. See Proc. of Land Board of Detroit, 230.

Burrill,⁴² Tho^s Smith, D^d Robertson, A & R Pattinson.⁴³

send Greeting. Whereas John Askwith, of Detroit, Gentleman, lately departed this life, in the Indian Country, intestate, leaving certain goods, chattels, and personal Estate, AND whereas by reason of the absence of The Honourable James Baby Surrogate for this Western District, Letters of Administration, of the goods, chattels and effects, of the said John Askwith, cannot be obtained, so that such part of the said effects, as are of a perishable nature, are liable to depreciation. NOW KNOW YE that we the aforesaid, John Askin, Rob^t Gouie, Geo. McDougall, Tho^s Cox, Ja^s Donaldson, Eberts, Meldrum & Parke, Ja^s Fraser, Row & Burrill, Tho^s Smith, D^d Robertson, A & R. Pattinson, Creditors of the said John Askwith, for the sums affixed ag^t our respective Names, in the Schedule hereunto annexed, being desirous to dispose, of the property, belonging to the said Estate, without any advantage being taken of each other. DO hereby authorise, William Robertson, of said Detroit, Esquire, to make an Inventory of the said Estate, and to proceed to the Sale thereof, for the most money that can be had for the same. And after such sale, to divide the proceeds, arising therefrom, among the Creditors of the said Estate, in proportion to their respective Claims. And we do hereby bind and oblige ourselves, to indemnify, and save

⁴⁶ Jean Gobeil was born in the diocese of Poitiers, France, in 1624 and married there, about the year 1653, Jane Guet, who was born in 1634. They came to Canada about the year 1658 and located at Chateau Richer. They had several children, one of whom, Barthélemi born at Chateau Richer, married at Ste. Famille, Isle of Orleans, on Aug. 19, 1697, Ann Dionne, a native of that place, daughter of Anthony Dionne and Catherine Ivory. Barthélemi Gobeil was buried at St. Jean, Isle of Orleans, Feb. 8, 1724, and his wife was buried May 6, 1737.

Their son, Jean Francis Gobeil, born at Isle of Orleans, Sept. 23, 1707, married there, Nov. 14, 1735, Frances Gosselin, a native of the place. They had two sons, Jean Francis and Joseph, both of whom came to Detroit about the year 1772. Jean Francis, the elder, was born at Montreal in 1736, and married, prior to October 25, 1773, Mary Rose Fortier, who was born at Montreal in 1740, the daughter of Anthony Fortier and Mary Frances Dupas. They had eight children, born at Detroit in the years 1775-86. The husband was buried at Detroit, March 17, 1818; the wife, on May 7, 1819. Denissen, op. cit.
